Local Farm Is "Christmas Trees For Troops" Drop-Off

Oakland's Mtn. Top Christmas Tree Farm will serve as a drop-off location for donated Christmas trees headed for Fort Leonard Wood in Missouri, as part of the annual Trees for Troops effort.

Fresh-cut evergreens from several western Maryland tree farms will be picked up by the FedEx Corporation on Nov. 30 at Randy and Jean Sisler's tree farm, located along Pineview Drive just north of Oakland. Other Maryland Christmas trees will be collected at Mehrl Mayne's Christmas Tree Farm in Buckeystown and be shipped to Fort Campbell in Kentucky.

The Mtn. Top Tree Farm is a member of the Maryland Christmas Tree Association, which is coordinating Maryland's role in the national program, which expects to provide some 17,000 Christmas trees to military families stationed at more than 60 bases in the U.S. and overseas. Tree farmers donate 6- to 7-foot cut trees, which are tightly baled for easy shipment.

Trees for Troops is a collaborative project of FedEx, which donates its freight services, and the Christmas Spirit Foundation, a charitable arm of the National Christmas Tree Association.

The seventh annual effort is expected to reach a milestone this holiday by topping 100,000 trees delivered since the program was launched in 2005.

"Our military and their families have been providing a real service to our country," said Maryland Christmas Tree Association president Wilma Muir, who is also a Harford County tree grower. "As tree farmers, we want military families to be able to experience Christmas with a fresh, real tree."

Maryland Christmas Tree Association farmers grow trees on approximately 5,300 acres, with some 4 million trees planted and about 370,000 harvested annually. Christmas trees are 100 percent biodegradable, and they can be recycled for a variety of uses after the holidays. Discarded trees are used to halt erosion, provide fish habitat and make garden mulch.

Toy Safety: Purchasing Safe Toys For The Correct Age Of Girls and Boys

by Paul Stab

There are thousands of toys on store shelves to choose from, but making sure a toy is safe and age appropriate for a child is well worth the search to prevent injury or even death.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, in 2010, there were an estimated 140,700 emergency room treated injuries related to toys among children. Strict safety standards are regulated through the CPSC requiring toy manufacturers to label certain toys that could be hazardous to young children, and provide a recommended age of child to be using the toy. But it is up to the purchaser to ensure the toy is safe and the correct age level for the child.

There are some guidelines that shoppers should follow to keep children safe during their playtime. Remember though; use your own judgment as you know the child's maturity level and can best decide if the toy is suitable or not.

Top toys to take into consideration

•Non-motorized scooters and riding toys – Riding toys, skateboards, and even shoes with wheels go fast, and falls could easily cause injury at any age. Helmets and safety gear, including elbow and knee pads, should be worn properly at all times and be sized to fit the child.

•Small balls, coins, and toys with small parts – Government regulations specify that toys for children under the age of 3 cannot have parts less than 1¼ inches in diameter and 2¼ inches long as these small objects can pose a choking risk. Any ball with a diameter of 1¼ inches or less should not be given to a young child.

•Balloons – Deflated or broken balloons are another choking risk. Deflated balloons should be kept away from children younger than 8 years old, and broken balloons and the balloon string should be immediately discarded.

•Art materials – Crayons, paint, and other art items should not be given to children under the age of 3. Make sure art supplies are non-toxic and marked ASTM D-4236 to indicate the product has been reviewed by the American

The Mountain Anthems

The Mountain Anthems Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Michael Yoder, has been performing for over 45 years and serve on a volunteer basis.

This a capella group of about 30 singers has held concerts in 23 states, Washington, D.C., and Canada. The group's members vary in age from about 15 to 50. They have produced 21 recordings.

Maria Rose & Danny Elswick

Maria Rose has recorded 10 albums, hosted her own TV show, and has appeared on numerous national television and radio shows. Maria and her group have shared the stage with many national recording artists. Because of her ongoing volunteerism with various organizations, Maria received the Presidential Points Of Light Award.

Through the USO/Dept. of Defense, Maria and her band Danny Elswick were chosen from musical artists nationwide to entertain the armed forces around the world in 11 different overseas tours.

The couple can be seen often on the Midwest Country TV show on the RFD-TV network, and were inducted into the Midwest Country Music Hall of Fame. They also received the Gospel CD of the Year award in the Midwest.

Christmas Party Scheduled At St. Ann's In Avilton

The public is invited to "A Merry Musical Christmas Party" at St. Ann's Mission in Avilton on Sunday, Dec. 4, from 1 to 4 p.m.

This 6th annual Christmas Party will include Christmas music entertainers, a cash drawing, door prizes, a refreshment table, and a visit from Santa with treats for the kids at 3 p.m.

A spokesperson noted that RSVPs to this free event would be helpful, and can be made by calling 301-707-5763.

Festival Of Trees Set In Arthurdale

Area residents are invited to "capture the joy of the holiday season" at the Arthurdale (W.Va.) Festival of Trees, December 2–4.

The festival highlights will include a collection of decorated trees and wreaths displayed in the Arthurdale Forge, a silent auction, the Craft Shop's open house, Letters to Santa, hot chocolate, carol singing, and family holiday photos. Horse-drawn wagon rides around Eleanor's Little (Christmas) Village will also be available.

Individuals, families, groups, and businesses may participate by decorating a tree or a wreath for the holidays. Trees and wreaths will be supplied by Arthurdale Heritage, or persons may provide their own. Volunteers will be available to decorate trees if needed. Businesses may place merchandise or gift certificates on their trees.

The silent auction will be held December 2-3, and the winners may take their decorated tree or wreath on December 4 in time for the holidays.

All proceeds will benefit Arthurdale Heritage's historic preservation efforts. For more information, persons may call 304-864-3959 or go online to www.arthurdaleheritage.org

Public Invited To Christmas Live Auction Of BPW

All are invited to join the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club for its annual Christmas Live Auction, slated for Thursday, Dec. 8, at Will O'the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

A buffet dinner will be served at 6 p.m., and the auction will begin at 7:15. A wide variety of items donated by local businesses and individuals will be auctioned.

The event is open to the public, as the auction serves as one of the club's major fundraisers. Proceeds help the club award over 30 scholarships to deserving women.

The cost of the dinner is $20 per person; however the auction is free for anyone to attend. Those planning to attend the dinner are asked to contact Joanne Harsh at 301-334-9766 no later than Dec. 5

Pleasant View Puppets Are Back; Free Shows Set

The Pleasant View Baptist Church will again present a puppet show this holiday season, with this year's performance titled An Unexpected Christmas. The play was written by Dennis and Nan Allen.

The puppet show will be held over two weekends, with 12 different performances. The schedule is as follows: Fridays, Dec. 9 and 16, at 6:30 p.m.; Saturdays, Dec. 10 and 17, at 2 p.m., 4 p.m., and 6 p.m.; and Sundays, Dec. 11 and 18, at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

"A winter storm has left one disgruntled group of travelers stranded in a train station. Unable to do anything but stare at each other, this unlikely mix – one Christian, one doubter, one serious skeptic, and one goofball – strike up a serious conversation about the Christmas story and the miracle of Jesus," a spokesperson said. "This clever, light-hearted story combines a powerful message told by Jim-Henson-style puppets with special lighting and effects, multimedia, a multi-level 40-foot stage, and lots of upbeat, catchy Christmas songs to help get you into the Christmas spirit."

There is no cost for this presentation, but seats are limited at each showing so persons must have reservations. Reservations can be made online at www.pleasantviewbc.org or by calling the church office at 301-334-8515.

"This is a gift from your friends at Pleasant View for the whole family – not just for children," the spokesperson said.

The Pleasant View Baptist Church is located 2 miles south of Oakland along U.S. Rt. 219.

Blanket Drive Under Way To Serve Homeless

A "Blanket the Homeless" drive is being held by the Grantsville Involvement Group and the Happy SADD Club of Grantsville.

New and good, clean used blankets will be collected through Friday, Dec. 9. Donations can be made at the following locations: the Grantsville Town Hall, with Robin Jones; Route 40 Elementary School with Kista Wilt, and the Garrett County Health Department with Sharon Menges.

Those donating a blanket will be entered in a drawing, but there is a limit of five donations per person. The prize for ages 2 to 20 is a $50 Wal-Mart gift card, and the prize for ages 21 and up is a $100 Wal-Mart gift card.

The drawing will be held during a party on Friday, Dec. 9, at the Grantsville Senior Center. The evening will include crafts and goody bags for all ages, music with Jimmy B, a cake walk, games with the SADD group, cookies and hot chocolate, and pictures with Santa.

For more information, persons may call Sharon Menges at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111, extension 6528.

Toy Safety

Society for Testing and Materials. Products that conform to D-4236 have been tested for toxicity. However, this does not mean they are non-toxic, but rather any toxins contained within the product are listed on the packaging.

•Chargers, batteries, and adapters – These items can pose electrical and burn dangers to children of all ages. Special attention should be given to instructions and warnings for these items. Some chargers also lack mechanisms to prevent overcharging so do not leave the home when charging.

•Play swords, guns, and other weapons – These toys should be given only to mature, grade-school age children. They should be bright colors so they are easily differentiated from real weapons and should not be sharp or come to a point.

•Flying toys – Toys that are meant to be airborne can result in serious eye or head injury if not used properly. It is recommended that children under 8 not play with projectile toys.

Shopping Tips

•Be aware of the store where you are purchasmg toys. Second-hand stores and yard sales can be spend-savvy places, but second-hand toys may be broken or defective, and therefore dangerous. Also, without original packaging, age guidelines and warning are not available. Examine each toy carefully looking for cracks, paint chippings, or even leakmg battery fluid.

•Be aware of what toys are made of as some products have dangerous substances that can be harmful when ingested.

•For toys that produce sound, look for toys that have a volume level to protect children's hearing. A noise rating may also be listed on the product. If there is not a rating listed, you can contact the toy manufacturer and request this information. An extremely loud toy for children is 90 decibel.

Remind children to properly put away their toys, because if they are left out, they can become a tripping hazard for everyone. Proper supervision of children at play will also result in a safer playtime.

Consumers can find up-to-date toy recalls and report dangerous toys and injuries caused by a toy on the CSPC web site, www.cpsc.gov/.

Paul Stab is the vice president of business development at Allied-Barton Security Services. Holiday Exhibit To Be On Display At Gallery Shop

The Garrett County Arts Council has announced a special exhibit at the Gallery Shop, located at 206 E. Alder Street in downtown Oakland. The collection of work by numerous Gallery Shop artists will feature a kitchen theme. The exhibit will be on display in the Backroom Gallery from Dec. 5 through mid-January. All pieces in the exhibit are for sale, just in time for holiday gift giving.

The artists have provided work that will be appropriate for the heart of the home and the gourmet cooks in your life. Original paintings in watercolor, oil, and acrylic, as well as photographs, feature fruits and vegetables. Kitchen gadgets such as wooden cutting boards, rolling pins, and pepper mills will be available. Art pieces made from antique silverware, woven rugs, and more unique handmade items will be part of the exhibit.

As part of Christmas on Alder Street, the arts council will host a reception and open house on Friday, Dec. 9, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Gallery Shop. Council members and the public are invited to stop in to enjoy some holiday confections and see the special kitchen exhibit.

Beginning Nov. 28, shoppers at the Gallery Shop will have the opportunity to register for a weekly door prize. Each Friday prior to Christmas, a $20 gift certificate will be given away. This certificate can be used toward the purchase of any item from one of over 150 artists at the Gallery Shop anytime between now and June 30, 2012. No purchase is necessary to enter the drawing.

Garrett County Arts Council is a non-profit organization that supports numerous arts projects and organizations throughout Garrett County. GCAC encourages all readers to shop locally and support independent artists, designers, and crafters this holiday season. For more information, persons may visit www.garrettarts.com or call 301-334-6580.

Christmas Eve Service Set By Shepherd Of Hills

Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church will hold its Christmas Eve worship service on Saturday, Dec. 24, in the Sitzmark Room of Will O' the Wisp, beginning at 5 p.m. Rev. Donald R. Thomas will officiate. Special Christmas music will begin at 4:45 p.m.

Designed as a worship opportunity for the community, the candlelight Communion service will include many familiar Christmas hymns. Special music will be provided by congregation instrumentalists, and vocal selections will be performed by soloists and the Praise Ensemble of Shepherd of the Hills.

Will O' the Wisp is located along Rt. 219, ½ mile north of the traffic light at Glendale Road. The Sitzmark Room is located on the lower level. Handicapped entrance access is by car at the rear of the building, persons may enter at the patio doors.

Shepherd of the Hills is a mission congregation of the West Virginia/Western Maryland Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. For further information, persons may contact the church office at 301-387-0400 or the visit the web site at www.shepherdofthehillslutheran.org.

Southern Middle School Hosting Holiday Events

The Southern Middle School visual and performing arts Christmas Extravaganza will be held on Dec. 16, beginning at 7 p.m.

The school band and chorus as well as general music students will perform in the cafetorium. A visual arts exhibit will be on display, and theatre students will present skits.

The public is invited to attend.

music and served as organist and choir director in New England, the mid-Atlantic region, and Washington state. In addition to her public performances, she gives private lessons in Celtic harp, piano, guitar, and Appalachian dulcimer. She is the music director at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Cumberland.

Roger has been involved with music since his high school days in Minneapolis, Minn. He began playing recorder while at the University of Minnesota and plays the full family of instruments. He has taught and performed in California and throughout the mid-Atlantic area. Locally, he founded and directed the Consort Antigua, a quintet of medieval and renaissance instrumentalists.

The Zimmermans are a family group from LaVale.

SCOTCH MIST

JUST 4 FUN QUARTET

The members are Craig and Chrissy Zimmermann and their three children Mandy, Justin, and Katie. They will perform contemporary renditions of Christmas melodies. The group's sound is modern electric/acoustic (keys, bass, drums, guitars, vocals).

The Durst Brothers

Rodney and Dennis Durst perform at churches, nursing homes, and festivals throughout the tri-state area. Rodney writes many of the songs they perform, but they also cover a lot of the older country gospel songs, from artists like Johnny Cash and Hank Williams.

The Durst Brothers' first album, titled Sure Enough Good Time, yielded two top five national and international gospel singles.

Discovery Center Hosting Holiday Open House

The Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park will host an open house on Saturday, Dec. 10, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Guests will be invited to visit and have pictures taken with Santa Claus. Family photos will be offered. Persons may also make and decorate "nature" frames for the pictures. There will be coffee, hot chocolate, and homemade cookies available.

The photos and frames will be $3 each.

This event is being sponsored by the Western Garrett County State Park Volunteers Inc.

Southern States Holiday Food Drive Launched

With the holiday season approaching, Southern States Cooperative is joining with local food banks to promote the first annual Southern States Holiday Food Drive.

"Farmers in the United States lead the world in producing quality meats, grains, fruits and vegetables," said Southern States president and CEO Tom Scribner. "Essentially, American farmers feed the world, so it's just not right for families right here in the U.S. to go hungry, especially at this time of year."

The drive began Monday and will continue through December 18. Many Southern States locations are working with area food banks to help fill the shelves with food that will go to families in need during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. The participating retail locations are serving as collection centers for customers who bring in canned goods and non-perishable items, and Southern States will make regular deliveries of the donated items to the food banks.

Tom Hart, manager of the Oakland store, said that the local SS store is participating in the drive, which will benefit the House of Hope, Oakland.

According to Turner Gravitt, Southern States director of community relations, the Holiday Food Drive is a natural extension of the company's ongoing commitment to the communities they serve.

"We live in these cities and towns," he said. "We work here, our friends are here, so we as individuals – and as a company – have a responsibility to lend a hand, not only to our customers, but also to our neighbors."

Steve Patterson, Southern States vice president of marketing, encourages those interested in contributing to the Southern States Holiday Food Drive to contact their participating Southern States retail location for more information.

Southern States is a Richmond, Virginia-based farm supply and service cooperative, founded in 1923, that now has more than 300,000 farmer-members. It is one of the nation's largest agricultural cooperatives, with some 1,200 retail outlets.

First United To Host Appreciation Day For Customers

First United Bank and Trust will host a "Customer Appreciation Day" on Friday, Dec. 2, at the Oakland Community Office. Banking customers and members of the community are invited to stop in for refreshments, punch, and coffee.

There will be live Christmas music playing in the lobby to enhance the spirit of the season, a spokesperson said.

"First United wishes everyone a blessed holiday," the spokesperson said.

Festival Of Trees Slated At Exhibit Hall, McHenry

The annual Festival of Trees event will be held Thanksgiving weekend, Nov. 25 and 26, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day at the new exhibit hall at the Garrett County Fairgrounds, McHenry.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children. Those who pay on Friday may return on Saturday for no additional fee. There will be free parking offered.

Tri-County Council Awarded $70,000 In Federal Funding

The Tri-County Council for Western Maryland Inc. has received a $70,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration (EDA) to establish an economic strategy to support investment and job creation in the region. U.S. Senators Ben Cardin and Barbara Mikulski made the announcement on Monday.

"This funding will allow the Tri-County Council to create a roadmap for economic prosperity and job growth in western Marvland." said Cardin. "This grant shows that the public and private sectors can work together to bring new jobs and economic development to western Maryland."

This EDA planning investment supports the development and implementation of a comprehensive economic development strategy (CEDS) in the region served by the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland, which comprises the counties of Allegany, Garrett, and Washington.

The CEDS process is designed to bring together the public and private sectors in the creation of an economic development roadmap to diversify and strengthen the regional economy, according to the senators.

"This funding is a federal investment in jobs today and tomorrow in our western Maryland communities," Mikulski said. "I'm so proud to fight for the funding that Maryland's western counties can use to continue to develop and grow."

LOOKING NERVOUS is this wild turkey who seems to be listening intently for the possible cocking of a firearm as she simultaneously considers the underbrush in front of her as a potential safe haven. Her domestic cousin is in far greater jeopardy this week, however, as hundreds of thousands of them will wind up on dinner tables around the nation tomorrow in celebration of Thanksgiving. As it turned out, the only person who shot this bird was Lisa Broadwater, manager of the Grantsville office of The Republican, and she was using only her camera.

Contractor Of Wind Farm Fined $35,000 By MDE

The Maryland Department of the Environment announced yesterday 51 recent major enforcement actions, including one in Garrett County, for alleged violations of MDE requirements for land, air, and radiation management, water, and wetlands.

The local company receiving a fine was White Construction, Synergics Roth Rock Energy, LLC, which erected wind turbines just south of Red House. The company and MDE finalized a settlement agreement to resolve alleged sediment control violations that occurred during the construction of the Roth Rock Wind Farm. The agreement requires White Construction Inc. to pay a $35,000 penalty to the Clean Water Fund.

"The Maryland Department of the Environment's top priority is to protect public health and our environment," said MDE Secretary Robert M. Summers. "A consistent baseline of enforcement actions prevents further pollution and risks to public health. The majority of Maryland businesses comply with environmental laws. A strong and fair enforcement program protects their investment in the environment, as well as the health and quality of life of all Maryland residents."

Garrett Co. Commissioners, Sheriff Call For More Courthouse Security

The Garrett County commissioners and Sheriff Rob Corley have decided that improvements to courthouse security are required, county administrator Monty Pagenhardt announced last week.

"The commissioners, Sheriff Corley, and I had several meetings about improving the security," Pagenhardt said. "We are the only courthouse in the state that is not secure at all entrances. This is a good decision – maybe inconvenient to some – but a precaution that needed to be put in place."

He added that funding for the improvements will come from the Facilities and Maintenance Department budget. Previous courthouse and Sheriff's Office security improvements – including cameras and metal detectors – have been funded by Homeland Security and other types of grants.

The county administrator advised county employees and the media that the Facilities and Maintenance Department is working on security measures to the Alder Street entrance at the courthouse. He noted the following changes will be in place by Thursday, Dec. 1.

1. The 317 Alder Street doorway/entrance/exit will be the primary entrance for the public. The Sheriff's Office security station will be moved from the rotunda to this area. All persons (with the exception that is noted in #2) who require public service in the courthouse will enter through this entrance.

"By moving the security station to the new location and securing the other doors, persons who need to visit any/all offices in the courthouse will have to pass through security," Pagenhardt explained.

2. This courthouse alley doorway/entrance/exit will be the primary entrance for the public who require handicapped accessibility. Handicapped persons who require public service in the courthouse will enter through this entrance by pressing an available button that will signal for a security officer to open the door.

County employees may also use this doorway by using their employee card reader and identification number.

3. The Fourth Street entrance/exit will be the primary entrance for county employees by using their employee card reader and identification number.

4. The 311 Alder Street and alley ramp entrances/exits will be open for visitors, attorneys, and service personnel to the detention center. In addition persons, who need to meet with the community service office will use these doorways.

5. All other courthouse outside doors will be locked, and emergency egress/exit will only be permitted.

The Information Technology Department is in the process of issuing card reader identification cards for all county employees who work in the courthouse, Pagenhardt noted. Until that process is completed, county employees who work in the courthouse and who have not been issued a card reader identification card will need to enter through the 317 Alder Street entrance. County employees from remote locations will also need to enter through the 317 Alder Street entrance.

State Weighing Potential Impact Of "Fracking" In Marcellus Shale

by Greg Masters
Capital News Service

Garrett County resident Dana Shimrock was relieved when Maryland put the brakes on drilling in the natural gas-rich Marcellus shale before a single well could be drilled.

"They had just completed a well not far from me across the border in Pennsylvania," Shimrock said. "I knew they were ready to roll over here into Maryland, and I really felt that we weren't ready for that."

Shimrock is one of many western Maryland residents concerned about the controversial gas extraction process known as hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," which some say threatens the environment and public health.

But many others in Maryland, including Delegate Wendell Beitzel, R-Garrett and Allegany, feel the potential economic benefits of Marcellus shale drilling outweigh the environmental risks.

Landowners will get "huge sums of money" from leases and gas royalties, drilling will bring jobs, and Garrett County will benefit from a severance tax on the gas that is produced, Beitzel said.

"Now we have an opportunity to lift this area up, as we are witnessing in some of our neighbor states," he said.

The public debate over fracking has swept across states such as Pennsylvania, New York, Texas, Colorado and Wyoming, where reserves of natural gas lie deep underground, trapped bubble-like in shale formations, as well as North Dakota and Montana, home to the oil-bearing Bakken Formation.

Energy companies have made shale oil and gas deposits profitable to explore by drilling horizontally into the shale layer and injecting a pressurized mix of water, sand, and chemicals to crack open the rock, releasing trapped oil or gas.

This "fracking" process has led to a boom in shale gas, which has increased as a share of domestic natural gas production from 4 percent before 2005 to more than 30 percent through October, according to the Energy Information Administration.

But the boom has been accompanied by claims of drinking water contamination and other environmental concerns.

The Marcellus shale spans 95,000 square miles from Tennessee to New York and underlies a portion of western Maryland – including all of Garrett County and part of Allegany County – at depths

Maryland Considers Health And Environmental Risks Of Fracking

by Sarah Meehan
Capital News Service

Critics have blamed hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," for environmental disturbances including landscape degradation, air pollution, and groundwater contamination – conditions which may affect the health of surrounding areas. But the jury is still out on whether these claims are valid.

"We still see it as very early days of the process here. At this point, we're still collecting data," said Samuel Lesko, a Northeast Regional Cancer Institute physician who is exploring fracking's health impacts on Pennsylvanians. "We're trying to be very broad about it since we don't know what types of illnesses might be attributed to these activities."

Although the effects of fracking remain undefined, its threats are gaining credence as drilling creeps closer to Garrett and Allegany counties.

Some western Marylanders, such as All Earth Eco Tours owner Crede Calhoun II, worry that hydro-fracking will devastate the area's natural attractions and consequently ruin its eco-tourism economy.

"I don't want to see it happen to what I would consider one of the most beautiful parts of Appalachia," said Calhoun, a Friendsville resident.

The Maryland General Assembly is preparing to continue debate over boring natural gas wells into a section of the Marcellus shale formation that nicks Maryland's panhandle. The shale layer is dotted with gas pockets, which can be accessed by drilling several thousand feet underground, burrowing horizontally, and injecting the rock with a pressurized mixture of water and chemicals to release natural gas inside.

Deep shale runs along the Appalachian Mountains from southwest Virginia to New York. The formation holds about 84 trillion cubic feet of undiscovered, technically recoverable natural gas, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. An earlier assessment by the Energy Information Administration put the number at about 400 trillion cubic feet of natural gas, enough to provide about 15 years of national energy independence.

But only a small portion of that fuel lies beneath western Maryland. Calhoun said he worries short-term drilling

Two Life-Flighted To Ruby Memorial Following Wreck

Two people were flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital following a single-vehicle accident on Oakland Sang Run Road near Stockslager Road, Oakland, last Thursday afternoon. Maryland State Police responded to the noon scene.

Investigation revealed that a 17-year-old juvenile from McHenry had been traveling south at an apparent high rate of speed. The driver was unable to negotiate a curve correctly, causing the vehicle to travel off the roadway and strike a tree. Passenger Jeffrey Neil Paugh, 24, Mtn. Lake Park, was ejected from the vehicle, and the driver was partially ejected. Trooper 5 and Health Net transported one patient each to Morgantown, W.Va. The accident is still under investigation, and charges are pending for the driver.

GC Deputies Arrest Man On CDS Charges

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested a Finzel man on CDS charges following a search of his residence.

Deputies arrived at the home of Anthony Michael David Winter, 25, to serve him a subpoena, and while there, they reportedly smelled the odor of marijuana. A search of the home was conducted revealing several bags of marijuana and smoking devices containing marijuana. He was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

Winter was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Woman Taken To Garrett Memorial Following Wreck

A Friendsville woman was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital Thursday evening following a single-vehicle accident on Herrington Manor Road.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to the 8 p.m. scene, where investigation revealed that Mary Anna Brown, 22, had been traveling north when she lost control on the ice-covered roadway. He vehicle left the road and overturned on an embankment. Brown was taken by Southern Rescue Squad to GCMH, where she was treated for her injuries.

No charges were filed. Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Wolfe To Perform With GCC Band

Returning as a guest soloist for the annual holiday concert of the Garrett Community Concert Band, slated for Sunday, Dec. 4, 2:30 p.m., at Garrett College will be Chief Master Sgt. Patricia Fanara Wolfe, a professional soprano retired from the United States Air Force Singing Sergeants.

A native of Massapequa Park, N.Y., Wolfe earned both a bachelor and master of music degrees in vocal performance from the Catholic University of America, Benjamin T. Rome School of Music. Prior to joining the U.S. Air Force Band and Singing Sergeants Chorus in 1980, she performed with the Washington Lyric, the Chesapeake, and the Wolf Trap opera companies. She was the first female cantor at the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. She also performed with a USO show, entertaining U.S. troops in Greenland.

As a member of the U.S. Air Force Band and Singing Sergeants Chorus, she had the opportunity to represent the men and women of the armed forces on goodwill tours of Europe, Turkey, China, and throughout the United States in both live and televised performances.

An early career highlight was her performance with the Air Force Band and Chorus of selections from the opera Carmen before an audience in Paris that included the French defense minister. One of the numbers that she will perform

Holiday Closing

Offices of The Republican will be closed on Thursday, Nov. 24, in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday. Offices will reopen on Friday, Nov. 25, at 8 a.m.

THE COLORS OF AUTUMN seem to be pretty much behind us, with winter fast approaching. We haven't seen too much of the white stuff yet, but as we Garrett Countians know, it's just around the corner. This scene, captured by Lisa Broadwater, is one of several that can be found in the 2012 Sincell Publishing Co. calendar, Mountaintop Moments – Scenes of Garrett County and Surrounding Areas. Calendars will be available for purchase at both the Oakland and Grantsville offices beginning next week. MTN. FRESH PRODUCERS PRESENT CHECK – The Mountain Fresh Produce Association recently presented a $500 check to Kenya Rinker and Kately Gnegy, members of the Country Explorers 4-H Club. This money was for expenses the young women incurred during their trip to San Diego, Calif., for the National 4-H Horticulture Contest. Rinker and Gnegy were part of the Maryland team, which consisted of two other 4-H members from the state. The check was presented at the Pleasant Valley Community Center during the association's annual fall dinner, which is held annually by the local farmers to wrapup the growing season. Rinker and Gnegy presented a slide show about their trip to the association during the event. Left to right are association vice president George Beckman, Gnegy, and Rinker.

Westernport Man Sentenced To Three Years For Theft Charge

A Westernport man was sentenced to three years by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert on a theft $1,000 to $10,000 charge. Richard Allen White Jr., 27, was tried recently in Garrett County District Court on charges that stem from an incident investigated by Maryland State Police in September.

Two years and 11 months of his sentence were suspended, and he was given credit for 30 days served. He was also ordered to pay restitution of $2,181 to the victim, and placed on three years' supervised probation, both of which will be monitored by the Maryland Division of Parole and Probation. White reportedly stole two guns from a home in Bloomington and reportedly tried to trade one as compensation to his landlord for rent. He allegedly tried to sell the guns to several people, who were questioned during the investigation. He was not prosecuted on first-degree burglary.

In other court news, Adam Scott Hoover, 21, Friendsville, was found guilty on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a dispute with an adult female in front of the Sugar Shack, Friendsville. He was sentenced to one year suspended and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Hoover was reportedly intoxicated at the time of the July incident, and allegedly pretended to slap the woman by clapping one hand to the other in front of her face. The victim claimed Hoover did come in contact with her forehead at the time of the assault. Maryland State Police were the arresting officers. Hoover was not prosecuted on alcoholic beverage intoxication endangerment, arson threat, and malicious destruction of property charges.

Hoover was also found guilty on a possession of paraphernalia charge, for which he was fined $100. The charge stems from a May traffic stop, during which MSP found a glass smoking pipe in his vehicle.

Donald Lee Guy, 40, Grantsville, was found guilty on a malicious destruction of property charge that stems from a July incident investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies. He was given credit for 86 days served. Guy was reportedly involved in a domestic dispute with an adult female, during which he allegedly damaged her vehicle. He was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge.

Brian Roy Custer, 29, Grantsville, was given a stet verdict on unauthorized removal of property, motor vehicle unlawful taking, and theft less than $1,000 charges that stem from a June incident investigated by MSP. He reportedly took a scooter for a ride, and did not return it to its owner. He was ordered to pay restitution of $650 to the victim in the case.

Robert Woodrow Nasteff, 25, Ocean View, Del., was given a stet verdict on possession of marijuana, possession of paraphernalia, and possession of not marijuana charges that stem from a July traffic stop conducted by Garrett County Narcotics Task Force. He was reportedly found with a quantity of MDMA (Ecstacy) and marijuana, as well as a smoking pipe. He was ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Meredith Ann McClain, 28, Mullica Hill, N.J., was given a stet on possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia charges that stem from a July traffic stop by GC sheriff's deputies. Police reportedly found two bags of marijuana under the soles of a pair of shoes located in the trunk of McClain's vehicle. She was ordered to complete 40 hours of community service.

Brittany Lee Farrell, 22, North Beach, was given a stet on a possession of marijuana charge that stemmed from a traffic stop by GC deputies in May.

Lawrence Edward Hinebaugh, 44, Oakland, was given a stet verdict on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a domestic dispute investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in August.

Tara Michelle Graham, 31, Lancaster, Pa., was not prosecuted on possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia charges that stemmed from a July traffic stop by Garrett County sheriff's deputies, during which they reportedly found a bag of marijuana.

Susan E. Jedlowski, 18, Frostburg, was not prosecuted on a second-degree escape charge that stems from an incident in October investigated by Maryland State Police. She reportedly left the grounds of Salem Children's Trust without permission.

Jeffery Allen McCleary, 24, Meyersdale, Pa., was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a July domestic dispute with an adult female investigated by MSP.

DUI/DWI CASES

The following driving under the influence (DUI) and driving while intoxicated (DWI) cases were recently heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Terry Lenn Lantz, 51, Maryland, was found guilty on a DWI charge that stemmed from an August traffic stop by GC deputies. He was sentenced to 60 days suspended, fined $500, with $150 suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation. He was not prosecuted on DUI and DUI per se charges.

McHenry Man Arrested On Several Charges

A McHenry man was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies Friday evening after they responded to the 17000 block of Garrett Highway for a violation of a protective order in progress last Friday.

Suspect Scott E. Sisler, 31, was eventually stopped by deputies at the intersection of Glendale Road and Garrett Highway. He was charged with violation of a protective order, two counts of harassment, two counts of disturbing the peace, CDS possession of paraphernalia, and CDS possession not marijuana. He was released after posting bond.

Sisler was later arrested by Maryland State Police on third- and fourth-degree burglary and destruction of property charges. The charges stem from an incident that also reportedly occurred on Friday at a Mayhew Inn Road residence.

VFW ANNOUNCES RESULTS OF ESSAY CONTESTS – The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 10077 in Deer Park has announced the results of the 2011 Voice of Democracy and Patriot's Pen contests in Garrett County. The VFW conducts these contests annually for high school and middle school students to promote civic and patriotic themes. Winners receive cash prizes and advance to higher level competition in the VFW. There were 57 entries from Northern Middle School for the Patriot's Pen contest and one entry for the Voice of Democracy contest. The top four in order of finish for the Patriot's Pen contest are pictured above. From left are Torri Bittinger (won $200), Kaitlyn Smith ($100), Morgan Rush ($25), and Madison Dolchan ($300), and teacher Lorie Burdock. In back are contest chairman Wayne McCaughey and teacher George Lander. All four of the girls' entries will be judged at the district level competition independent from their order of finish at the Post 10077 level. A recognition ceremony was held for the winners at their school on Nov. 16. The winner of the Voice of Democracy contest was Coy Ozias, who received a cash prize of $300. His entry advanced to the district level competition. Two years ago Coy won the Patriot's Pen Contest for middle schools and last year he won the Voice of Democracy contest. He is pictured below receiving his prize from McCaughey. The VFW Post 10077, under the leadership of Commander Bob Hensley, wished to thank all the participants and teachers for their contributions.

TEACHERS HONORED BY VFW – Commander Bob Hensley of VFW Post 10077 in Deer Park announced that Sue Lisantti has been selected as Teacher of the Year in the annual contest conducted by the Post. Lisantti has been a teacher at Southern Middle School for many years. "She has worked diligently to infuse in her students an appreciation of the English language and its literature. As a writer who has had some of her poems and stories published in local publications, she has created the same love of literature in her pupils," a VFW spokesperson said. Some of her students have gone on to win awards in such contests as the VFW Patriot's Pen contest. She volunteers in the community and sings with several choral groups. Lisantti is pictured above left as she receives a cash award from contest chairman Wayne McCaughey. Lisantti's name will be entered by Post 10077 in the VFW District 3 Teacher of the Union contest, held late this month. A close runner-up in the contest was teacher George Lander of Northern Middle School, pictured above right receiving his award. Lander has taught at Northern Middle School for nearly 30 years and is "well known for his devotion to his students," the spokesperson said. He also volunteers extensively in the community.

Mailboxes Found Destroyed, Police Seeking Info.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office received multiple complaints of destruction of property in the area of Fingerboard Road and Sanders Lane, Oakland.

It was determined that multiple mailboxes were destroyed during the evening hours of Friday, Nov. 18, and Saturday, Nov. 19. Anyone with information regarding any of these incidents is asked to contact the GCSO at 301-334-1911 or leave an anonymous tip at www.garrettcountycrimesolvers.org. Tipsters may be eligible for a cash reward.

Deputies Make Several DUI, DWI Arrests

Several arrests involving drinking and driving charges were made by Garrett County sheriff's deputies this week. The following incidents are unrelated.

Deputies stopped a 2000 Jeep on Oakland Sang Run Road last Thursday evening after the vehicle was observed crossing the centerline. Deputies detected an odor of an alcoholic beverage on Timothy L. Friend, 53, Oakland. He was subsequently arrested and charged with driving under the influence, driving while impaired, and failure to drive right of center. He was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Deputies made a traffic stop on Main Street, Deer Park, for an equipment violation early Saturday morning. The driver of the vehicle, John William Dillsworth, 41, Deer Park, was found to be driving under the influence of alcohol. He was charged with DUI, DWI, and additional traffic violations. He was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

A traffic stop was conducted at midnight Sunday morning on White Church Steyer Road, Oakland, for a speeding violation. Further investigation revealed that Thomas Allen True, 66, Oakland, was under the influence of alcohol. He was charged with DUI, DWI, and exceeding the speed limit. He was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Deputies responded to Old Crellin road at approximately 1:30 a.m. Sunday morning for a reported motor vehicle accident. Investigation revealed that David Monroe Sisler Jr., 22, Oakland, had been traveling west, when he lost control of the vehicle and struck a utility pole. It was determined that Sisler was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the accident. He refused medical treatment at the scene. He was charged with DUI, DWI, reckless driving, negligent driving, and operating a vehicle while using a handheld device. He was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Oakland Volunteer Fire Department and Potomac Edison Electric Company also responded to the scene.

Sentenced To

olas, 46, Md., was given a probation before judgment (PBJ) verdict on a DUI per se charge that stemmed from a May traffic stop by MSP. She was sentenced to 60 days suspended and fined $500, with $200 suspended. She was also placed on 18 months of supervised probation. Nicholas was not prosecuted on DWI and DUI charges.

Nathan Richard Resh, 29, Md., was given a PBJ on a DWI charge that stemmed from an August stop by Garrett County sheriff's deputies. He was sentenced to 30 days suspended and fined $500, with $250 suspended. He was also placed on one year of unsupervised probation. Resh was not prosecuted on DUI and DUI per se charges.

Rodney Lee Welch, 42, Md., was given a PBJ on a DWI charge that stemmed from a September stop by GC deputies. He was sentenced to 30 days suspended and fined $500 with $250 suspended. He was also placed on one year of unsupervised probation. He was not prosecuted on a DUI charge.

Has to be a Better Way...

Dissecting the whole Occupy Wall Street movement reveals some interesting information about the people who are participating, how it all got started, and what the organizers hope to accomplish.

It was actually a Canadian activist group called Adbusters, an anti-consumerism, pro-environment not-for-profit, that initiated the first protest, which was held in New York City. Many similar protests and sit-ins have transpired since then and continue today in several major cities.

In general, the participants are protesting against social and economic inequality, high unemployment, greed, corruption, and the undue influence of corporations – particularly that of the financial services sector – on government. What seems to be lacking, however, are the specifics as to how the protestors think this can all be "fixed." It seems that some will accept nothing short of the wealthiest of Americans simply handing over their money to those who are not wealthy. The protesters' slogan – "We are the 99%" – refers to the growing difference in wealth between the wealthiest 1% and the rest of the U.S. population.

While the 99-1% ratio is a bit deceiving, statistics reinforce that there is indeed a significant lopsidedness in the U.S. when it comes to wealth. Figures from 2007 show that the top 20% of Americans owned 85% of the country's wealth, while the bottom 80% of the population owned the other 15%. Such is the case in most capitalistic societies, and it should be remembered that the majority of jobs in such a society are provided by that upper 20%.

The political composition of the OWS protesters is also a bit surprising. While many would assume that the vast majority are Democrats, particularly those far to the left, in fact only about 23% are Democrats. Not too surprisingly, only about 2.4% are Republicans, but about 70% of them say they are independents.

Another misconception that most people seem to harbor is that the great majority of the protestors are unemployed. But in reality, only about 13% of them are unemployed.

As noted in a letter to the editor on this page today, these protesters – these Americans – have a constitutional right to do what they are doing. In addition, certainly some of their demands are legitimate, such as the need for political reform and/or additional legislation to reduce the level of corruption and influence by big business on government. Their methods, though, are somewhat disconcerting. Their "tent cities" are located on public property, that is, property technically "belonging" to all of us citizens. That property is being occupied and, in many cases, being polluted by the folks who are camping there, apparently indefinitely. That is offensive to other citizens who may just want to go sit in the park and enjoy being there. It also results in the expenditure of additional tax money – money that is supplied by all taxpayers – to cover additional police protection and clean-up operations.

There just has to be a better way to bring about change.

To the Editor:

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

This, my friends, is the 1st Amendment. It was intentionally written to encourage groups just like "Occupy" to put right the inequities in our society.

This year my heartfelt thanks goes to the Occupy Wall Street protesters for the service they are performing for our country. They are exercising their rights for all of our benefit. Civil disobedience is part of the fabric of our society, and protests of this nature are required periodically to correct the direction of the country.

The righteously indignant politicians will try to convince you that the protesters are a rag-tag bunch of rabble rousers. However, even former secretary of state Colin Powell, commenting on the Occupy Movement, said, "Demonstrating like this is as American as apple pie. We've been marching up and down and demonstrating throughout our history."

This group of patriots is the front line of our democracy, fighting against the back-room purchase of our representatives by the endless supply of special interest lobbyists.

Quote from Robert Reich (former labor secretary): "Americans know a rigged game when they see one. They understand how much money is flowing into politics from the super rich, big corporations, and Wall Street – in order to keep their taxes low and entrench their privileged position."

My favorite Occupy sign says, "If they enforced bank regulations the way they enforce park regulations, we wouldn't be in this mess."

To the Editor:

Hunters: Please pack your trash out of the woods. Nobody wants to come upon your trash and deer parts while out hiking in the woods, and it's against the law to leave it there, with a minimum fine of $1,500.

In fact, if you love being out in nature, pack out other trash you may come upon to make your next experience more enjoyable.

I also want to publicly thank all those out there who are picking up other people's litter along our roads and streams. Thank you! What you do is greatly appreciated. I've seen people picking up trash and putting it in bags or (better yet) reusable buckets along Ft. Hill Road (in Pa.), North Glade Road, Sam Friend Road, and Old Morgantown Road (East), in addition to my working on Pysell, Sang Run, and Bear Creek roads. I also read about some volunteers cleaning up a stretch of the Youghiogheny River near Crellin recently.

If you bike or jog or hike or take your dog for a walk, put a few bags in your pocket for picking up trash as you go. Picking up litter is good waistline-reducing exercise, and you'll be enhancing your neighborhood and property values.

Sincerely,
Susan Thayer Haydel

To the Editor:

Deep Creek Lake has been an invaluable natural and economic resource for Garrett County. Thousands of visitors and residents are drawn to the lake's scenic beauty and recreational offerings, creating a range of business and livelihood opportunities.

The economic activity brought by the lake community generates taxes that fund a large portion of Garrett County's operating budget. Yet the lake's growing age, the impacts of intense recreational use, extensive residential and commercial development, and a relatively weak system for managing these changes now pose serious challenges to its amenity values and role as the county's economic engine.

Troublingly, the response to this challenge from local and state-level lake managers, as well as some powerful business stakeholders, has been slow and limited in scope. The state of Maryland has not provided critical funds to remedy emerging problems. Many businesses that prosper from the lake have not stepped forward to advocate for or invest in its protection. The tendency to downplay environmental stresses and the urgency of steps to address ongoing degradation is widespread. This response puts at risk the county's most important revenue source, property values, and thousands of related jobs.

The Deep Creek watershed must be actively managed to protect it. A critical first step in sound management is widely sharing information on the indicators of environmental stress. The tendency to minimize negative news about the lake's status or to overwhelm it with upbeat marketing is understandable. But that response is inappropriate to the severity of the threats and fosters counterproductive complacency.

To change the status quo, Garrett County leadership needs to become a much more active champion for the lake's protection. With the state as a strong contributor, they should include all lake stakeholders in partnership to make key decisions and carry out decisive steps to care for this critical resource. This management plan must clarify the roles and responsibilities of various agencies in maintaining it.

No asset – public or private – can generate revenues without ongoing investment. The state must invest in the lake to ensure its viability as an economic engine. The current strategy of pushing all management costs onto lakeside property owners gives a free ride to many economic beneficiaries and produces resentment. All stakeholders should share the costs and benefits of reasonable protections for our vulnerable lake watershed.

To the Editor:

Happy Thanksgiving from PAWS! PAWS provides financial help to families who want to spay and neuter their pets. Unintentional breeding results in too many unwanted dogs and cats, inevitably leads to neglect and suffering, and strains the limited resources of our county animal shelter.

Thank you to The Republican for helping us with our articles, photos, and ads to let people know about our programs and fundraising events! Thank you, residents of Garrett County, for your generous contributions! This year you have helped many families who are struggling to make ends meet and want to enjoy the companionship of their pets without the worry and expense of unwanted litters. Thank you, owners and staff of area restaurants, for participating in our annual Passion for Pets Challenge – our major fundraiser! Thank you, Jonny Rock and staff, for donating your lively DJ and karaoke services for these guest bartender nights! And thank you to our tiny band of dedicated volunteers who do so much to keep our programs running!

Between the financial assistance that PAWS provides to families and the efforts of HART for Animals and the Garrett County Humane Society, we truly are making progress. Eligible residents can use their PAWS certificates for very low cost spay/neuter services at the HART clinic, or if they prefer they can go to any vet in the county, and PAWS will pay for about two-thirds of the cost of the spay/neuter procedure. More information is available online at www.garrettpaws.org, including how to get beautiful Christmas trees at unbelievable prices, with half the proceeds going to PAWS!

If any of your readers would like to help provide assistance to even more Garrett County families, they can send their tax-deductible donations to PAWS, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541.

Thank you all again!

Sincerely,
Tom Hertz
President, PAWS

State Weighing

of up to 7,000 feet.

Residents of western Maryland, where permits for Marcellus shale drilling have not been approved or denied by the state, can see fracking close-up by looking across the border into Pennsylvania or West Virginia.

Shimrock, who is the library director at Garrett College, said a Pennsylvania friend's water well overflowed with sludge when fracking took place nearby. Another friend told her that his family had been promised 30 years' worth of gas royalties from the well on their land, but after three years the royalties have decreased drastically.

"Unfortunately, I haven't seen a lot of positive, and [have seen] much negative, in the way of the impact that this has had on communities and on individuals who have agreed to this kind of procedure on their properties," said Shimroek, who now regrets leasing gas rights to her 50-acre farm in 2006.

In June, Gov. Martin O'Malley issued an executive order calling for a study of Marcellus shale drilling by August 2014 and creating a 14-member advisory commission to develop recommendations.

The study period makes it unlikely that Maryland will allow energy companies to drill in the Marcellus shale any time soon.

"The whole process set up by the executive order and the commission was more one to delay this activity," said Drew Cobbs, executive director of the Maryland Petroleum Council. "The length is way longer than it needs to be."

A poll commissioned by Cobbs' organization and conducted by Gonzales Research & Marketing Strategies in September found that 74 percent of Maryland voters and 70 percent of western Maryland voters favored the development of natural gas resources in western Maryland.

But whether Maryland will allow drilling is a "very open question," said Delegate Heather Mizeur, D-Montgomery, who is on the governor's commission.

"Personally, I come at it probably leaning more toward the side of I would rather there not be any drilling," she said.

Mizeur was the lead sponsor of a bill in the last legislative session that would have imposed a moratorium on fracking until the completion of a two-year study. The bill stalled in the Senate after passing the House.

Beitzel, who opposed Mizeur's bill, worries the delay will make Maryland less competitive than neighboring states with much larger shares of the Marcellus shale.

"The oil companies will be reaching their production levels that are necessary in the market in order to meet the demand. And if they do that, they're just going to bypass Maryland," he said.

Safety and Environmental Impacts Weighed

Fracking is an uneonventional gas extraction method that carries risks, such as well blowouts, fracking fluid spills, and unsafe disposal of flowback – the toxic, briny wastewater that rises to the surface. The Environmental Protection Agency recently announced it will start developing standards for the disposal of fracking wastewater.

While claims of drinking water contamination are common near fracking sites, industry officials counter that fracking takes place thousands of feet below water sources.

"We take our operations seriously, and in doing so require that our wells are constructed in such a manner that the aquifer is fully protected, as well as ensuring that everything inside the pipe stays inside the pipe," said George Stark, director of external affairs for Cabot Oil & Gas, which has active wells in Pennsylvania.

Proponents argue that natural gas is a cleaner form of energy than coal or oil and will help the United States achieve energy independence.

"We need to cut down on our reliance for foreign oil," Beitzel said. "And if you consider natural gas, when you burn natural gas, it produces 60 percent or thereabouts less [carbon dioxide] emissions than gasoline or oil-based fuel."

But the diesel-powered trucks, diesel generators, and compressor stations associated with fracking can cause significant air pollution, said Carnegie Mellon University professor Allen Robinson.

"The concerns are, what are the emissions associated with the production of the gas, which I think is often not factored in when people are giving the short sound bite, 'It's a cleaner-burning fuel than coal,'" Robinson said.

In Wyoming, for example, smog associated with shale oil and gas production has become a serious problem, he said.

The greenhouse gas footprint of fracking has attracted the attention of scientists and environmentalists. Natural gas consists mostly of methane, a potent greenhouse gas, and some methane escapes during shale gas production.

"Best practices" to address some of these concerns will be included in recommendations that O'Malley's commission is scheduled to complete by next summer.

Drillers in Maryland may be required to "flare" leaked methane, turning it into carbon dioxide, a less potent greenhouse gas, said David Vanko, a Towson University professor and chair of the commission.

"There are practices that you can undertake at the well head to basically minimize and even eliminate that leakage," Vanko said.

Wait and See for Landowners

The Maryland Department of the Environment has received eight Marcellus shale drilling permit applications, most in Garrett County.

In recent years, energy companies have also sent "landmen" to talk with landowners in western Maryland about leasing their property for Marcellus shale gas production. About 127,000 acres of land in Garrett County – almost a third of the county – have been leased since 2007.

Many of those who signed the first leases in 2006 and 2007 now feel they did not have enough information and were under compensated, said Paul Roberts, a small-business owner in Garrett County and a member of O'Malley's commission.

"Because it was so difficult to get information about how these things worked, people didn't know," Roberts said. "And so hundreds of people signed and agreed to leases that paid them $5 or $7 an acre at a time when, in Pennsylvania, a typical price was $3,000 an acre."

Shimrock was among those who agreed to receive $5 per acre per year when she signed her 5-year lease, she said.

"The people who live in my community feel that we were really, I'll say ripped off," she said. "Also we feel a little bit chagrined that we really should have known better."

Shimrock joined an organization called Citizen Shale to warn other landowners to educate themselves about fracking before signing a lease.

Garrett County resident E. Marshall Stacy said during an October Marcellus shale advisory commission meeting that landowners should

CLASS OF '56 DONATES – The Southern High School class of 1956 recently made a contribution to the SGHS Alumni Association. The donation will support a $500 scholarship that will be awarded at the Senior Awards Night in the spring. The funds were collected at the group's 55th reunion. Sam Moore, reunion chairman, and Elaine Gnegy-Roth, reunion secretary/treasurer, presented the check to Rob Sharps, president of the alumni association. Pictured from left are Sharps, Gnegy-Roth, and Moore.

Solid Waste Dept. Announces Winter Landfill Schedule

The Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling officials have announced winter hours for the Garrett County Landfill The landfill will be closed on Saturdays to commercial haulers and large residential loads. Saturday full-service hours will begin again on April 21, 2012.

Residential users, however, may continue to use the landfill from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturdays, provided that they either have a residential permit or pay the required fees.

"These winter hours reflect an adjustment based upon the amount of use on winter Saturdays in the past," said Dave Baker, department manager. "This change will result in cost savings for the citizens of Garrett County with a minimum of inconvenience."

Landfill users are also reminded that the landfill will be closed for Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov 24; for Christmas Day, Monday, Dec. 26; and for New Year's Day Monday, Jan. 2, 2012. In addition, all collection sites are closed on the actual holidays – Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's Day.

Pair Charged By NRP For Illegal Casting Of Light

The Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) announced the arrest of two persons on charges of illegal hunting practices.

NRP charged Tanner J. Ilyson, 20, Grantsville, and Katrina L. Yoder, 19, Springs, Pa, last Friday evening with casting rays of artificial light onto fields and woodlands with a weapon in possession. They were charged after NRP saw them shining a spotlight from a vehicle on Old Frostburg Road.

Officers seized a .22 caliber rifle, ammunition, spotlight, and a knife from the vehicle. A trial date of January 18 has been set in the District Court of Maryland for Garrett County.

Board Of Ed. Posts Health Curriculum

The health curriculum (preK-12) currently being considered for approval by the Garrett County Board of Education has been placed on display at the BOE office in downtown Oakland.

The BOE has invited members of the community to review and comment on the curriculum. The health curriculum will be available for review weekdays between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., now through Friday, Dec. 9.

Donna Gregory Named Lighthouse Executive Director

Donna J. Gregory was recently selected to serve as executive director of the Garrett County Lighthouse Inc.

Gregory has 20 years of experience working with Garrett County Lighthouse. Prior to joining the Lighthouse, she was a residential program manager for the Garrett County Health Department.

She joined Lighthouse in 1995 as a program manager, and in July 2000 she was promoted to Lighthouse's vice president of health care quality.

Gregory holds a bachelor of science degree in behavioral health, which she earned at Frostburg State University. She is a longtime Garrett Country resident and now lives in Oakland with her husband Harold.

MSP Seeking Info On Grantsville Burglary/Theft

Maryland State Police are seeking information on a burglary and theft that occurred at a Grantsville residence last week.

Sometime between last Friday and Saturday, unknown suspect(s) entered a garage at the Zehner Road home and stole a Stihl chainsaw and copper wire. Anyone with information is asked to contact the MSP McHenry Barrack at 301-387-1101 or 301-895-1101.

Woman Charged With Second-Degree Assault

An Oakland woman was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies Saturday afternoon after they responded to a reported disturbance at a Spring Lane residence.

Crystal Dawn Noland, 42, reportedly had assaulted her domestic partner. She was charged with second-degree assault and transported to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

WEPCO DONATES TO WARM THE CHILDREN – As has become an annual tradition, the staff at the Oakland WEPCO Credit Union made a significant donation to Warm the Children through the weekly "casual Fridays" effort. Each week, staff members who wish to wear casual clothing on Friday donate money to do so, and that money is divided into donations to Warm the Children and the Relay for Life. Pictured above right is staff member Susan McFadden as she presents a $500 check to Mary McEwen of Warm the Children. "It's wonderful that our community members and businesses remember our campaign throughout the year this way," McEwen said. "The donation is greatly appreciated, and will be used exclusively to purchase new, warm winter clothing and footwear for area children in need."

DAVID C. MOON

Rev. David Charles Moon, 74, Oakland died Sunday, Nov. 20, 2011, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, surrounded by his family.

Born Jan. 24, 1937, in Oakland, he was a son of the late Lester Clarence and Goldie Sylvesta (Judy) Moon. He was also preceded in death by one brother, Edward G. Moon, in 1993.

Rev. Moon was a farmer and a carpenter. He was a partner in Moon Brothers and Sons Builders and later was the owner of Moon Valley Custom Cabinetry. He was a licensed and ordained minister in the West Marva District of the Church of the Brethren, where he pastored numerous churches.

He most recently served the Fairview Church of the Brethren, where he had pastored for the last 42 years. In 2009 he celebrated 50 years in the ministry. He also served the West Marva District as a district board member and board chairman, and was the moderator for the West Marva District twice.

He was a member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad for 23 years and has served as past chief, president, board member, and chaplain. He was instrumental in the design and building of the new rescue squad hall on Rt. 135 in Mtn. Lake Park.

David never met a stranger, and he dedicated his life to helping people. He was "Uncle David" or "Pap" to hundreds of people and in 2004 was voted Garrett County's "Most Beautiful Person."

He is survived by his wife of 40 years, Leora J. (Bonner) Teter Moon, Oakland; two sons, David W. Teter and wife Maggie, Loch Lynn, and Robert K. Teter and wife Donna, Oakland, five grandchildren, Andrew D. Teter and wife Darla, Michelle D. Ross and husband Andrew, Kimberly A. Wolf and husband Nick, Bryan K. Teter and wife Danielle, and Jennifer L. Teter; five great-grandchildren; and numerous nieces and nephews.

Friends were received at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, Oakland.

A service was conducted at Fairview Church of the Brethren on Wednesday, Nov. 23, with the Rev. Don Matthews officiating.

Interment followed in Eglon Cemetery.

Expressions of sympathy may be directed to the Fairview Church Memorial Fund or to Leora Moon to help defray the cost of medical expenses.

Newman Funeral Home, Oakland, was in charge of arrangements.

SHEILA A. ETOWSKI-JAVED

Sheila Anne Etowski-Javed, 60, Oakland, died on Nov. 1, 2011, after a long battle with liver and kidney disease.

Born on Dec. 27, 1950, Sheila was a daughter of the late Helen Loughrie and William Etowski and was baptized at St. Dominic Roman Catholic Church on Jan. 21, 1951.

Sheila was preceded in death by her only sibling, Jennifer, and is survived by Jennifer's son, James Gedling of Silver Spring. Sheila had no children, but she was a mother to many, including dozens of animals throughout her life. Her beloved cat Rosa Bird was adopted by a friend prior to Sheila's death. Sheila was married on March 23, 2004, to Muhammad Islam Javed.

Sheila was a graduate of Notre Dame Preparatory School, Baltimore, and West Virginia Wesleyan College.

She was a woman of many talents and interests, and lived her life as a free spirit. Her eclectic resume included probation officer for the state of Maryland, live-in counselor for autistic adults, pet adoption counselor for the Montgomery County Humane Society, and instructor with Montgomery County Public Schools. Sheila was a great lover of cats and volunteered at her friend's cat rescue.

She wrote poetry and was an accomplished guitarist. She was particularly fond of folk music. Sheila founded and had led a female motorcycle club, the Amazons. She was a proud member of MENSA and Alcoholics Anonymous, and had been sober for many years. One of her favorite activities was conversation with friends or strangers. She was a very spiritual person, and loved reading books with an underlying message, even children's books.

She was a lifelong Catholic and member of the Catholic Daughters of Maryland, Court Oakland #2209. She was also a parishioner and member of Breaking Open the Word, a Bible study group of St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Church, Oakland.

Sheila is fondly remembered and sadly missed by her friends. She donated her body to the State Anatomy Board.

A Memorial Mass will celebrated for her on Saturday, Dec. 3, at 10:30 a.m. by Rev. Fr. Donald Parson at St. Peter the Apostle Church.

SHIRLEY E. HAHN

Shirley Elizabeth Hahn, 77, Deep Creek Lake, passed away on Sunday, Nov. 20, 2011, at Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va.

Born on Sept. 1, 1934, in Baltimore, Shirley was the daughter of Carlton and Ida Aist.

Shirley grew up in Baltimore and lived in the Baltimore area until relocating in 1971 with her husband to Somerset, Pa., and later relocated to Boca Raton, Fla., in 1977. Deep Creek Lake became a very important part of her life in 1966, when she and her husband designed and built a home there, where they have owned a home since.

Shirley was accomplished at designing the custom homes she and her husband built, was an excellent seamstress, supported her husband in his real estate business, loved her family dearly, was a big baseball fan, and thoroughly enjoyed and loved her pets. She also loved to travel, her favorite destination being Disney World.

She is survived by her beloved husband of 57 years, Carroll I. Hahn; one sister, Janet Horan, Woodstock; and four daughters, Susan Carol Thompson, Solomons, Karen Lynn Brant, Boynton Beach, Fla., Sandra LaRee Pingatore, Boca Raton, and Allyson Michelle Hahn, Deep Creek Lake. Shirley was also blessed with five grandchildren, Conner Michael Thompson, Garett Craig Brant, Cassidy Elizabeth Brant, LaRee Nicolette Pingatore, Austin Mark Pingatore; and one great-grandchild, Mason Edward Brant-Stout.

Friends will be received at Oak Park Church of the Brethren, 110 Church Lane, Oakland, on Saturday, Nov. 26, from 11 a.m. to noon, at which time a service will be conducted, with Carl Fike officiating.

Interment will follow at Garrett County Memorial Gardens, Oakland.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Garrett County, P.O. Box 271, Oakland, MD 21550.

David A. Burdock Funeral Home, Oakland, is in charge of arrangements.

Condolences may be made to the family at www.burdockfuneralhome.com.

AURORA/EGLON NEWS

COMMUNITY DINNER

A community dinner will be sponsored by Aurora Elementary School on Thursday, Dec. 1, from 5 to 7 p.m. A roast beef meal with trimmings will be served at no charge to those attending. Entertainment will be provided by several local groups. The school community is invited.

OPEN HOUSE

The Aurora Area Historical Society will hold an open house at the restored History House, Aurora, from 4 to 7 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 9. An additional 50 Aurora Alumni books have been printed and are available for $21.20. Those interested in purchasing one should contact Jo-Ann Helton at 304-735-5832. There are many gifts suitable for Christmas, including a large selection of pottery with Eglon, Aurora, Amboy, and Horse Shoe Run on them.

FOOD PANTRY

Residents are encouraged to donate to a local food pantry. Non-perishable items can be donated to the Terra Alta or Rowlesburg food pantries. Cleaners, diapers, towels, and tissues are also accepted.

SANTA DAY AT STEMPLE RIDGE

The Young Adults of Stemple Ridge Church are sponsoring a Santa Day on Saturday, Dec. 3, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at no charge for participants. Clothes for all ages, a hot meal, and prepared baskets of other needed items will be offered to those interested. Those who have a family in need should contact Kevin Stemple at 304-671-3918.

AURORA CEOS MEETS

Wilda Harsh was hostess for the Nov. 15 meeting of the Aurora Community Education Outreach Service Club. There were seven mebers in attendance. President Opal Myers opened the meeting by reading "Eight Gifts That Don't Cost a Cent." Those gifts are listening, laughter, written notes, compliments, favoring solitude, cheerful disposition, affection, and a caring attitude. The program, "What is Cross-stitch?" was led by Opal. It is a form of embroidery that can be counted or stamped stitching by marking X's on the pattern. Traditionally, cross-stitch was used to embellish items like dishcloths, household linens, pillow cases, and doilies. Opal displayed a picture on which she had used counted cross-stitch.

All committee reports are to be completed and sent to the county chairpersons no later than Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Santa Tree children were selected by several members. Those gifts are to be returned to Opal by Friday, Dec. 9.

The Christmas dinner will be held at Donna Jean's Restaurant on Friday, Dec. 9, at 6 p.m. Discussion was held to decide where the group might help others during the holiday season. A decision will be made at the dinner.

The NVON is sponsoring a program to help obtain clean, usable water in other countries, and the local CEOS will chance a quilt to aid in this project.

The health motivator brought a good project to the group – Keep a grateful journal. Members were advised to think about life and be grateful for it. A list of lessons for next year was presented to the group. Vice president Ressie Conrad advised the group to spend their spare time exercising. She added that it prevents stress.

The next regular meeting will be held in the new year. The club and this report's writer, Dee Douglas, extend a Merry Christmas to all.

DEATHS

Wayne Edward Bonner, 74, Akron, Ohio, died on Wednesday, Oct. 26, 2011, as a result of cancer.

Rev. David Moon passed away on Sunday, Nov. 20, 2011, at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland. He had been involved with various types of ministry and was pastor of Fairview Church of the Brethren.

Full obituaries for both Mr. Bonner and Rev. Moon can be found in this week's A-section.

PERSONAL

Several members of Maple Spring Church of the Brethren went to Elkins on Sunday for the ordination services of both Mark and LaDeana Teets, who are serving the Elkins Church of the Brethren.

Ardis "Sandy" Teets, Eglon, remains a patient at GCMH, where she is still in therapy since her knee replacement surgery. She is expected to return home next week.

Melissa Frantz continues her recuperation at her Severn, Md., home following head surgery.

In his work this past week, Tony Lewis, Eglon, was bitten by a dog, which resulted in rabies shots.

Cathy Harsh has been visiting with her son, Tim Blossom, in Hawaii, and is expected back home Saturday.

A carry-in dinner at Maple Spring Church of the Brethren this past Sunday was well attended. Plenty of food was available.

Terra Alta VFW To Host Brad And Jessie Fundraiser

A fundraiser at the Terra Alta VFW is planned for Saturday, Dec. 3, beginning at 6 p.m. The event has been organized to benefit Brad and Jessie Metheny, who were recently injured in an automobile accident.

Three bands – G3 from Annapolis, The Reign from Oakland, and Paul Berger from Kingwood – will play at the event. GNR Productions will DJ before and after the bands perform. There will be $10 donations collected at the door and a cash bar.

Brad Metheny's back was broken in the incident, and he is currently recovering from surgery. Jessie Metheny sustained multiple injuries for which she has undergone surgery. She is now under the care of Heathsouth Mountain View Regional Rehabilitation Hospital.

According to a spokesperson, the Methenys are well known to people frequenting Alpine Lake Resort. Brad Metheny is head chef at Alpine Lake and Jessie is a bar manager.

Information about Brad and Jessie Metheny and the fundraiser may be found at bradandjessie.wordpress.com, as well as on Facebook.

Those unable to attend the event may make a donation at any Clear Mountain Bank location, or send a check to Clear Mountain Bank, 1101 East State Ave., P.O. Box 65, Terra Alta WV, 26764.

by Trevor Spaid, reporter

Haley Rocha, president of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club, called the Nov. 14 meeting of the annual achievement program to order by welcoming all the members, families, and guests. The meeting was held in the basement of the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren. Following the pledges led by Danielle Blamble, the executive committee (club officers) gave devotions.

Linda Lewis, club leader, installed the newly elected officers: president Haley Rocha, vice president Wesley Spaid, secretary Danielle Blamble, treasurer Jonathon Blamble, reporter Trevor Spaid, recreation leaders Sydnee Vandevender and Tyler Pomeroy, and song leader Savannah Arnett.

The yearly program sheet was handed out to all families and explained by Linda Lewis. Some corrections were noted.

Trevor Spaid, former club secretary, recognized members who had perfect and faithful attendance for this past year. Trevor Spaid was the only member who attended all meetings. Savannah, Danielle, Jonathon, Tyler, Haley, Jesse Schalker, Brooke Uphold, Nathan Davis, and Sydnee each missed no more than two meetings.

Jackie Blamble, assistant leader, recognized Savannah Arnett as our Outstanding Younger Member. She completed three projects and participated in numerous club activities, was the song leader, and attended county camp. Haley Rocha was chosen as our Outstanding Older Member. Haley served as president, teen leader, attended county and state camps, and participated in

4-H Club News

GARRETT HOOF PRINTS
by Brianna LeMay

The Garrett Hoof Prints 4-H Club met Nov. 14 at the State Police Barrack for its monthly meeting. Kaitlynn Hanek, club president, called the meeting to order. There were eight members present and one guest. The club treasurer, Christine Welch, gave the treasurer's report.

Club members discussed having a Christmas meeting next month. Each member is to bring a covered dish and a present for a dinner and gift exchange.

Officers for 2012 will be elected at this meeting, which is set for Sunday, Dec. 18, at 5 p.m. at Carrie Zbel's house.

Horse bowl teams were discussed. The Junior and Intermediate teams began practice on Nov. 7. The Senior team will start later this week. Members talked about spreading the word that 4-H members from other clubs were welcome to be in Horse Bowl.

Members were reminded that record books are due at the January meeting and that officer books are due at the February meeting. The members are to be thinking of ideas and service projects for next year.

Certificates were given to those who participated in the state photo and poster contest – Danielle, Jonathon, Matthew Rinker, Haley, Jesse Schalker, and Trevor and Wesley Spaid.

Hope, Love, and Charity were recognized as our club's "Friend of 4-H." Our club's secretary's and treasurer's books each received blue ribbons given to Trevor Spaid and Danielle for their efforts. The club received a white ribbon at County 4-H Achievement.

The club's lamb dressing team won third place at the Buckwheat Festival. Tyler Pomeroy's steer was Grand Champion and his feeder calf won Grand Champion county bred. Sierra Evans' Six Easy Bites Cookie was Best of Show, and Sydnee's sewing project exhibit was chosen to be in the county display for National 4-H Week. Posters, photos, and Buckwheat Festival project exhibits were displayed for all to view.

This year's 4-H's were awarded to Jonathon Blamble, Head; Wesley Spaid, Heart; Trevor Spaid, Hand; and Jesse Schalker, Health. Assistant, activity, and project leaders were recognized for all their valued help. Elaine Roth, retired co-organizational leader, was recognized for over 30 years of service to the club. Jackie Blamble received her five-year leader certificate and pin.

Project folders were given out to members. Linda emphasized reading and following project instructions, and looking at the score sheet when filling out projects this year.

Mark Utterback recognized our Cloverbud members Quin Utterback and Trey Evans.

Savannah Arnett recognized new members Willie Bachtel, Whitney Pomeroy, Sara Singer, and Ariana Villar with "I Just Joined 4-H" pins.

Members enjoyed recreation, songs, door prizes and refreshments following the meeting.

would permanently scar Garrett County's landscape and jeopardize its tourism market.

"It's only going to be 10 or 15 years of gas, so why sacrifice our entire economic future ... for just a little bit of gas?" he said.

Pennsylvania State University geologist Terry Engelder, a fracking advocate, said the process is economically sound and environmentally safe if natural gas companies take precautions against accidents, such as gas spills or methane leaks.

"At the end of the day, it is the positive impacts that natural gas presents globally — not just in the U.S. — that really make this a very, very important source of energy," Engelder said. "Maryland is going to have to weigh the negative with the positive.... It's a matter of mankind just coming to balance between the risks and the rewards."

Residents near natural gas development operations blame the drilling process for various health problems, such as headaches, burning eyes, breathing problems, and throat irritation. But it's hard to prove that fracking is at fault, said University of Colorado scientist Lisa McKenzie, who conducted a study on potential effects of natural gas drilling in Garfield County, Colo.

"Unfortunately, we don't have the data to say that that was caused by natural gas development," McKenzie said. "These residents were associating it, but we don't have the scientific data to back that up."

McKenzie's study was conducted prior to drilling, and she focused on health problems tied to air emissions around natural gas development sites. She found that residents near wells may have slightly higher risks of both cancer and non-cancerous conditions compared to the risks of those living farther from gas wells.

Problems aren't limited to people in proximity to fracking pads, however. Environmentalists and others have raised concerns about the effect on drinking water, stream and groundwater quality, as well as concerns related to heavy truck traffic, noise, and loss of tourism.

EPA chief Lisa Jackson has said there is no proof linking fracking to water contamination.

"I'm not aware of any proven case where the fracking process itself has affected water, although there are investigations ongoing," Jackson said during a U.S. House Oversight Committee hearing in May.

The EPA is conducting a study of fracking's effect on drinking water and will give a preliminary assessment next year.

"There's a whole range of potential impacts that are being explored in other states, and I think it's important for us to move beyond the claims that industry has made — such as there's never been a proven instance of groundwater or aquifer contamination by hydrofracturing," said Paul Roberts, a citizen representative on Maryland's fracking

OTT CHRISTMAS MARKET TO FEATURE LIVE MUSIC – Marsh Mountain Consort (MMC), pictured above, will open Our Town Theatre's 5th annual Christmas Market on Saturday, Dec. 3, at 10 a.m., at St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall in Oakland. MMC has performed Renaissance music in Garrett County since 1979. They will perform seasonal quartets on a range of traditional recorders. Pictured from left are MMC members Marci McClive, Tom Johnson, Ruth Selb, and Jean Myers. Morbheanna, the group shown below, was formed in 2009 to bring Scottish and Irish music on bagpipes and drums indoors. The group will perform after MMC. Clockwise from the back are Annie Bristow, Kenny Braitman, and Marci McClive, who are the pipers in the group, playing traditional tunes on Gibson Fireside smallpipes. Lynn McClive Farnsworth, at left, provides percussion. Additional live music throughout the day will feature performers Lynn Grimm on hammered dulcimer and guitarist Ron Rodgers playing traditional folk songs. The annual Christmas Market has two purposes: to raise funds for the workings and maintenance of OTT's Backstage, the organization's scenery, costume, and prop shop located along Center Street, and to support a number of local artists. A wide range of unique items will be available for sale from local glass artists, photographers, fabric artisans, weavers, painters, and others. There will also be baked goods, chili, and Fair Trade coffee and chocolate.

Holiday Exhibit To Be Displayed At Gallery Shop

The Garrett County Arts Council has announced a special exhibit at the Gallery Shop, located at 206 E. Alder Street in downtown Oakland. The collection of work by numerous Gallery Shop artists will feature a kitchen theme. The exhibit will be on display in the Backroom Gallery from Dec. 5 through mid-January. All pieces in the exhibit are for sale.

Original paintings in watercolor, oil, and acrylic, as well as photographs, feature fruits and vegetables. Kitchen gadgets such as wooden cutting boards, rolling pins, and pepper mills will be available. Art pieces made from antique silverware, woven rugs, and more unique handmade items will be part of the exhibit.

As part of Christmas on Alder Street, the arts council will host a reception and open house on Friday, Dec. 9, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Gallery Shop. Council members and the public are invited.

Beginning Nov. 28, shoppers at the Gallery Shop will have the opportunity to register for a weekly door prize. Each Friday prior to Christmas, a $20 gift certificate will be given away. This certificate can be used toward the purchase of any item from one of over 150 artists at the Gallery Shop anytime between now and June 30, 2012. No purchase is necessary to enter the drawing.

Garrett County Arts Council is a non-profit organization that supports numerous arts projects and organizations throughout Garrett County. GCAC encourages all readers to shop locally and support independent artists, designers, and crafters this holiday season. For more information, persons may visit www.garrettarts.com or call 301-334-6580.

GCC Band To Present Holiday Concert Dec. 4

"Our Christmas Gift to You" is the name selected for the annual holiday concert of the Garrett Community Concert Band, which is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 4, at 2:30 p.m. in the Garrett College auditorium.

According to Moe Turrentine, the program consists of a wide variety of holiday favorites, with a touch of international flavor. Chief Master Sgt. Patricia Fanara Wolfe, a professional soprano retired from the United States Air Force Singing Sergeants, will be a guest vocalist. (See separate story.)

The program will open with the playing of Rick Kirby's "American Fanfare," and be followed by a piece titled "Christmas Variants," the theme of which is the well-known hymn "O Come, O Come, Emmanuel."

Up next will be a unique rendition of the traditional "Greensleeves," arranged by Alfred Reed, followed by "Habanera" from Bizet's opera Carmen, sung by Ms. Wolfe. Several popular carols comprise the next number, titled "Christmas Day," and the first half of the program will close with "Hanukkah Festival."

The second half will open with the classic march "The Boys of the Old Brigade," which will be followed by "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," narrated by GCC Band master of ceremonies Stan Grimm.

Presented next will be "He Is Born," which is the classic French carol "Il est Ne le Devin Enfant," followed by two more vocal selections by Ms. Wolfe, "White Christmas" and "The Christmas Song" ("Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire").

The band will then "span the Atlantic" and present "Russian Christmas Music" by Alfred Reed, and close the program with a Leroy Anderson piece titled "A Christmas Festival."

Tickets for the concert, which are available at the Garrett County Arts Council Gallery in Oakland, as well as at the door, cost $8 for adults and $2 for students, with children under age 6 admitted free.

During intermission, as well as before and after the concert, the band will be selling a variety of musical gift items which may help shoppers satisfy their holiday gift lists, especially for friends and family members who are "musically inclined." Earrings, socks, ties, scarves, coffee mugs, and tree ornaments are among the items that will be available for purchase.

The Garrett Community Concert Band is a non-profit organization. New members are always welcome.

STUDENT DANCE PROGRAM UNDER WAY – Dancing Classrooms Western Maryland is currently conducting its dancing program for all fifth grade students at Grantsville Elementary School. The program is being led by Jennifer Christophel, teaching artist and executive director. The 10-week, 20-session program is scheduled to conclude with a culminating event to be held early February. That event will showcase all ballroom and Latin dances, social skills, and character development learned by students throughout the dancing sessions. This is the first year that Grantsville Elementary has hosted the program.

Our Town Theatre Slates Moon Over Buffalo Auditions

Our Town Theatre will present the comedy Moon Over Buffalo next February, and will hold auditions for the show next week. Persons interested in auditioning may do so on Monday, Nov. 28, or Tuesday, Nov. 29, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the basement of the theatre, which is located along Center Street in Oakland. Persons may also audition by appointment.

The play, which was written by Ken Ludwig, has eight speaking parts and some walk-on roles. The character list is as follows: four women (one in her 60s to 70s; one in her 50s, and two in their 20s to 30s) and four men (two in their 50s and two in their 30s).

The plot involves Charlotte and George Hay, an acting couple who are on tour in Buffalo in 1953 with a repertory including Cyrano de Bergerac and Noel Coward's

County Native Callahan Finding Singing Success

Kristin Callahan, a native of Garrett County and 1999 graduate of Northern High School, has released one jazz album and is working on her second. Callahan is a jazz singer who is garnering positive reviews. She will sing locally on Dec. 4 at Will O' the Wisp Four Seasons Restaurant from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Joining her will be jazz pianist Vince Evans.

Callahan resides in Baltimore, and is the daughter of Garrett Countian Deborah DeWitt. She has been singing most of her life, beginning with learning and singing gospel songs in her church and in talent shows across the region. She won a number of area vocal competitions. At 18, she was awarded a scholarship to attend the Berklee College of Music summer program, where she began honing her style that today ranges from blues to R&B and jazz.

"Her experiences there had a profound impact on her direction in life, confirming music and art as her passion," wrote Ben Yoder, who penned a biography of Callahan for her web site.

The young singer released her first album one year ago. It is titled A New Love. With her on the album are musicians Evans on piano, Kenny Rittenhouse on trumpet, and Donato Soveiro on guitar.

The album is available at cdbaby.com, Amazon.com, and iTunes. Persons can hear Callahan on several of the songs by going to her MySpace page at www.myspace.com/kristincallahanvocalist and clicking on the links to the works.

She has performed often with blues guitarist Dennis Merrill of Grantsville at Cornish Manor and at private events. After relocating to Baltimore, she began working with work with Aligning Minds, an electronic music duo from the Washington, D.C., area. It was with Aligning Minds that the single "Swollen Sovereign" on the label Aleph Zero was released. Later a single with Austrian producer STJ titled "Around My Head" came out.

She is currently working on her second jazz album, as well as studying jazz piano and vocals with Evans. She performs regularly at Baltimore clubs and cafes. In addition to her local appearance in December, she is slated to perform at Bobby's Jazz Club, Joe Squared, Bread and Circuses, and the Pure Wine Cafe, all in Baltimore.

Reviewer Marc Avon Evans said he purchased her album after hearing her at a Baltimore venue.

"Her voice is beautiful and calming. Her approach to ballads is as perfect as I've heard. A New Love is a perfectly executed collection of jazz standards," Evans wrote. "Her vocals and the piano arrangements, with just a hint of guitar and trumpet, are simply beautiful. A must-have for the jazz collector. It was amazing to have heard her live in an intimate setting."

Private Lives.

"Fate has given these thespians one more shot at starring roles in the movie The Scarlet Pimpernel, and film director Frank Capra himself is en route to Buffalo to catch their matinee performance," said Jane Avery of OTT. "Will Charlotte appear or run off with their agent? Will George be sober enough to emote? Will Capra see both repertory shows or a disturbing mixture of the two? Hilarious misunderstandings ensue."

With the play slated for February, rehearsals during December will be sporadic depending on the schedules of the cast, Avery noted. Questions pertaining to the production should be directed to her at 301-334-5640, ext. 3.

Butler Nets 31 Points To Power Lakers To Win Over Chesapeake

Over 200 points were scored in a Maryland JUCO game played last night at Garrett College, where the host Lakers defeated Chesapeake, 107-99, behind a 31-point effort by Antonio Butler.

The win evened the Lakers' conference record at 1-1 and their overall mark at 3-3.

The Lakers trailed by as many as 20 points in the first half, and were down by seven, 48-41, at intermission, but came back to out-score the Skipjacks in the second half, 66-56.

"We had trouble with their quickness in the first half," said Laker coach Dennis Gibson. "So we went to a zone trap in the second half, and it opened things up for us offensively."

Butler hit a dozen field goals and made good on 7 of 9 free throws for his total. Teammate Armond Perez, a 6-7 sophomore, recorded 20 points and seven rebounds, while Larry Mike netted 19 points and dished out seven assists.

"They had trouble stopping Antonio," said Gibson, "and Larry played his best game of the season."

Mike, a 5-10 sophomore, scored 15 of his total in the second half.

Also reaching double figures in scoring for the Lakers was 6-6 freshman Guila Panzo, who recorded 13 points and pulled down seven rebounds. Theo Dubuche just missed double figures, as he contributed nine points, all from three-point range.

The Lakers comitted only 13 turnovers in the fast-paced contest.

Leading the Skipjacks, who fell to 4-2 overall and 1-1 in the conference, was led by Rocky Harris, who netted 21 points. DeShawn Worels finished with 17, Quinton Duncan scored 16, and Sam Sanders hit 15 points.

After a Thanksgiving break, the Lakers will return to action next Wednesday when they host Southern Maryland in a 7 p.m. contest.

Wolf To Perform

with the GCC Band will be the well-known "Habanera" from Carmen.

Chief Master Sgt. Wolfe also sang for U.S. presidents and vice presidents. Known as Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger's "singer of choice," she often sang for then Joint Chiefs Chairman Gen. Colin Powell when he would host foreign counterparts.

Of particular note was her performance as solo vocalist at the first September 11 memorial at the Pentagon before President George W. Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, an audience numbering tens of thousands, and a live global television audience. She was also selected by the family of the late President Ronald Reagan to perform "America, the Beautiful" for the Capitol Rotunda memorial service for the late president.

Ms. Wolfe retired from active duty in August 2006. She and her husband Gary, retired trumpeter with the U.S. Navy Band, are frequent visitors to Garrett County.

More details about the Dec. 4 concert by the GCC Band can be found on the arts page (A-10).

Local Student Athlete Honored At D&E College

Alex Barnard was honored along with five other senior volleyball players during Davis & Elkins Senior Day at the team's match against West Virginia Wesleyan College on October 29.

The daughter of Paul and Ellen Barnard of Bloomington, Barnard is majoring in elementary education.

Related to the Presbyterian Church (USA), Davis & Elkins College is located in Elkins, W.Va. The college's athletic program includes baseball, basketball, cross country, golf, soccer, softball, swimming, tennis, and volleyball.

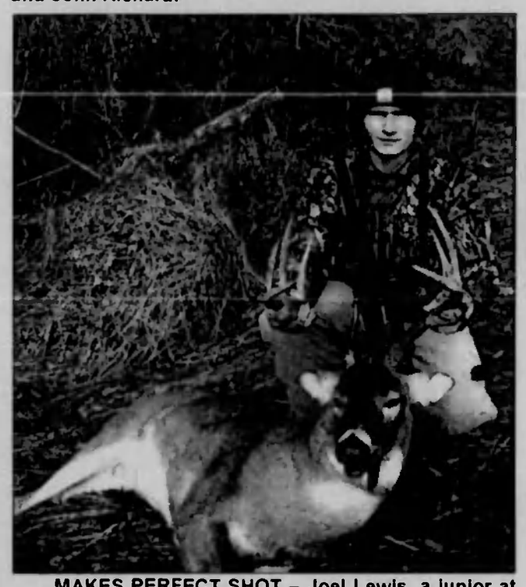
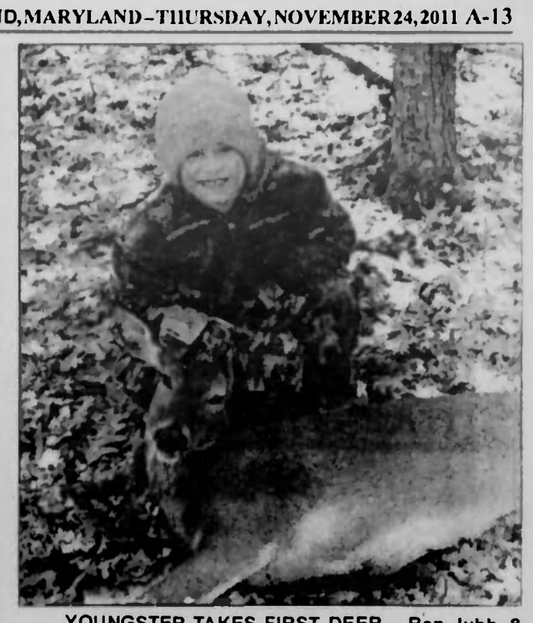
BAGS BUCK – Adam Kisner, an eighth grade student at Northern Middle School, killed this 8-point buck near Friendsville during recent Youth Hunt Days.

FIRST BUCK – Tyson Cheshire, 10, of Oakland bagged his first buck, this 4-point, on Junior Hunt Day, while hunting on private property in Garrett County. Tyson is the son of Angle Chapman and Ray Cheshire Sr. His grandparents John and Kathy Finch accompanied him.

YOUNGSTER DOWNS FIRST DEER – Ten-year-old Brandon Weaver took this 8-point while hunting with his father during Junior Hunt Day. The kill marked Brandon's first successful hunt. He is a fifth grader at Dennett Road Elementary and the son of Jennifer Weaver and John Richard.



MAKES PERFECT SHOT – Joel Lewis, a junior at Northern High School, shot this 212 pound 10-pointer during Junior Hunt Days while hunting with his friend Garrett Hoffman, a junior at Southern High School, and Garrett's father, John Hoffman. Joel made a perfect shot at 200 yards, according to a family spokesperson.



YOUNGSTER TAKES FIRST DEER – Ben Jubb, 8, took his first deer early Saturday morning during the recent Junior Deer Hunt Day. Ben is a third grader at Broad Ford Elementary. He made his kill while hunting with his father on a friend's property. Ben's parents are Jim and Dawn Jubb of Oakland.

11-YEAR-OLD BRINGS DOWN 6-POINT – Michael Greene, 11, was successful during the Maryland Youth Hunt last weekend, bagging this 6-point. Michael is a student at Southern Middle School, and the son of Michael and Joanne Greene. He hunted on private property in Swanton.

Natural Resources Police Give Safety Advice To Hunters

The Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) encourages hunters to put safety first as the 2011 firearm deer season opens this Saturday, Nov. 26, the day with the greatest concentration of hunters afield.

"Tree-stand incidents account for most hunting accidents," said NRP superintendent Col. George F. Johnson IV. "Using the proper safety equipment is an essential component in staying safe while afield."

Johnson said that all hunters should use a full-body safety harness that keeps the hunter tethered to the tree and prevents a fall to the ground. NRP reminds hunters to inspect their safety equipment prior to use, and replace any worn or broken pieces. The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR)

PECK BROTHERS BAG ONE EACH – Colton and Justin Peck, brothers, above and below respectively, were both successful over the Maryland Youth Hunt weekend, with big brother Colton, 14, bringing down a 4-point, and little brother Justin, 13, hauling in an 8-point. Their dad Jeff said Colton was fine with his younger sibling hauling in the larger deer, and that the boys had a good time hunting together on family property. Their mom is Lori Peck. Colton is a student at Southern High, and Justin is at Southern Middle.

BAGS NICE DOE – Matthew Martin, 13, Grantsville, was hunting with his dad Heath when he shot this nice doe on private land near his home. He used his 260 Remington with his own handloaded ammo for a one-shot kill.

BAGS 8-POINT – Twelve-year-old Devon Rounds bagged his first deer, an 8-point buck, with a 6 mm while hunting with his dad, Blaine Wilt, on the family farm in Bittinger. Devon is a seventh grader at Northern Middle School and the son of Blaine and Jeannie Wilt, Bittinger, and Rusty Rounds, Oakland.

BAGS DOE – Ten-year-old Marlee Sweltzer shot this doe during Junior Hunt Days. Marlee is the daughter of Heather and Michael Michaels, Swanton, and is in the fifth grade at Broad Ford Elementary School.

JUNIOR HUNT DAY SUCCESS – Twelve-year-old Anthony Hankins Jr. took this 6-point buck on the recent Junior Hunt Day. The event marked his first hunt and first deer ever.

Safety Advice

has produced a video which demonstrates how to use a tree stand and full-body safety harness that can be viewed via the Maryland DNR web site.

Because the improper use of firearms is another common cause of accidents, hunters are urged to inspect, be familiar with, and practice with the weapon that is to be used prior to the start of the hunt.

When handling a firearm, hunters should always follow two basic rules.

•Treat every gun as if it is loaded and never point the firearm at anything unless intending to shoot.

•Positively identify the intended target and make sure the area beyond is devoid of other hunters or property before the trigger is pulled.

Before hunting, all hunters should be familiar with the following laws and regulations before they go hunting:

•Hunters must obtain and possess a hunting license while hunting.

•A course in firearms and hunter safety is required for those who did not hunt prior to July 1, 1977.

•Hunters must possess written permission from landowners before hunting on private property

•Hunters and companions must wear a fluorescent cap or outer garment that contains 250 square inches of fluorescent orange color.

•Possessing loaded weapons in a vehicle is prohibited. This includes ammunition in the magazine or chamber

•It is illegal to shoot or hunt from or across a roadway.

•Hunting within 150 yards of a residence, camp, or other building is prohibited without advance permission of the owner or occupant.

•Before removing the deer from the location of the kill, a field tag must be filled out and attached to the deer. It must be recorded on the hunter's Big Game Harvest Record.

•Hunters must check in the deer within 24 hours of field tagging to the Department of Natural Resources via the Internet at www.gamecheck.dnr.state.md.us, or the call the Big Game Registration phone line at 1-888-800-0120. The PATIENCE REWARDED – After waiting 12 hours in the woods, 10-year-old Nathan Bender, fifth grader at Kitzmiller Elementary, tagged this buck on Junior Hunt Day. Nathan spent the day passing up does under the guidance of his grandfather, Robert "Pap" Harvey, before taking the 8-point, his second deer ever. The kill was made on the family farm located near Kitzmiller.

NINTH-GRADER BAGS 3-POINT – Megan Sherbin was successful over the Youth Hunt weekend, shooting this 3-point buck on Sunday, Nov. 13. She is 14 and in the ninth grade at Southern High School. She was hunting on family property. She is the daughter of Heather Sherbin and Jimmy Sherbin, both of the Deep Creek Lake area.

FIRST DEER TAKEN – Michael Blamble, 12, of Deer Park shot his first deer, this 5-point stag, during the recent Junior Hunt Day he spent with his father. The seventh grader is a student at Southern Middle School. He is the son of John and Robin Blamble.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

DECEMBER SUN – As December begins, the sun appears in front of the stars of Ophiuchus, moving a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. In the early afternoon of Dec. 18, the sun enters Sagittarius, where it remains until Jan. 19. Both of these star groups are nearly lost in the sun's glare in December. The star group Capricornus is to the east of Sagittarius, so it sets after the sun, appearing low in the southwestern dusk. The star group Libra, to the west of Ophiuchus, rises before the sun and is visible low in the southeastern dawn. In early December, sunrises in Garrett County are at about 7:20 a.m., while sunsets are at about 4:55 p.m.(9.6 hours of daylight). Winter begins just after midnight on Dec. 22, when the sun rises farthest south (of east), has its lowest mid-day height and sets farthest south (of west). This is the day of the least sunlight for the year, lasting only 9.4 hours. Around the end of December, Garrett County's sunrises are at about 7:38 a.m. and sunsets occur at about 5:05 p.m. (9.45 hours of daylight). So during December, the stars are last seen at around 6:30 a.m.(early dawn) and then reappear at about 6 p.m.(late dusk).

DECEMBER MOON – December starts with the moon appearing almost half-full in the southwestern evening sky. On Dec. 2, the evening moon appears half-full (like a tilted D). Along the straight or left edge of the moon, the sun there is rising, lighting up the crater rims and mountain ranges. The moon appears above the bright planet Jupiter on Dec. 6. On Dec. 9, the moon appears near Aldebaran, the star marking the eye of Taurus. The moon is full on the evening of Dec. 10, appearing between the bright star Capella and the star group Orion. This is the Moon Before Yule, a full moon which has a long and high track across the night sky. On Dec. 16, a nearly half-full moon appears near the planet Mars in the last hour of the evening. On Dec. 18, the moon appears half full in the southern dawn moon. At dawn on Dec. 20, the moon appears near the planet Saturn in the southeast. In the dawns of Dec. 22 and 23, the crescent moon appears near the planet Mercury; the moon is the right of Mercury on Dec. 22 and to the left of Dec. 23. This lineup of the moon with Mercury coincides with Mercury's greatest angle from the sun. On Dec. 24, the moon swings from the morning side (to the west) of the sun to the evening side (to the east) of the sun. On Dec. 26, the crescent moon appears low in the 5:45 p.m. southwestern dusk. To the left of the moon on that evening is the brilliant planet Venus. On Dec. 27, the moon appears above Venus. On New Year's Eve, the moon appears nearly half-full in the southwestern evening sky among the stars of Pisces.

DECEMBER PLANETS – The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. Of the five, Mercury is usually the most difficult to see, at a low angle to the sun and seen very close to the horizon. Mercury can be seen very low in the southeastern dusk from Dec. 8 on, rising more than an hour ahead of the sun. The brilliant planet Venus blossoms in December as its setting time increases from 90 minutes after sunset in early December (about 6:40 p.m) to 2.5 hours after sunset in late December (about 7:30 p.m.). Jupiter is easily seen in the evening sky, starting well up in the southeast in the dusk and peaking in the south in the mid-evening and setting several hours after midnight. In early December, Mars rises in the east just before midnight; at the end of December, Mars is rising about 10:40 p.m. In December, Saturn is a southeastern dawn object. At the start of December, Saturn rises about 3:30 a.m., sliding to 2 a.m. as the month ends.

DECEMBER STARS – December is the month when the star group Orion appears low in the east in the evening sky. Orion's trademark is his belt of three stars in a row. The belt points upward to the bright orange star, Aldebaran of Taurus. Close to the top of the evening sky is the bright golden star Capella. High in the north is Cassiopeia, a group that resembles a flattened letter M.

DECEMBER PROGRAMS – The Frostburg State Planetarium program for December is titled "Solstice Festivities and Holydays," all about the start of winter and the accompanying celebrations. The free public presentations will be on Sundays at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. on Dec. 4, 11, and 18 in Tawes 302. Also included is an introduction to the evening skies of December through February 2012. There follows an optional tour of the Science Discovery Center where there is a large display of preserved animals from five different continents. To receive a Planetarium schedule (or bookmark), persons may telephone 301-687-7799 and give name and mailing address. Persons may also access the Planetarium section of the Frostburg State web site at www.frostburg.edu/planetarium .

Dr. Doyle writes this column for those who like to identify the brightest stars, planets, and sights in their backyards.

commission. "If industry is serious about being a corporate citizen beyond 2011 ... then they have to drop goofiness like that."

Engelder said claims that deep wells contaminate groundwater from below are unsubstantiated. He said it's impossible for fracking fluids to seep upward into water tables through cracks from natural gas drilling.

"Water does not flow uphill," Engelder said. "What that means, then, is that water injected at great depth is not of concern."

However, Engelder recognized that surface water pollution is a serious issue, and managing the flowback – a mixture of water and chemicals that gets pumped through the wells – when it returns to the surface is imperative.

"Water does flow downhill," he said. "Management of water at the surface is absolutely critical – managing spills, managing leaks, managing blowouts.... This water might affect surface streams or it might leak into ground water."

The April 19 Chesapeake Energy blowout in Bradford County, Pa., for example, caused flowback water to spill into Susquehanna River feeder streams.

Calhoun said he worries that fracking in western Maryland could pose a similar threat to Potomac River tributary creeks in the Chesapeake Bay watershed. He thinks Garrett County's waters, such as the Savage River Reservoir, are too fragile to withstand the risk of chemical contamination.

Although natural gas companies are prohibited from dumping fracking flowback directly into waterways, no criteria exist for disposing of it. The toxic wastewater is often shipped to water treatment facilities ill-equipped to decontaminate it, according to the EPA. However, the EPA announced Oct. 20 that it will develop national standards that the mixture must meet before being sent to wastewater plants.

"Think about the value of our water over gas. To me it's more valuable," Calhoun said. "You can't drink gas."

Despite Rising Food Costs, Some Still Go for Organic Thanksgiving

by Ashley M. Latta
Capital News Service

Preparing a traditional Thanksgiving feast for a slew of family and friends will mean shelling out extra dough this year, with a typical meal costing 13 percent more than last year, according to a national survey. For the growing number of people with organic shopping lists, the total will be even higher

The Organic Trade Association found that 78 percent of U.S. families say they purchase at least some organic foods. Based on prices at Whole Foods Market in Annapolis, those hoping to whip up an organic Thanksgiving spread will pay more than $104.

That's nearly 65 percent more than the same non-organic meal for 10, as surveyed by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In light of higher food prices this year, will people stay true to their organic favorites even if it means stretching their budget? Some organic shoppers say definitely, yes.

"It's not just important for personal health, but it's important to think about the farmers who grow the food and the sustainability of the land," said Lila Turner of Dickerson, who frequents the Mom's Organic Market in Frederick.

Nearly half of parents surveyed by the Organic Trade Association said their strongest motivator for purchasing organic products is, "They are healthier for me and my children."

"I don't care about paying extra for organic food," said Jennifer Newman, who works at the Mom's Organic Market in College Park. "There is no price on my health, on my kids' health. I work it into my budget."

In 2010, the production of organic items became a $29 billion a year industry, an increase of more than 700 percent in the last five years.

Findings from a national study by the Hartman Group, a consumer consulting company, indicate that the percentage of consumers purchasing organic products has remained stable since 2006, despite increased food prices, suggesting that organic really is worth the extra cash in the eyes of many consumers.

The cost of food – both organic and non-organic – is high this year, relative to other products, because of a steady increase in global food demand as well as high energy costs.

The annual price survey, conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation, tracks the cost of traditional Thanksgiving items, including turkey, stuffing, veggies, cranberries, and pumpkin pie. The results of the 2011 survey revealed the price of the basic, non-organic Thanksgiving staples to a family of 10 rings up to $49.20, or around $5 per person.

Take inflation into account, the price of Thanksgiving meals over the last 25 years appears to remain relatively stable. The inflation-adjusted cost for 1986 is $26.22. This year, the inflation-adjusted cost is less, at $21.91.

A Multitude of Memories

As we are going into the holiday season, we are left with many memories of

Runetta Kaye Field

Timothy Brandon Field Lax.

This was their favorite time of the year.

They were both good at checking in to be sure everyone was OK. But there are no phone calls, or honking of horns as they passed the house—no matter the hour. No calls from Timothy with: "Hey, Granny, do you have time to fix me some Spanish rice;" or "How about some eggs and bacon with toast and jelly in about an hour," or "Granny, I'm down here at Joe's, I'll be home about 11 o'clock."

Saddened with the emptiness left behind. Our love is deep for the both of them. XOXO

Hope "All Is Well With Thee"!!

Anderson of the American Farm Bureau Federation said this view can be misleading.

"It's not surprising that when you deflate, it's not that different," Anderson said. "But I would be careful of making too much out of that."

He explained that the inflation-adjusted data simply show the cost of the meal relative to other things in the economy. In other words, the price of food has increased, but the cost of everything else has too.

Michael Klein owns Good Fortune Farm, a small-scale, diversified farm in Brandywine that produces organic vegetables and all-natural poultry. This year he has grown 60 all natural turkeys fed with 100 percent vegetarian feed, free of animal by-products or antibiotics.

Klein's turkeys are not organic because they are not given organic feed, which can cost upwards of three times as much as non-organic feed. But he believes his all-natural birds are much better than most commercially produced birds.

"The turkeys that I produce are much better tasting and a lot safer," Klein said. "I think the quality and the content of the food is much better."

Klein said that despite rising food costs, there is a strong market for organic and all-natural products.

"Just like people want to pay more for a good bottle of wine or a good pair of shoes, the same principle applies to poultry and produce," he said.

Anderson, the economist, predicts the steady increase in food costs will soon plateau.

"We're starting to see these increases in food prices slow down," he said. "As we get into 2012, prices should level out because the supply side is starting to catch up."

Stabilized food costs would bring welcome relief to already strained wallets, and perhaps something new to be thankful for this holiday.

WE WISH TO CLARIFY...

OAKLAND VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPT. 1894

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department recently signed a contract with a photography company giving that company our permission to solicit donations for the Oakland VFD in exchange for an opportunity for the donors to have family portraits taken at the fire hall this weekend (Nov. 26-27).

We wish to clarify a few things, however.

- While the solicitation is legitimate, the persons soliciting these donations are not members of the Oakland VFD.
- The funds generated by this solicitation will go into the General Fund of the Oakland VFD, and are thus not earmarked for any particular purchase or expense.
- This campaign is in no way connected to the Oakland VFD's annual fundraising letter campaign, which is held in December.

We also wish to apologize for any confusion about this solicitation experienced by local residents, and invite all who have questions concerning this matter to call:

301-334-9248 or 301-334-3776

Finally, we wish to reiterate our sincere appreciation to all who make contributions to our organization, which allows us to provide the best possible fire protection for you, your families, and your property!

Gobble, Gobble With SHA's 511

from the Maryland State Highway Administration

New Travel Information Line for Thanksgiving Holiday Trips; SHA Prepares for Holiday Travel and Suspends Lane Closures for Thanksgiving Holiday Weekend

If you're planning a trip for Gobble, Gobble Day in Maryland, know before you go with 511. Add more predictability to your date with turkey and pumpkin pie by calling 511 or accessing www.md511.org.

Learn about major incidents, delays, estimated travel times, and weather conditions before you step into your vehicle. As the most heavily travel days of the year approach, 511 is as essential to the Thanksgiving traveler as the turkey baster is to the Thanksgiving cook. Drivers can save time, fuel costs and the frustration that often breeds aggressive and unsafe driving.

While 511 is a new tool for travelers this year, the Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration (SHA) also is continuing traditional measures to help make travel safer and less stressful for motorists.

To further ease congestion, all non-emergency roadwork on SHA-maintained roadways will be suspended between Wednesday, Nov 23, at 9 a.m. and Monday morning, Nov. 28. Emergency response units will patrol metropolitan interstates in search of stranded motorists to help them on their way and prevent delay for other motorists.

"Above all, our priority at the Maryland State Highway Administration is to keep travelers on the go and get them to their destinations safely," said acting SHA administrator Darrell B. Mobley "We're asking for motorists to partner in making this holiday season a safe one by driving attentively and sober. Always buckle up and remember Maryland now has a new law banning hand-held mobile phone use and texting."

SHA's CHART (Coordinated Highways Action Response Team) program closely coordinates and shares information with motorists around the clock and assists tens of thousands of motorists each year. Operators located at the Statewide Operations Center (SOC) and several regional Traffic Operations Centers (TOCs) monitor traffic 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The SOC is located near the Baltimore/Washington Thurgood Marshall International (BWI) Airport and manages all CHART functions. Information, gathered from several sources within Maryland including the state police, SHA, and travelers using #77, is disseminated to travelers, media, and other agencies.

More than 90 percent of all fatal traffic crashes are preventable, so be sure to keep the holidays a time for celebration with these helpful tips.

• Drive focused – Maryland law prohibits hand-held mobile phone use and texting while driving.

• Buckle up! It's the law in Maryland and your number one defense in a crash.

• Move over to an adjacent travel lane away from emergency personnel – a new Maryland law requires it.

• Travel during off peak hours and allow extra time for unexpected delays.

• Check your vehicle's lights, tires, battery, and windshield wipers for proper operation.

• Slow down and pay attention, avoiding distractions such as cell-phone use, changing CDs and eating. Observe all posted speed limits.

• Never drink and drive! Designate a sober driver.

• Drivers with cellular phones can call #77 or 911 to report suspected aggressive or drunk drivers.

• In the unfortunate case you are involved in a minor crash, please safely move your vehicle from the travel lanes – it's Maryland law.

• The National Click it or Ticket campaign will be underway; police will be enforcing seat belt laws.

• Place children in the proper child safety seat.

In inclement weather

• See and be seen. Maryland state law requires the use of headlights while windshield wipers are in use.

• Wet road surfaces are not ideal and require particularly attentive driving.

• Slow down, increase your distance between the vehicle in front of you, avoid distractions and drive defensively.

Adorable Adoptables

READY FOR THE HOLIDAYS – Numerous pets are housed this week at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. They include a young female black Lab pup (above left) that was picked up as a stray along Steyer Mine Road and a mature torotiseshell (above right) that was brought in by her owner who had to move into a no-pets house. "A second cat is being brought in later this week," noted a GC Humane Society spokesperson. "It and the torotiseshell are spayed and are strictly indoor cats and should be adopted together." Also at the shelter is a young female tabby with pretty green eyes that was brought in as a stray (below left) and a very large white cat (below right) with a tabby tail that has been at the shelter for quite awhile. "He is patiently waiting to warm up your lap and heart for the holidays; come and meet him," the spokesperson said about the white feline. "These and other pets are available for adoption. Last week there were three dog adoptions and a few cat adoptions, but this is not very common. The large black Lab, the small female chocolate Lab with the neck injury, and a smaller dog were adopted, along with the black/white tuxedo cat with six toes. The two medium-size dogs (approximately 40 pounds each) are still available, along with the larger brown boxer mix who sat for his photo. Please stop in to see what is available and make this a special Christmas by saving a life by adopting a homeless pet." For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-5335. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road, the county-owned/operated facility is open Monday through Friday. Photos courtesy of the GC Humane Society, a nonprofit volunteer organization.

Marcellus Shale Gas Tax Considered

Capital News Service

Maryland lawmakers are starting to debate how much "severance tax" should be imposed on the natural gas that might be produced from the Marcellus shale rock formation in western Maryland.

Though it is not clear when, or even whether, Maryland will allow drilling in the Marcellus shale using the controversial gas extraction method known as hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," an advisory commission created by Gov. Martin O'Malley to develop recommendations is already considering potential sources of revenue for the state from natural gas production.

"What we're talking about doing is setting parameters on revenue issues in advance of finalizing the question of whether we drill or not," said Delegate Heather Mizeur, D-Montgomery, who is on the 14-member commission.

The Marcellus shale cuts across much of northern Appalachia and underlies a portion of Maryland's western panhandle, including all of Garrett County and part of Allegany County.

If their permits are approved, energy companies will drill horizontally into the shale layer and inject a pressurized mix of water, sand, and chemicals to release the trapped gas – a process that some say endangers the environment.

Garrett County would impose a 5.5 percent county tax on any extracted gas.

"The question is, if you already have 5.5[(percent], what do you go above that?" said state Sen. George Edwards, R-Allegany & Garrett, who is also on the commission. "My position is that the most I would even consider would be a total of 10 [percent] which would mean 4.5 [percent] for the state."

Mizeur is open to a much higher state-level tax.

"I'm inclined to say, because this is money that would be coming from the industry itself which would be poised to make billions of dollars in the extraction of this resource, that we should be, as a commission, focused on what the state amount should be, whether it's 5, 8, 10, 12, 15 percent, whatever the number ends up being," Mizeur said.

Edwards said the higher the tax, the less money that goes to landowners in the form of leases and gas royalties.

"You got to be careful how much you do it because whatever you put on that end takes away from the owners of the gas, which are mainly local people who've owned these gas rights for years," he said.

E. Marshall Stacy, a Garrett County landowner, said there are more reliable ways than a severance tax for the state to cover the costs of overseeing drilling.

"The severance tax is kind of a crap shoot. Suppose you punch a dry hole. How are you going to pay the inspectors to inspect that operation?" Stacy asked.

Stacy is also concerned that money from a state-level tax would end up in the state's General Fund rather than the region where drilling would take place.

But Mizeur said the commission has agreed that "at least a portion, if not all" of the state tax revenue should go into a "superfund" dedicated to environmental and health safety protections in the region where drilling would occur.

"We want to make sure that this isn't just a piggy bank revenue raiser for other budget gaps that we have to fill," Mizeur said.

Another revenue issue being debated is a potential "study fee" of $10 per leased acre on energy companies that have already leased land for gas production in western Maryland. The revenue would go toward the state's study of Marcellus shale drilling.

The study fee would accelerate the time frame for determining whether to drill in Maryland, Mizeur said.

"We're not going to get any money off severance tax if we don't do drilling, and we're not going to get to a point to determine whether we should do drilling without doing a study. So we have to have up-front money to fund it," Mizeur said.

Mizeur said she is likely to propose legislation in the next session of the Maryland General Assembly for a study fee on the industry.

"I don't support it," Edwards said. "We've never, to my knowledge, asked any other business or industry in this state to put money up to study whatever. That should be the state's responsibility, in my opinion."

QUILT RAFFLE WINNER NAMED – The Heritage Quilters of Garrett County recently announced that Betty Truly, Fostburg, was the winner of the 2011 quilt raffle. The winning ticket was drawn on Oct. 16, the last day of the annual quilt show, held during Autumn Glory weekend. The Heritage Quilters will have a fabric decorated tree at the annual Festival of Trees slated for Nov. 25 and 26. All persons interested in joining the group are welcome to attend meetings, which are held the second Tuesday of each month (with the exception of December, January, and February) in the Continuing Education Building at Garrett College at 7 p.m. Those with questions may call 301-387-4959.

consult with lawyers and the local Farm Bureau to negotiate leases with fair compensation and environmentally protective provisions.

Stacy favors drilling – he would use the lease money and gas royalties to help his children start a summer camp on his farm – and said the potential benefits outweigh the risks.

"If the guys come and are drilling at my place, I'm going to be right there watching them, and making sure they're not spilling something or the trucks are not leaking as they come and go," Stacy said

Citizens Advisory To Board Of Ed. Will Meet Dec. 15

The Garrett County Special Education Citizens Advisory Committee (SECAC) will hold a meeting on Thursday, Dec. 15, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in the board room of the Garrett County Board of Education building.

SECAC, established in 2003, serves in advisory capacity to the county superintendent and the BOE on issues affecting the education of students with disabilities.

In a press release, the group described its mission as advocating for all students with disabilities or special needs, promoting community and citizen awareness of issues relating to disabilities, and providing a forum for county wide citizen input on special education programs, related services, and relevant issues.

The meeting is open to the public. Parents and community members interested in further information may call 301-334-7658.

Financial Services Principal Receives ChFC Certification

Edward R. Lytle LPL, registered principal and owner of ERL Financial Services LLC, Oakland, has earned the Chartered Financial Consultant® (ChFC) professional designation from the American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Candidates for the ChFC® designation must complete a minimum of eight courses and ,16 hours of supervised examinations. They must also fulfill stringent experience and ethics requirements. Over 45,000 individuals have been awarded the ChFC® designation since its inception in 1982, according to Lytle.

Lytle began his career with Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society in 1993 as a life insurance specialist. His career focus became the study of income, retirement strategies, gift and estate taxations, qualified plans, and charitable planning as it relates to investments.

In 1999, he joined New York Life to take advantage of the expanded product line-up and training program.

Lytle was hired in 2001 to grow the investment program at M&T Bank in the Garrett County market.

"After many years of feeling that there had to be a better way to service and support his clients, he created ERL Financial Services LLC, a full-service, independent, financial firm," a company spokesperson said.

Lytle is a veteran of the U.S. Navy, serving onboard the USS Moosbrugger (DD-980) during Operation Desert Shield and Desert Storm. He currently serves as a member of the Jacquelyn Shirer Circle of Planned Gifts Committee for the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Foundation and as a member of the board for the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

He is a member of the Maryland Masons, Georges Creek Valley Lodge #161, Deer Park VFW Post 10077 in Deer Park, and Grantsville American Legion Post 0214.

"As financial planning's highest standard of knowledge and trust, the ChFC® program prepares professionals to meet the advanced financial needs of individuals, professionals, and small-business owners," said the spokesperson. "ChFCs can identify and establish specific goals and then formulate, implement, and monitor a comprehensive plan to achieve those goals. Individuals who earn a ChFC® can provide advice on a broad range of financial topics, including financial planning, wealth accumulation and estate planning, income taxation, life and health insurance, business taxation and planning, investments, and retirement planning."

13th Annual Joy Of Christ Concert Series Scheduled

The 13th annual Joy of Christ Celebration will be held in the Oakland Community Center, formerly the Oakland Armory, Monday through Friday, Dec. 5-9, starting daily at 6:30 p.m.

The community-centered event is funded by business sponsors, area churches, and private contributors, with no donations requested or accepted during the series of concerts.

For five days, all members of the public may come out to hear the free Christmas concerts, and receive a free meal and refreshments, as well as free compact discs that are given away by many of the performers. There will be children's activities and educational offerings as well.

"The Joy of Christ Celebration seeks to provide the community with a non-denominational break from the commercialism of Christmas by focusing on the birth of Christ through free concerts, activities, and community interaction," said organizer Paul Browning. "New visitors are amazed that we can provide everything for free."

This year's schedule is as follows:

Monday, Dec. 5

6:30, Lois Sanders; 6:35, Sharon Honsaker; 7, Teal Steel (steel drums); 8, Edsel Calhoun Jr. (magician).

Tuesday, Dec. 6

6:30, the Remley Family Singers; 7, Just 4 Fun Quartet; 8 Nazarene Children's Bell Choir.

Wednesday, Dec. 7

6:30, Pleasant View Youth; 7, Dr. Greg Latta (hammered dulcimer); 8, Garrett Highlands Pipes and Drums.

Thursday, Dec. 8

6:30, Allegany Community Symphony Orchestra; 7:30, the Mountain Anthems (a cappella choir); 8:30, Maria Rose and Danny Elswick.

Friday, Dec. 9

6:30, Scotch Mist (harp); 7, the Zimmerman Family; 8, the Durst Brothers.

SHARON HONSAKER

Sharon Honsaker

Sharon has been singing publicly since she was a child. She performs mostly at regional churches and hymn sings. While living in Masontown, Pa., with her husband Darwin and son Ryan, she helps milk cows on the family farm.

"I love singing the songs that praise God and send a message of God's love that was sent to us through his son Jesus, who is the reason for the season," said Honsaker.

Teal Steel

Teal Steel is a steel drum ensemble created in January of 2004. The group performs Caribbean and Latin style music as well as pop tunes and classic rock. Teal Steel has performed for many audiences at concerts, festivals, and special events throughout West Virginia, Maryland, and Virginia. Recent appearances include a luncheon at the National Naval Hospital in Bethesda for recovering soldiers, and at the West Virginia State Forest Festival in Elkins.

Teal Steel, directed by Fred Kesner, consists of 7th and 8th grade students from Frankfort Middle School in Short Gap, W.Va. The students learn to play the steel pans in their second year of instrumental music studies at the school, and audition for Teal Steel each spring. The group has produced 4 CDs.

Edsel Calhoun Jr.

Magician Edsel Calhoun Jr. performs illusions of escapism, mind reading, rope tricks, and much more. Edsel holds a master's degree from Asbury Theological Seminary. He served with churches in Hong Kong, Indiana, and Pennsylvania. He is currently pastor of the Crellin United Brethren Church and is the father of nine children.

Just 4 Fun Quartet

Just 4 Fun started blending their voices together in January of 2004. This quartet has participated in annual shows and provided entertainment for various events in Maryland, West Virginia, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

The male singers – Kevin McKenzie (lead) and Roger Anderson (bass) – are members of the Chorus of the Potomac in Cumberland. The women – Lisa Tompkins (tenor) and Wendy Anderson (baritone) – sing in a ladies' quartet, Chordially Yours. Just 4 Fun is also a member of the Mixed Harmony Barbershop Quartet Association.

talist and singer/songwriter who plays the hammered dulcimer, guitar, banjo, harmonica, recorder, and Appalachian dulcimer. He is an accomplished 5-string banjo player, a three-time mid-Eastern hammered dulcimer champion (1994, 1992, and 1990), and two-time runner-up in the national hammered dulcimer championships, held at Winfield, Kansas, in both 1994 and 1992.

Greg performs an eclectic mix of Irish, folk, Broadway, bluegrass, and original music. His diverse performance venues have included the Hungarian Presidential Cabinet, U.S. Olympic Trials, Rocky Gap Country Bluegrass Festival, Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, numerous schools, and a performance with the prestigious modern dance company Dance Alloy of Pittsburgh.

The concert will likely include the hammered dulcimer, guitar, English concertina, bouzoukii, limberjack, uilleann pipes, and recorder.

Garrett Highlands Pipes and Drums

The Garrett Highlands Pipes and Drums, an auxiliary unit of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, have been performing in concert and parade for over 30 years throughout the region. The group, under the direction of Pipe Major Paul Browning, will present a concert of Christmas, Scottish, and Irish tunes. The concert will feature both the great highland bagpipe and the smaller shuttle pipes, dating back to the 13th and 17th centuries.

Allegany Community Symphony Orchestra

The Allegany Community Symphony Orchestra is beginning its 9th annual season. The community orchestra is made up of some 40 area musicians of all ages and walks of life. The group is an all-volunteer orchestra that is open to any musician. The orchestra will perform a program of holiday favorites including "Sleigh Ride" and "A Christmas Festival" by Leroy Anderson, "Santa at the Symphony" by Mark Williams, as well as Bizet's "L'Arlesienne," and Haydn's Trumpet Concerto.

The Mountain Anthems

The Mountain Anthems Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Michael Yoder, has been performing for over 45 years and serve on a volunteer basis.

This a capella group of about 30 singers has held concerts in 23 states, Washington, D.C., and Canada. The group's members vary in age from about 15 to 50. They have produced 21 recordings.

Maria Rose & Danny Elswick

Maria Rose has recorded 10 albums, hosted her own TV show, and has appeared on numerous national television and radio shows. Maria and her group have shared the stage with many national recording artists. Because of her ongoing volunteerism with various organizations, Maria received the Presidential Points Of Light Award.

Through the USO/Dept. of Defense, Maria and her band Danny Elswick were chosen from musical artists nationwide to entertain the armed forces in 11 different overseas tours.

The couple can be seen often on the Midwest Country TV show on the RFD-TV network, and were inducted into the Midwest Country Music Hall of Fame. They also received the Gospel CD of the Year award in the Midwest.

Scotch Mist

Scotch Mist, the musical duo of Lynne Dale on Celtic harp and Roger Dale on recorder, perform Celtic, folk, and light classical music. Since their partnership started, they have performed in Maryland, West Virginia, and Northern Virginia at a variety of weddings, Celtic gatherings, concerts, and other occasions.

Lynn is a graduate of Mansfield (Pa.) University. She has taught music and served as organist and choir director in New England, the mid-Atlantic region, and Washington state. In addition to her public performances, she gives private lessons in Celtic harp, piano, guitar, and Appalachian dulcimer. She is the music director at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Cumberland.

Roger has been involved with music since his high school days in Minneapolis, Minn. He began playing recorder while at the University of Minnesota and plays the full family of instruments. He has taught and performed in California and throughout the mid-Atlantic area. Locally, he founded and directed the Consort Antigua, a quintet of medieval and renaissance instrumentalists.

The Zimmerman Family

The Zimmermans are a family group from LaVale. The regular members are Craig and Chrissy Zimmermann and their three children Mandy, Justin, and Katie. However, Mandy is away at school, so filling in for her will be Katie, the youngest daughter, who will play keyboard and provide vocals that Mandy did previously. Also performing with the group will be Lorne Dougherty on bass guitar.

They will perform contemporary renditions of Christmas melodies. The group's sound is modern electric/acoustic (keys, bass, drums, guitars, vocals).

The Durst Brothers

Rodney and Dennis Durst perform at churches, nursing homes, and festivals throughout the tri-state area. Rodney writes many of the songs they perform, but they also cover a lot of the older country gospel songs, from artists like Johnny Cash and Hank Williams.

The Durst Brothers' first album, titled Sure Enough Good Time, yielded two top five national and international gospel singles.

Be Thankful

Thanksgiving is a time to reflect on what God has given us. Blessings can be evident in good times or be hidden in times of trouble. Whatever our circumstances, let us thank God for each day, for only with our Heavenly Father is there true hope. "Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let our requests be made know to God." (Philippians 4:6) May your blessings abound this Thanksgiving.

Your Conscience or The Holy Spirit

I am sure most all of us have done some things that we just don't feel good about. It may not have been dishonest or untruthful, but, perhaps we could have handled a situation differently. I believe that when this happens, the Holy Spirit is trying to let us know that something isn't right. The dictionary defines conscience as the consciousness of the moral goodness or badness of one's acts or motives; a feeling of obligation to do what one holds to be right and to avoid what is wrong. When we do or say something that we feel is wrong, God's direct line to us is always open and He makes us aware of our transgression. It is comforting to know that our Heavenly Father is always with us and guides us. His love for us is unconditional and even when we falter on our path of life, He gently guides us onto the right road.

Pray for us; for we are confident that we have a good conscience, in all things desiring to live honorably.

Why 'The Playboy Club' closed so quickly

By Jay Bobbin

Amber Heard

Q: What happened to "The Playboy Club"? – Judith Woodhall, East Aurora, N.Y.

A: It was "three weeks and out" for the Amber Heard-starring NBC drama about Bunnies and mobsters in the early 1960s. For all the promotion that was poured into the show, it didn't start out with very promising ratings ... and things only got worse with its second and third airings.

That tide didn't seem likely to be reversed, and adding to the fact that the series' period setting made it costly to produce, the network decided to cut its losses and cancel the show. Production on several more episodes had been completed when the plug was pulled, but it remains to be seen whether they'll be shown anywhere.

Q: "Glee" is one of my favorite shows, but I haven't been able to find it. What happened? – Helen Dinnerman, Port St. Lucie, Fla.

A: As it does on Fox every fall, baseball happened. During the sport's postseason encompassing the division playoffs and the World Series, the network gave the show a rest ... something it also did with the Zooey Deschanel hit "New Girl" after only a handful of airings, for which Fox took some heat from fans.

Unwittingly, the fans themselves created that situation by making the comedy such an immediate success. Fox felt confident the audience would come back when baseball ended. In any event, both "Glee" and "New Girl" are back in their regular Tuesday slots now.

Q: Why does ABC's overnight newscast "World News Now" switch its anchors so often, especially the female ones? – Jim Foster, Milwaukee

A: It's true, Rob Nelson has had a lot of different partners at the anchor desk joining him to listen to the week-ending "World News Polka" during his time on the early-early-morning beat. However, it seems that is about to settle down, at least for a while.

At this writing, ABC reportedly had made a hire specifically for that program: Paula Faris, who has been a sports anchor at NBC's Chicago flagship station, WMAQ. Her contract there is up in December, so she'll likely turn up on ABC around or just after the start of the new year. It's expected that she'll contribute to "Good Morning America" as well.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• It was 18th-century German scientist Georg Christoph Lichtenberg who made the following sage observation: "Everyone is a genius at least once a year. The real geniuses simply have their bright ideas closer together."

• "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" (popularly known by a line from the chorus, "Glory, glory hallelujah") was written by Julia Ward Howe in November of 1861 after the author made a trip to Washington, D.C., and reviewed Union troops near the city. The song was published the following February in The Atlantic Monthly magazine, earning Howe a grand total of $4 for what was destined to become one of the most popular songs of the Civil War and a perennial American classic.

• When cartoon icon Bugs Bunny first appeared, in 1935, he was called "Happy Rabbit."

• If you're a cat owner, it probably will come as no surprise that cats spend approximately 80 percent of their time sleeping.

• Becoming a sports star is the dream of many young people, so you might think that someone who is signed to a professional baseball contract has it made. You'd be wrong, though; only one out of every 10 athletes who sign such a contract ever becomes a major-league ballplayer.

• You've certainly heard the old adage "lightning never strikes twice" but, strictly speaking, it's not true. Technically, lightning [SET ITAL]always[END ITAL] strikes twice. Each lightning bolt is made up of multiple bolts that travel the same path and strike the same spot in swift succession.

Thought for the Day: "I've noticed that men generally leave married women alone and treat them with respect. It's too bad for married women. Men are always ready to respect someone who bores them. And if most married women, even the pretty ones, look so dull, it's because they're getting too much respect." -- Marilyn Monroe

• On Nov. 28, 1582, William Shakespeare, 18, and Anne Hathaway, 26, pay a 40-pound bond for their marriage license in Stratford-upon-Avon. Six months later, Anne gave birth to their daughter, Susanna, and two years later, to twins. Shakespeare's plays were not published until after his death, when two members of his troupe collected copies of his plays and printed the First Folio (1623).

• On Dec. 4, 1928, "Dapper Dan" Hogan, a St. Paul, Minn., saloonkeeper and mob boss, is killed when someone plants a car bomb under the floorboards of his new Paige coupe. The first car bomb was a horse-drawn-wagon bomb that exploded in 1920 outside the J.P. Morgan Company's offices in New York City.

• On Nov. 29, 1942, coffee joins the list of items rationed in the United States. Rationing was generally employed to guarantee a fair distribution to all citizens and to give priority to military use in World War II.

• On Dec. 2, 1959, the Malpasset Dam in France collapses after a week-long rain storm, and the resulting flood kills more than 400 people. The city of Frejus, built by Roman Emperor Julius Caesar as a port city on the French Riviera, was devastated by the massive flood.

• On Dec. 3, 1979, 11 people are killed in a stampede outside a Who concert in Cincinnati when a crowd of general-admission ticket-holders surges forward through shattered doors in an attempt to secure prime unreserved seats inside. After the crowd cleared, 11 concert-goers were found on the ground, dead from asphyxiation.

• On Nov. 30, 1989, Aileen Wuornos, America's first female serial killer, picks up her first victim in Palm Harbor, Fla. She would kill a total of seven men in the next year. When caught, Wuornos confessed but claimed that they had all been killed in self-defense. • On Dec. 1, 1990, workers 132 feet below the English Channel drill through a final wall of rock, opening the "Chunnel" and connecting the two ends of an underwater tunnel linking Folkestone, England, and Calais, France.

Q: I have a family Bible that originally belonged to my grandma and is dated 1876. Can you tell me its approximate value? -- Fred, Alton, Ill.

A: Verily I say unto you, just because a Bible is more than a century old doesn't necessarily mean it has much value except as a family heirloom. I checked with several antiquarian book sellers and was told that most Victorian-era Bibles sell in the $50 to $150 range, depending on condition, rarity and if there is an interesting family tree documented. I found a leather-bound Bible from 1872 on eBay for $42. As with most collectibles, there are always exceptions to every rule.

Q: I have collector plates in the MGM series honoring such stars as Mickey Rooney and Clark Gable. I also have the "Honeymooners" with Jackie Gleason, and "I Love Lucy" featuring Lucille Ball. I have a friend who plans to sell them for me on eBay, but I thought maybe you could help me set a price for them. -- A.B., Villa Park, Ill.

A: Before you list them on eBay, why don't you visit the site to see how much similar collector plates are bringing.

Q: I have an old Coca-Cola ice chest. Any idea of its value? -- Evelyn, Wolcott, N.Y.

A: You've provided too little information. What is the size of the chest? When was it manufactured? What is its condition? You might be able to find it referenced in one of the excellent guides available. I especially like "Coca-Cola Collectibles Price Guide" by Allan Petretti (Krause Books). Oakland Update

OAKLAND UPDATE
by Oakland Mayor Peggy Jamison

Elf Hunt – A special thank-you to all who participated in Oakland's first ever Elf Hunt, and congratulations to the prize winners. This pre-Christmas Elf Hunt sparked a great deal of interest in a scavenger hunt type event. Next year, we anticipate that this idea will grow and become an even bigger event.

Small Business Saturday – As part of the Maryland Main Street Promotion, and in conjunction with other Main Street communities, Oakland will participate in the promotion to encourage folks to visit small businesses this Saturday, Nov. 26. Many small businesses in Oakland will offer special discounts or have special offers on this date. Please support your local community. A proclamation was also made by Governor Martin O'Malley designating the day as Small Business Saturday in Maryland.

A Great Small Town Christmas – Oakland will have its official tree lighting ceremony on Friday, Dec. 2, beginning at 6 p.m. at the Oakland Train Station. This will be followed by the annual Christmas parade, with Santa of course, in our Great Small Town. Bring the children out to see Santa, who will be giving out treat bags at Englanders after the tree lighting until 9 p.m. While you are in Oakland, visit our local stores and get some unique Christmas gifts. There will also be some local vendors and crafters on the streets. Don't miss out on this Great Small Town Christmas experience. A special thank-you to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department for helping to decorate the Oakland town tree for lighting.

Leaf Collection and Friday Bulk Pick-Up – The annual process of leaf collection has officially ended. Any additional leaves in Oakland will need to be bagged for pick-up on Fridays as weather and time permit.

Walking Passes Available for the Oakland Armory/ Community Center – With the winter season upon us and for everyone's health and safety, we are again allowing persons interested in walking indoors during weekdays to obtain a walking pass at Oakland City Hall for $2 per month. We simply ask that you bring clean walking shoes to change into after you get inside the facility to protect and prolong the life of the newly refinished gym floor. The facility is also available for rent by any interested persons. Feel free to contact Oakland City Hall at 301-334-2691 for rental availability and information.

Broadford Lake Recreation Area – Broadford Park is officially closed for the season. We have had some calls regarding ice fishing. According to the Town Code, ice fishing is not permitted on Broadford Lake. Hunting is also prohibited in the park. As long as weather permits, walkers are permitted and welcome.

Walking Path Lighting Changes – As a cost saving measure during the winter months, we are again adjusting the time for the lights on the walking/biking path from the Town Parking Lot to and including the Glades walking path. The public restrooms in the Town Parking Lot and at the Glades pavilion will be closed in the very near future. The restrooms will be re-opened in the spring when the weather permits.

Winter Snow Removal – As we gear up for the official start of winter, I would like to remind anyone plowing or shoveling snow to please make every effort to refrain from piling snow at corners or intersections near the road where visibility is reduced or impacted. We appreciate the roads crews and all they do, and we would ask that everyone help them out. We would also remind residents that cars parked along the streets in Oakland should be moved at least daily during snowfalls to allow the plow trucks to safely remove snow from the roadways and prevent roads from becoming restricted to one lane.

A Word of Thanks – During this Thanksgiving season, I am again reminded of how blessed we truly are. We are surrounded by such wonderful employees, volunteers, and citizens, and I am thankful for all of you who help to make Oakland "A Great Small Town." To everyone from the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, we wish you a Blessed and Happy Thanksgiving.

PLANNING FOR OCCASIONAL EXPENSES

by Lynn Little,
Extension Educator, Family and Consumer Sciences
University of Maryland Extension

On paper, your finances say you should be saving $200 a month, but often-unexpected bills prevent you from saving anything. What you're describing are "occasional or periodic expenses," and they're usually the forgotten step in setting up a household budget or spending plan.

Occasional or periodic expenses generally occur only once or twice a year and are often forgotten until they come due. You are likely to have some fixed and some flexible occasional expenses.

For example, some fixed bills, such as insurance and property taxes, are often paid every three or six months. In addition, you may have "flexible" occasional expenses, which include clothing, gifts, school supplies, and similar items. If you don't regularly set aside money for these occasional expenses, paying those bills can put a severe dent in your savings.

To help be prepared for these expenses, consider establishing an "occasional expense fund," and make sure enough money goes into it each month. To determine how much money is enough, you will have to research past months' financial records and do some calculations.

For fixed occasional expenses, make a list, month-by-month, of those bills (insurance, taxes, subscriptions, memberships, etc.). For flexible occasional expenses, you'll have to do some estimating. Home and car maintenance bills, out-of-pocket medical expenses, holidays and gifts, shoes and clothing, furniture, travel, education, and similar items all need to be tracked.

When you're first setting up your occasional expense fund, begin with educated guesstimates for these items. Over the year, as these expenses occur, you can add in the actual cost, which will help you refine next year's spending plan.

Once you have listed all of your occasional expenses, both fixed and flexible, for the year, add up the costs and divide by 12. That tells you how much you will need to set aside in savings each month in your occasional expense fund. This should become a line item in your budget/spending plan along with your regular "pay yourself" savings.

Starting an occasional expense fund can be tricky. Some people start it during months when expenses are relatively low, thus allowing the fund to build up over time. You may find you need to "seed" the account with some extra money up front – from a garage sale or a tax return, for example.

Managing this designated fund can take a number of different forms. Some people just deposit the money in their regular savings, drawing it out as needed. Others start a new savings or checking account just for occasional expenses, making it easier to keep track of the account's status. If you decide to open a separate account, be sure to inquire about fees associated with the account.

For more information and ideas on managing and saving for occasional expenses visit www.extension.org/personal_finance ; www.money.gov; www.smartaboutmoney.org ; and www.americasaves.org.

Install a programmable thermostat and enjoy savings of up to 16% on heating and cooling costs. Programmable thermostats automatically reduce heating and cooling in your home so that you can easily maintain an ideal temperature. And through proper use of pre-programmed settings, a programmable thermostat can save you about $180 every year in energy costs.

CELEBRATING 40 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

GC Students, Faculty, Staff Share Personal Thoughts Of Thanksgiving

by Peggy Santamaria

As Thanksgiving approaches, plans are laid for traveling to be with relatives and loved ones to celebrate and share in a holiday tradition. At Garrett College, students, faculty, and staff prepare to take a break for a long weekend. Before leaving campus, several people shared their thoughts about what they are thankful for this year.

ADDISON VARNDELL

Addison Varndell doesn't hesitate for a moment when asked what she is thankful for this year.

"My little brother Georgie," she said. Addi, a Grantsville resident who is in her first year at Garrett, explained that her 7-year old brother has a very rare genetic disease called Prader-Willi syndrome. "He has done so well this year. He exercises regularly to control some of the symptoms of this disease. I am so proud of him and the progress he is making," she said.

Kevin Dodge, director of natural resources and wildlife technology, is looking forward to celebrating Thanksgiving with his family.

"What am I most thankful for this year? Well, as always, I'm thankful for God's love, and for my family and my health," he said. "Another thing I am really thankful for is that I am able to be doing a job that I love!"

KEVIN DODGE

Marco Baker, a self-proclaimed "city boy" from Baltimore, is settling into his country life in Garrett County as a GC freshman studying for a degree in biology. He said he is "very glad" to be here.

"This year I am very thankful to be able to attend college. And I am thankful for my mother being able to send me here to college," he said.

Fred Learey, executive director of the Garrett College Foundation, speaks of the people and the qualities of his life for which he is most thankful.

"The highlights of Thanksgiving for me are a supportive and loving family, wonderful friends, the opportunity to work with dedicated colleagues at Garrett College, beautiful Garrett County, the generous, giving people in our community, and for our freedoms in America," he said. "Never take any of this for granted and always accept our responsibility to protect and nurture these blessings."

Shelley Menear, coordinator of security at the college, reflected on the important things in her life for which she is grateful.

"I am thankful for all the gifts that I have been given in life – my health, my family, my friends, and my job," she said. "I see people who are without many of those things, and it makes me even more grateful for what I have, including the ability to help those who don't."

FRED LEAREY

SHELLEY MENEAR

Beth Luers, professor of humanities, said she approaches Thanksgiving this year with both joy and sorrow. While she enjoyed many blessings over the past months, she has also experienced deep sorrow.

"I have lost some people this year who were very close to me and very important in my life," she said. "It has been difficult. So for me, this Thanksgiving will be a time to remember life-enriching experiences with these loved ones and to reflect on the gifts each brought to my life."

BUCKNELL OFFICAL VISITS GC – Mark Davies, assistant vice president of enrollment at Bucknell University, pictured right, was on the Garrett College campus last week to speak about the university's Summer Scholars Program and the full-tuition Transfer Scholarship available to GC students. Garrett College is one of only five community colleges that Bucknell selected for this partnership. Each summer, up to six Garrett students may attend the Summer Program (all expenses paid) to earn six credits that transfer back to Garrett College. They can then compete for a two-year Bucknell scholarship currently worth $44,000 per year. Eligibility requirements for the Bucknell program are a 3.5 minimum college grade point average, a family gross adjusted income of less than $50,000 per year or $24,000 per year for an independent individual, and a recommendation from Garrett College. Also in the photo is Dan Tichnell, GC's facilities planner, who transferred from Garrett to Bucknell on the scholarship program. For more information, persons may contact Judy Carbone, director of advising, career, and transfer services, at 301-387-3046.

Garrett College To Hold Enrollment Kickoff Dec. 2

The spring semester at Garrett College will begin January 24, 2012. Anyone interested in getting a head start on the enrollment process is invited to visit the college on Friday, Dec. 2, for walk-in application, financial aid filing, and COMPASS placement indicator testing.

Step one of the process is applying for admission, which can be done in the Admissions Office of GC starting at 8:30 a.m. Applications can be downloaded and filled out in advance. The forms are available at www.garrettcollege.edu/admissions.

Once the application process is complete, the individual may sit for COMPASS placement testing in the college library between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. There is no cost for testing, but a photo ID is required.

Financial aid staff will also be available that day to assist those who wish to file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) anytime between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Those who plan to submit the online application for aid should bring their 2010 tax returns. A financial aid worksheet also is available online at www.fafsa.gov For January classes, applicants will need to file the 11-12 FAFSA.

Applicants who take the COMPASS indicator on December 2 may register for classes on Tuesday, Jan. 10, or on one of three other new student advising days later in January.

For more information about the enrollment process or directions to the campus, persons may call the Garrett College Office of Admissions at 301-387-3739 or (toll-free) 866-554-2773.

WINS VETERANS DAY RAFFLE – the Garrett College Student Veterans Organization sponsored a 50/50 raffle on Veterans Day as a fundraising event for the association. The winner was GC student Sarah Friend, pictured, a resident of Friendsville, who pocketed $175. She said she is going to share the winnings with her mother. The Student Veterans Organization was chartered in spring 2011 to serve various student veterans on campus. Members work with the college administration to enhance the veteran-friendly atmosphere at the college. They have focused on developing social and support events for veterans and their families to produce an extended support group and circle of friends. For more information on the organization and veteran services at Garrett College, persons are invited to go online to www.garrettcollege.edu and click on "Veterans."

The Garrett County Department of Solid Waste & Recycling
announces winter hours for the Garrett County Landfill.

Effective November 20, 2011, the landfill will be closed on Saturdays to commercial haulers and large residential loads. Saturday full service hours will begin again on April 21, 2012.

Residential users may continue to use the Landfill 8 a.m. to 12 p.m., on Saturdays provided that they either have a residential permit or pay the required fees.

These winter hours reflect an adjustment based upon the amount of use on winter Saturdays in the past. This change will result in cost savings for the citizens of Garrett County with a minimum of inconvenience.

Landfill users are also reminded that the Landfill will be closed for Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, November 24, 2011; for Christmas Day, Monday, December 26, 2011, and for New Year's Day, Monday, January 2, 2012. All collection sites are closed on the actual holidays, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, and New Year's Day.

Talk to Your Children (and Parents) about Shared Financial Picture

It's Thanksgiving week. And if you're fortunate, you can look around your Thanksgiving table and see several generations of your family. Of course, as you know, many types of cohesiveness are involved in knitting a family together. But one connection that frequently gets ignored, at least in terms of family dialogue, is the financial linkage between parents and their children on one hand, and these same parents and their parents on the other. So if you find yourself in this "sandwich" group, it may be worth considering your financial position.

If your children are very young, you might want to start by emphasizing the importance of three separate concepts: saving, spending and sharing. If you give them an allowance, or if you pay them to do some minor tasks around the household, you can encourage them to put the money in three separate containers. The "spending" jar is for them to use as they choose, the "saving" jar is to be put in some type of savings or investment account and the "sharing" jar is to be used for contributions to charitable causes. You can extend the spending, saving and sharing themes by encouraging your kids to spend wisely, watch how their savings grow and feel pride in the work done by the charitable groups their dollars support.

Later, when your kids are older, and can earn money by babysitting, mowing lawns or working part-time, you can further encourage good financial habits by offering to match their contributions to a Roth IRA. And be sure to discuss the different types of investments available; they may enjoy learning about the ways in which they can participate in the financial markets.

Above all else, talk to them about the importance of developing good financial skills and how these skills will play a part in your family's overall well-being.

Now, let's turn to your parents. If they're elderly, you may find that talking to them about financial issues may be considerably more challenging than talking about these issues with your children. It's unfortunate, but true: People are sensitive about money and often don't want to talk about it.

You may find that you need to be persistent, especially if your parents are getting on in years. Perhaps you can encourage them to consider their current position, and what planning might need to be considered. Do they have accounts in a local bank? Where are their investments held? Do they have a financial advisor? Have they worked with legal professionals on any arrangements?

If your parents have expressed interest in leaving a legacy or passing assets to family members, you might consider encouraging them to seek assistance from the appropriate professionals. After all, if something were to happen to your parents without them having made the proper arrangements, their wishes may not be carried out.

So this Thanksgiving, as you think about the value of your family, you might take some time to consider issues that need to be addressed. It may take time and diligence, but when it comes to your loved one's wishes and well-being, it's probably worth the effort.

Preston County Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
Preston County FSA Office
157 Plaza CT., Suite 13, Kingwood, WV 26537-1793

FSA REMINDS PRODUCERS TO VOTE IN 2011 COUNTY COMMITTEE ELECTION

Eric McCartney, executive director of the USDA's Farm Service Agency in Preston County, reminds farmers in Local Administrative Area (LAA) 1, which are the Pleasant and Grant districts, to vote in the 2011 Preston County FSA Committee election.

The FSA committee is the most direct link between USDA Farm Service Agency programs and local producers. County committee members administer USDA FSA programs on the local level, inform producers of program provisions, recommend necessary program changes, participate in county committee meetings, and perform other duties assigned by the state FSA committee.

Completed election ballots must either be postmarked or returned to the Preston County FSA Office no later than Monday, Dec. 5. The Farm Service Agency encourages participation in the 2011 committee election by all underrepresented groups in LAA 1.

Eligible producers in LAA 1 who have not received an election ballot in the mail may obtain a ballot by calling 304-329-1923, sending a fax to 304-329-3056, or visiting the FSA office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza. Anyone interested in learning more about the Farm Service Agency is invited to go online to www.fsa.usda.gov/pas/default.asp.

The Preston County FSA Committee will tabulate LAA 1 election ballots on Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 9:30 a.m., in the Kingwood USDA Service Center.

CONSERVATION RESERVE ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM SIGNUP CONTINUES

McCartney also reminds farmers that they may still enroll in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) for water quality and wildlife habitat.

"This is a voluntary component of Farm Service Agency's Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) that uses federal and state resources to safeguard environmentally sensitive land through special CREP enrollments," he said.

The West Virginia CREP offers rental payments to farmers who voluntarily convert highly erodible cropland and other environmentally sensitive acreage to vegetative cover, such as riparian buffers, filter strips, and/or wetlands.

The goals of the West Virginia CREP are to: enroll up to 9,160 acres of eligible cropland and/or marginal pastureland located within the project area; reduce agricultural runoff, sediment, and nutrients from entering designated watersheds, promote improved water quality and enhance wildlife habitat in recognized drainage areas; and protect soil, water, and wildlife habitat in the project area.

The following conservation practices may be eligible for land enrolled in a West Virginia CREP contract: establishment of permanent introduced grasses and legumes, establishment of permanent native grasses, hardwood tree planting, filter strips, riparian buffers, and wetland restoration.

Eligible producers will be able to enroll in 10- to 15-year contracts. Cropland must have been cropped four of the six years from 2002 to 2007 and be physically and legally capable of being cropped in a normal manner. Marginal pastureland is also eligible for enrollment, provided it is suitable for use as a riparian buffer planted to trees. In addition, producers must generally have owned or operated the land for at least the last 12 months prior to enrollment. Persons who have an existing CRP contract or an approved offer with a contract pending are not eligible for CREP until that contract expires.

West Virginia CREP participants are eligible for five types of payments: signing incentive payment, practice incentive payment, annual rental payment for the life of the contract, up to 50 percent cost-share assistance for the installation of eligible conservation practices, and a one-time state of West Virginia lump-sum incentive payment.

Haying and grazing are not allowed during the contract period unless USDA permits it for emergency purposes under normal CRP rules.

For further information on the West Virginia Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, persons may call or visit the Preston County FSA office or go online to www.fsa.usda.gov.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

The first five years of one's life are the most important period in terms of development. And if children are home with their mothers to get the actual learning experience, like learning their ABCs, counting, and being read to a lot, those children are much more likely to be successful in school. That is why it is such a tragedy that Congress has cut funding for Head Start. With the way the economy is, a college education is essential for getting a decent job.

Parents should not be so quick to blame our public teachers if their child is not getting a solid education base. That goes back to their earliest years, so that means it goes back to parents who did not bother to devote lots of time to teach their little ones. That gives them the realization that education is their most important job for the next 20 years.

Children who get the message perform at a high level all during their education years. That means that parents need to be involved in their child's education. Make sure they do their homework, and ask how they did on that big test that they just prepared for. Go to parent-teacher conferences. Talk with your children about what they learned today. You might learn something also. But you can't expect America to grow and prosper if we neglect our own green sprouts – our own children.

Is it important that your children be millionaires or just live a life that benefits all the people in the world?

You may hear lots of things like, "It's the economy, stupid." But that shows how mindless we are to believe that the private sector will create jobs no matter how many carrots we show the big business. There is a massive loss of public jobs in many states. These are important jobs, but many states would much rather keep taxes at the lowest possible for their wealthiest citizens. This is in spite of the fact that they have no intention of creating any jobs with their big pile of money.

It does not make any sense that the one percent of Americans with the most money hold way more than half of America's money. They no doubt are living very well. But those are only a few thousand families. Millions of other families have almost nothing.

I am deeply saddened to learn that a very special American horse show will not continue to light up mid-Manhattan. That tradition goes back more than 100 years to the turn of the century, often called "The Golden Age." That was the time when New York City was the center of high society. One of the big parts of its season was the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden with many international star jumper riders.

There were also a dozen or so in the ladies' side-saddle competition. That is so elegant and beautiful to watch. All their mounts are turned out as elegantly as possible. You will never see a group of horses so well groomed.

I heard about a 40-something couple somewhere expecting their 20th child. Can they really afford 20 children, and are they willing to invest the time that each child needs so badly? Of course, the world population is 7 billion (plus another 20). They'd better be living on a small farm to be able to give everything to their children.

A new advertisement campaign urges that if we are like most people, we do lots of Christmas shopping the weekend after Thanksgiving, and we should do our Saturday shopping at local businesses. That is an excellent message; not at a big chain store.

I often did all my Christmas shopping in downtown Oakland. Of course, I always prefer to give books as Christmas gifts, so the Book Mark'et got a lot of my business. Then you have Rudy's for clothes, and Helbig's is a nice jewelry store. It used to be that you could find almost anything at Englander's. Now I guess you can find some kind of antique. And the Arts Council Gallery has various nice gift options.

There are no great shopping options in Bittinger, but there are a few male-type gifts in Buckel's Store, some various things in part of Brenneman's Store, and then there is the Loft Shop.

I just got a birthday present that I was dying to get my hands on. It is the new biography of Jack Kennedy by Chris Matthews, titled Elusive Hero. A major influence on the development of his personality and character was his Irish-Catholic background, which meant that he grew up as an "outsider."

There is at least one thing that editor Don Sincell and I are in agreement on. Soon after the election of 2008, he said to me, "He (Obama) is the right man to be our head of state now in this difficult time in history." And I hope most American voters realize that it would be extremely stupid to reject a perfect leader for these difficult years. No one in the other party seems to be qualified. There is no mortal man able in a short three years to turn around an economy that is running away on a downslope, as the American economy is now.

Altar flowers at Emmanuel Lutheran Church this past Sunday were given by Terry Caparella and family in memory of Bob and Maxine Legeer and Mike Caparella.

An open house celebrating the 80th birthday of Harry Durst was held in the fellowship hall of Emmanuel on Sunday afternoon. A party to celebrate Beulah Moon's birthday was held at Emmanuel the previous Sunday.

A six-week strength and conditioning class continues to meet at Emmanuel each Monday at 10 a.m. All are welcome to participate in this activity.

All members of the parish are invited to meet at 6:50 p.m. at the activity room of Goodwill Mennonite Home on Saturday, Dec. 3, to present a program of carols and the reading of the Nativity story for the residents.

The Bittinger Lutheran Parish will again be holding the Holden evening prayer services on Wednesdays during Advent. The first service will be held at Emmanuel on Nov. 30 at 6:30 p.m. All members of the community are invited to attend.

NHS, SHS STUDENTS ENJOY FALL ACTIVITIES – Child Care II students from Northern and Southern high schools recently carved pumpkins and roasted pumpkin seeds with students from the ALO (alternative learning outcomes) classes at both schools. The pumpkins were donated to Northern by Katie and Gary Fratz of the Fratz Farm, Accident, and to Southern by Eddie Friend, Oakland. This activity was under the direction of Barbara Law, child care teacher at both schools, along with NHS teachers Ashley Myers and Jason Rice and SHS teachers Wendy Shumaker and Irene Thomas. Pictured above, left to right, at SHS in the first row are Anthony Shahan, Zach Smith, B.J. Burns, Michael Kellison, Katie Broadwater, and Anna Kazor. In the second row are Brittany Judy, Jena Janoske, Britteny Wiltison, Jenessa Bassford, Chelsea Wiltison, Marlah Coddington, Leticia Thomas, and Josi Mauk. In the third row are Kendra Georg, Lindsey Braithwaite, Shalene Teets, Haylee Bolyard, Jordan Body, Bobbi Dick, and Michelle Knotts. Jim Fox Retires From U.S. Navy

RETIRES FROM USN – Senior Chief Petty Officer Jim Fox, a native of Friendsville, recently retired from active duty with the U.S. Navy after 26 years of service. He is pictured being congratulated by his commanding officer, Capt. Brian Walden. See story.

Senior Chief Petty Officer Jim Fox, a native of Friendsville and son of Jane and the late Wilbur Fox, recently retired from active duty with the U.S. Navy after 26 years of service. A retirement ceremony was held at the Navy Yard in Washington, D.C., on Friday, Oct. 28, led by Capt. Brian Walden, commanding officer, and attended by family and many current and former shipmates.

For the first 16 years of his career, Fox served as a musician with various Navy musical units and ensembles as a trumpet instrumentalist, vocalist, drum major, and leading petty officer. After completing basic training at Great Lakes, Ill., he was posted at Navy duty stations at Norfolk, Va., Newport, R.I., and Millington, Tenn. For the past 10 years, he was assigned to the U.S. Navy Band in Washington, where he served as the command's contracting officer and comptroller.

During his naval service, Fox received the Navy and Marine Corps Commendation Medal three times, the Navy Achievement Medal four times, and a number of other awards to include "Sailor of the Year" honors while with Navy Band Mid-South. He also participated in UNITAS Exercise XXVII, a Navy exercise designed to support regional stability in the Western Hemisphere, and in inaugural events for Presidents Bush and Obama.

The 1981 graduate of Northern Garrett High School earned a bachelor's degree in music performance from Frostburg State University. He resides with his wife Kelly and sons Will and Garner in Catonsville.

A frequent visitor back to Garrett County, Fox occasionally performs with the Accident Concert Band, which maintains a family musical tradition, as his great-grandfather Frederick Fox and grandfather Arnold Fox led the Friendsville Military Band in the early 1900s.

Seasons

Seasons change and years pass by. The memory it burns, the ache makes me cry. The leaves turn color and fall to the ground. Your voice is still clear in my mind, such a beautiful sound. The snow will soon come and cover everything in white. I can never forget your face that glowed like a light. Spring will come and a new year will start. Another year of missing you, another year we are apart.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 14th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Donations should be postmarked by December 5, 2011. Those collected after December 5 will be saved for next year's campaign.

The fall school newsletter, The Ram Gazette, is now available online at http://cardinal.ga.k12.md.us/Schools/SH/. Parents who do not have Internet access may contact the school for a printed newsletter.

CANNED FOOD DRIVE FOR HOUSE OF HOPE

The National Honor Society is sponsoring a canned food drive to benefit the House of Hope from Nov. 29 to Dec. 16. The first-period class that collects the most items will win a doughnut breakfast. Last year, Southern High School donated over 1,000 items to the drive. The honor society hopes to beat that number this year. Items may be brought into the school by students, or dropped off at the school in care of Heather Savage, National Honor Society advisor. This is the 13th year the honor society has conducted the food drive for the House of Hope.

ANNIE GET YOUR GUN

Irving Berlin's famous musical, Annie Get Your Gun, about Annie Oakley's rise to fame, will be performed on Dec. 1-5 and Dec. 8-10. Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. on the Southern High stage. General admission is set at $5. Children 8 and under will be admitted for free.

BEANIE BABY DRIVE

The National Honor Society is conducting a Beanie Baby drive. Students are invited to donate their new or gently used Beanie Babies. Beanies will be placed in Operation Christmas Child shoe boxes, or donated to the Dove Center and Dennett Road Nursing Home. A collection box is located in front of Mrs. Savage's room.

CLASS OF 2012 APPAREL

Class of 2012 clothing designs are on display in various locations around the school, including Ms. Sanders' and Ms. Zumpano's classrooms. Any senior wishing to purchase clothing may place an order with Ms. Sanders.

Also: All seniors are asked to stop by Ms. Zumpano's room to sign the senior sweatshirt.

DCL Prop. Owners Assn. Will Hold Workshop Dec. 2

by Scott Johnson, POA

The Property Owners' Association of Deep Creek Lake (POA) began a series of workshops on the future well-being of the lake in December 2010. The second workshop in the series will be held on Dec. 2 by invitation only. The purpose of these workshops is to bring together people who have responsibility for various aspects of the lake with the goal of better cooperation and coordination among all agencies and stakeholders.

The objective of the first workshop was to identify areas of concern that should be monitored in the future. That workshop proved to be a very enlightening day because several agencies were totally unaware what other agencies were doing. The exchange of information highlighted that there was an overlap of responsibilities in some areas and a void in others. The consensus was that there was just too little time m one session to address all concerns, and a second or third workshop should follow.

Five areas of concern were identified – communications and education; erosion and sedimentations process; economic benefits and costs, commercial, agricultural, and residential impacts; and biological environment. These areas will be the focus of the Dec. 2 workshop.

The approach for the day's work will be the use of expert panels to discuss these topics. Panel members have been selected based on their immediate knowledge and expertise with the identified topics. Each panel will respond to prepared questions from a moderator, as well as spontaneous questions from participants.

The workshop participants have been selected because of their expertise and/or responsibility for the lake. Approximately 80 guests are expected to attend from various groups. Members of the press have been invited to observe the workshop, and will report on the proceedings as they deem appropriate.

Secretary of the DNR John Griffin recently stated several times that the general health of the lake is good. Keeping this unique natural resource healthy is of upmost importance to all stakeholders. In that interest, the board of directors of the POA has taken this leadership role in conducting the workshops. The ultimate goal is to establish one office or agency that can assimilate all of this kind of information and provide hard facts. Actions as a result of such factual information are the key to the future well-being of Deep Creek Lake.

POA TO HOLD SECOND WORKSHOP – The Deep Creek Lake Property Owners Association will host a second workshop on Friday, Dec. 2, in its series concerning the well-being of the lake. Workshop participation is by invitation only, and those attending have been selected because of their expertise and/or responsibility for the lake. From left are Water Quality Task Force members Pete Versteegen, Ed Neff, Susie Crawford, Nancy Ralley, Troy Ellington, Ed King, and Bob Hoffman.

Miss James To Marry Mr. Day

Robert and Linda James, Swanton, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter Ashleigh Nicole to Adam C. Day, son of James and Wendy Bailey, Accident.

Both graduates of Southern Garrett High School, Miss James and Mr. Day received undergraduate degrees from West Virginia University in 2007 and 2008, respectively.

The bride-elect went on to graduate from the WVU College of Law in 2010 and now practices law in Morgantown, W.Va., with the foreclosure firm of Samuel I. White PC.

The prospective groom obtained his master's degree in electrical engineering in 2010 and works as a senior information systems engineer for the MITRE Corporation in Bridgeport, W.Va.

The couple became engaged on Aug. 7, while celebrating their five-year anniversary.

Their wedding is planned for Saturday, Sept. 8, 2012, at the Fairmont Field Club in Fairmont, W.Va.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

EXEMPLARY GREEN ENERGY

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. On page A-3 of the Nov. 17 issue of The Republican is a photo from an award ceremony for Mike Driesbach, who runs the Savage River Lodge in northeastern Garrett County. The lengthy caption praised his "green energy" program, but was short on details.

A. Like any other business manager, Mike Dricsbach looked for ways to cut expenses and increase the bottom line. He looked carefully at his energy costs, and asked some serious numerical questions about possibly technological ways to drive them down. Too many business managers scrutinize their invoices for this or that item in the supply chain, but don't give much thought to their fuel or electricity bills, which are too "indirect" to attract the manager's attention.

After careful thinking and several innovations, Mike wound up saving a bundle through good old-fashioned, plain-vanilla energy conservation. Energy conservation is not some magical new science. There have been technical manuals lying around since the 1970s explaining how to utilize waste heat, instead of letting it go up the chimney – but few business owners have read them. Mike realized where the energy losses were, and figured out ways to capture their value.

If you visit Savage River Lodge in winter, you'll find it entirely comfortable inside. You'd never know the utility bills are about half that of similar competing facilities. It makes you wonder why. When you go outside and look around, you'll find a little furnace that burns scrap wood and similar minor trash, such that the combustion gas enters a heat exchanger, which heats water for use elsewhere in the lodge complex. Dozens of similar inexpensive and unobtrusive savings are there, perceivable by the attentive observer. Whether on the ceiling or under the floors, energy is never wasted. That's the essence of "going green."

One example: Water pipes are insulated, so that water reaching the guest rooms is nearly as hot as when it left the storage tank. In turn, that means the water tank doesn't have to be heated quite as hot as at a competing hotel elsewhere. Ka-ching! Another penny on the bottom line.

The text of the caption mentions that the on-site maintenance vehicles run on a biofuel derived from used kitchen frying oil. Coincidentally, the U.S. Marines in Anbar province, Iraq, have been doing something very similar (on a vastly larger scale) since 2006. These innovations are no secret; they're simply cost-effective steps taken by a smart manager who understands energy, and takes advantage of technology.

People look at a map of northeastern Garrett County and think "dense forest," but Mike Driesbach found a place to put solar cells, which knocked down his electricity bills.

The Maryland Tourism Office award to Savage River Lodge was for "sustainable business practices," loosely translated as "green energy." Most people think that must mean something exotic, and images of Solyndra come to mind. Mike Driesbach showed that it's far simpler! He's a manager who is attentive to how big a factor energy costs are within his business. Combining an understanding of technology with the business concept of cost-effectiveness, Mike took the pain out of his utility bills.

The lesson for everyone else who wants to "go green" is this: It's possible to be both eco-friendly and profit-motivated; the two goals are compatible, not opposed.

Dr. Sheahen lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

Friday, Nov. 25

• 11 a.m. – Feeder Watch. Guests may join the naturalist for bird watching and identification at the center's feeders. Using a field guide will be covered, as well as how to identify basic field marks of the most common winter birds. Then all are welcome to make pinecone bird feeders. Each guest may make one for the center and one to take home. (60 min.)

• 1, 2, and 3 p.m. – Critter Encounters. Guests invited to meet a different "critter" each hour. The naturalist will discuss facts about each animal, and then will feed them for all to watch. All ages welcome.

Saturday, Nov. 26

• 11 a.m. – Black Bears and You. All invited to meet at the Discovery Center to learn about the black bears' habitat, habits, and conservation. A short walk will follow in the Discovery woods investigating and searching for bear signs and habitat. (90 min.)

• 1 p.m. – A Turkey's Tale. Guests invited to the Discovery Center to learn about the life of the wild turkey. Kids of all ages can participate in the various activities.

Sunday, Nov. 27

• 11 a.m. – Walk Off the Holiday. Meet at the center to join in on a walk-off-the-holiday nature hike with the naturalist. Walkers will go along Snakeroot Trail to see the signs of early winter, and possibly see wildlife preparing for the cold season. Trails are rocky, so persons are asked to wear proper hiking footwear. (90 min.)

• 2 p.m. – Owls and Hawks. The similarities and difference between these birds of prey will be discussed as they are perched outside their mews for clear viewing and photography. The park naturalist will answer questions and relay how the birds came to be at the Discovery Center. (60 min.)

Dear Patrick,
We recently closed on a purchase at Deep Creek Lake. We want to express our appreciation to you as to the job that Amy Buser did over the past several weeks in working with us. Amy identified homes early on that were in line with what we were looking for. We got serious about a property, only to lose it. In reality losing this property was a good thing for us.
We consequently identified the property we purchased. As we were approaching closing on this property, there were some issues identified on Friday afternoon that threatened to scuttle the Saturday closing. However, Amy worked through this all, kept on top of everything, and kept us fully informed throughout the entire process. She was always prompt in getting back to us whenever we had any questions. Even after the sale, Amy is continuing to offer us assistance.
We would without a doubt recommend Amy to anyone purchasing a property in the Deep Creek area. It is refreshing in today's world to find an individual who is so client focused that we truly appreciate the opportunity to recognize Amy for a job well done!
Sincerely,
Dave & Sue Wolfe

Therapy Dog Teams Provide Emotional Support, Comfort To Local Residents

by Susan Hertz, Therapy Dogs International member/evaluator

Founded in 1976, Therapy Dogs International® (TDI) is a volunteer nonprofit organization dedicated to regulating, testing and registration of therapy dogs and their volunteer handlers for the purpose of visiting nursing homes, hospitals, and other facilities where therapy dogs can offer emotional support. In Garrett County, there are 17 TDI therapy dog teams providing hundreds of hours of support work to county residents.

The therapy teams' time and effort can make a huge difference in the lives of the elderly, the ill, and those experiencing stress in their lives.

TDI accepts all breeds as well as mixed breed dogs if they can pass a temperament evaluation and basic obedience test that assesses suitability for therapy work. A good therapy dog must be very calm, friendly, patient, confident, gentle, and at ease in all situations. Therapy dogs must enjoy contact with unfamiliar people and be content to be petted and handled, sometimes clumsily.

They are not service or assistance dogs. Service dogs directly assist humans and have a legal right to accompany their owners in most areas. As of 2010, there were 24,000 TDI dog/handler teams registered in all 50 states, as well as Canada.

The local teams are Susan Crawford and Huckleberry and Gipper (Laborador retrievers), Karen and Mike DeVore and Pearl (English bulldog), Ellen Fritz and Spree (retired Shetland sheepdog), Glenda Grubb and Bullet (Chinese crested powderpuff), Georgia Guyton and Lolo (mixed breed hound), Karla Harman and Benson (Labrador retriever), Bill Harper and Ira (Rottweiler), Susan and Tom Hertz and Teagan (Irish wolfhound), Barbara Lefebure and Trixie (mixed breed), Ken Mankamyer and Schooner (golden-doodle), Barb Michael and Quincy (golden retriever), Judi Schiff and Molly and Maggie (Cairn terriers), Debbie Sines and Jake (Bernese mountain dog), Deb Snyder and Josie (Doberman pinscher mix), Bill Walton and Rags (poodle/Wheaten terrier mix), Tim Watson and Kyle (golden retriever), and Bonnie Winters and Chaucer (golden retriever).

In the past year, these teams have visited a number of locations in and around the county, including Accident Elementary School, Cherry Hill Assisted Living; Diakon Adult Day Services at Mtn. Glade; Dennett Road Elementary School, Ruth Enlow libraries in Accident, Kitzmiller and Oakland (Story Tails); Garrett County Memorial Hospital; the Goodwill Retirement Community in Grantsville; Landon's Library; Northern Middle School; and the Terra Alta (W.Va.) Public Library.

It is profoundly moving to see how therapy dogs have the ability to help calm and soothe agitated individuals, while lifting the spirits of those who are sad and lonely. Physical contact with a dog has a calming effect, can play at role in the healing process, and often brings back pleasant memories for those in nursing facilities, assisted living communities, hospitals, and in hospice. And residents or patients are not the only ones who benefit, as staff members and visitors often look forward to visits as well.

Somewhat different from traditional therapy team settings is TDI's Tail Waggin' Tutors/Children Reading to Dogs program, which provides a relaxed and "dog-friendly" atmosphere that allows children to practice the skill of reading and builds self-esteem.

TDI also has a Disaster Stress Relief program that requires additional intensive training and evaluation.

Not all handlers or dogs are suitable for all aspects of therapy work. It is up to the handlers to determine the population they and their dogs are comfortable working with.

Facilities interested in having a therapy dog team visit may contact TDI at 973-252-9800 or tdi@gti.net, or send a letter describing the needs of the facility and the name of the contact person to TDI, 88 Bartley Rd., Flanders, NJ 07836.

More information is available online at www.tdi-dog.org.

THERAPY DOG TEAM VISITS LOCAL CENTER – The Therapy Dog International® (TDI) team of Susie Crawford and Gipper recently visited Oakland's Diakon Adult Day Services at Mtn. Glade. The duo is just one of at least 17 TDI teams that provide hundreds of hours of companionship, healing, and emotional support to local residents each year. See story for details. Standing, left to right, behind Crawford and Gipper are Mary Keefer, Jackie Neails, Gerald Friend, Anna Upperman, and Gregg Harvey at Diakon Adult Services. Photo courtesy of Susan Hertz.

DONATES TO LOCKS OF LOVE – Eight-year-old Gracie Groves recently made her third donation to Locks of Love. The nonprofit organization provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children in the United States and Canada under age 21 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis. Grace attends Accident Elementary School and lives in Bittinger with her mom Carol and sister Jessica.

Spotlight on Garrett County Non-Profits:

The Work They Do, The People They Serve

This column, sponsored by the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, is one of a series of articles about local non-profit organizations. The purpose is to inform citizens about the services offered by the organizations, and to let them know about the volunteer opportunities available within these groups.

This week's feature:
DEEP CREEK LAKE LIONS CLUB

History, Mission, and Programs

The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club recently observed the 40th anniversary of its charter, having begun in November 1971 under the sponsorship of the Oakland/Mountain Lake Park Lions Club.

The club is dedicated to serving the community and to improving the lives of those whose vision is impaired. The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club has two unique and special programs for the vision-impaired students of the Maryland School for the Blind (MSB).

In the winter, with the cooperation of the Wisp Resort, the club operates the Blind Skier Program. Students from Garrett County high schools and adult volunteers spend the day assisting the MSB students on the ski slopes. The blind skiers go downhill holding onto a bamboo pole that is held at each end by local volunteers. The MSB students also have the opportunity to experience other Wisp adventures, including snowmobiling and the Mountain Coaster.

In the summer, students from MSB camp out at Deep Creek Lake State Park, and during the day members of the Lions Club, again with the assistance of local high school students, provide the opportunity to experience lake-based recreational activities. The blind campers ride on speedboats, fish from pontoon boats, and ride personal watercraft. They are also taken to Funland, where, among other activities, they have a chance to drive the bumper cars.

Like all Lions clubs, the Deep Creek Lake club is committed to the vision impaired. The group collects eyeglasses (there are boxes in front of Foodland Fresh in McHenry and at Arrowhead), assist in vision screening at the schools, and will assist those in need with the purchase of eyeglasses.

Beyond Garrett County the club contributes to the Lions' Leader Dogs for the Blind program that trains and distributes service dogs to assist the blind, the Wilmer Eye Clinic in Baltimore, and other organizations.

The club also occasionally provides contributions to meet area needs, and is funding scholarships for local students at Garrett College.

Fundraising Events

The Deep Creek Lions sponsor various events to raise money to support its charitable activities. The club's signature event is the Cardboard Box Derby, held at the Wisp tubing park in March. During the annual Autumn Glory Festival in October, the DCL Lions provide utility hook-ups for the vendors, and sometimes assist with the Deep Creek's Got Talent Show, held at Honi Honi in the summer.

During ski season, the club also runs Casino Nights at some local restaurants.

Member Information

The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club is always looking for new members who believe in service to others and are willing to give some time to activities. The club meets twice each month, at Uno's restaurant in the winter and at Perkins and Lions Field (along Bumble Bee Road) in the summer. Those interested in joining should contact Doug McClive, whose information is provided above.

Excepting therefrom 3,814 Square Feet of land, more or less, conveyed unto Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, his wife, by Deed dated March 17, 1992 and recorded in Liber 582, Folio 267, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel Two: All that parcel of land containing 3,814 Square Feet of land, more or less, conveyed unto Holbrook/Ward Partnership by Deed from Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, his wife, by Deed dated April 24, 1992 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland in Liber no. 582, Folio 280 et seq.

Being the Fee Simple Property which, by Deed dated 06/09/2000, and recorded in the Land Records of the County of Garrett, Maryland, in Liber 809, Folio 227, was granted and conveyed by Arthur J. Ward and Terry L. Holbrook, Husband and Wife unto Erik Wemple and Stephanie Mencimer, Husband and Wife.

Property Two:

Parcel One: Beginning at a stake and pipe at the end of the second line of the 19 ½-acre tract of land conveyed by W. Dwight Stover, Trustee, to Peter H. Spiker and Katherine Spiker, said 19½-acre tract being the same tract as conveyed by Henry Sines to Madison Friend, et ux., via Deed dated May 4, 1925, and recorded in Liber 089, Page 457, among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland ; and running thence North 39 Degrees 11' East 349.38 Feet to a stake; thence South 72 Degrees 26' East 289.65 Feet to a concrete post Southeast of a large stone; thence South 16 Degrees 44' West 399.04 Feet to a stake; thence North 63 Degrees 30' East 530.69 Feet to the beginning, containing 4.10 acres, more or less.

Subject to a reservation of all coal underlying the above described parcel of land, together with the right to mine and remove same, as reserved in prior Deeds of Record.

Parcel Two: Beginning at a 1-inch pipe found marking the second corner of the 2.04-acre tract described in a Deed from Richard R. Larook to Holbrook/Ward Partnership recorded in Liber 543, Page 127, among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland; thence South 32 Degrees 27' 00" West 219.90 feet along land of Frank C. Clark to a 3/8 inch Rebar, found; thence North 79 Degrees, 52' 00" West 37.50 Feet along said land of Clark to a point; thence North 40 Degrees 52' 40" East 236.70 Feet through said Land of Holbrook/Ward Partnership to the beginning, containing 3,814 Square Feet, more or less.

Being the Fee Simple Property which, by Deed dated 07/23/02, and recorded in the Land Records of the County of Garrett, Maryland, in Liber 910, Folio 0001, was granted and conveyed by Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, Husband and Wife unto Erik C. Wemple and Stephanie A. Mencimer, Husband and Wife.

The property address is part of parcel which currently has the Improvements address of 115 Cheeks Lane, Oakland, MD 21550.

Said property is in fee simple and is sold in an "as is condition" and subject to all covenants, conditions, liens, restrictions, easement, rights-of-way as may affect same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $16,000.00 will be required at the time of sale, such deposit to be in cash, cashier's check, certified check, or in other form acceptable to the Substitute Trustees. Balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of the final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County. If payment of the balance does not take place within ten days of ratification, the deposit will be forfeited and property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed of trust note from date of sale to date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees in the event the property is purchased by someone rather than the note holder.

In the event settlement is delayed for any reason , there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges, assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $250.00 for outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to the date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees.

NOTE: The information contained herein was obtained from sources deemed to be reliable, but is offered for informational purposes only. Neither the auctioneer, the beneficiary of the Deed of Trust, the Substitute Trustee nor his agents or attorneys make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of information.

PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS ARE URGED TO PERFORM THEIR OWN DUE DILIGENCE WITH RESPECT TO THE PROPERTY PRIOR TO THE FORECLOSURE AUCTION. For additional Information, please contact the Substitute Trustees.

SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE'S SALE OF IMPROVED COMMERCIAL REAL ESTATE
1.07 acres and 0.84 acre, more or less,
Identified as
12170 National Pike, Grantsville, MD 21536

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a Deed of Trust dated February 15, 2002, and recorded in Liber No. 883, folio 838, among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, default having occurred under its terms, I, Craig Ingram, Substitute Trustee, hereby give notice that I will on at the Alder Street entrance to the Garrett County Circuit Courthouse, offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder the following property: 1.07 acres and 0.84 acre, more or less, Identified as 12170 National Pike, Grantsville, MD 21536, believed to include a 3,120 square foot steel garage structure. Being the same property as was conveyed by deeds dated November 30, 1994, and August 21, 1997, and recorded in Liber No. 643, folio 303, and Liber No. 716, folio 433, respectively, among said Land Records.

Terms of Sale: Deposit of THIRTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($13,000.00) will be required of Purchaser at the time and place of sale, such deposit to be cash, certified check or such other form as the Substitute Trustee may determine acceptable in his sole discretion. Balance to be payable by same method within fifteen (15) days after final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court, with interest on said balance from the date of sale to the date of actual receipt of funds by the Substitute Trustee at 7% per annum. There shall be no abatement of interest for any reason. Deposit not required if mortgagee is purchaser. Substitute Trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to extend the time of settlement at his discretion. Property is sold in "AS IS" condition. The Substitute Trustee makes no representations and/or warranty whatsoever regarding the title or any other matter with respect to the property, either express or implied, including but not limited to: the nature, condition, quality and quantity of the land, suitability of use and/or purpose, description of the property and/or improvements, if any. The Property will be sold subject to all easements, conditions, liens, restrictions, rights of redemption, covenants, encumberences and agreements of record affecting the same, and such state of facts that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property will be sold subject to all existing building, zoning, wetland, and environmental problems and or violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, if any. Purchaser at the foreclosure sale shall assume the risk of loss with respect to the Property as of the time of sale. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining possession of the property. Taxes, and similar public charges and assessments will be adjusted to the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the Purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for all unpaid and/or current sewer costs, including transfer fees. All costs of conveyance and settlement, including incidental settlement costs, including transfer taxes and recordation taxes, shall be paid by Purchaser. Time is of the essence as to Purchaser. In the event the Purchaser fails to settle as required, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available, Substitute Trustee may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the property at the risk and expense of Purchaser. In such event, Purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of resale, reasonable attorney fees, and all other charges due. In the event that Substitute Trustee is unable to conveymarketable title, or, in the event the Mortgagor entered into a repayment plan, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to sale, or if for any other reason, Substitute Trustee did not have the right to sell the property, the sale is null and void and Purchaser is not entitled to any legal or equitable remedy, other than the return of the deposit, without interest and any and all other claims of the Purchaser are hereby released. Other terms and conditions may be announced at the sale. The information contained herein is offered for Informational purposes only. It is Purchaser's obligation to obtain an independent investigation of the Property. The Note Holder and Substitute Trustee do not make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of this information and Purchaser holds them harmless from same.

LOCAL RESIDENT DONATES 200 POUNDS OF POP TOPS – Pictured above is Garrett County resident Ron Wiltison, who for more than 20 years has collected and donated canned beverage tabs for charitable purposes. Over that time period, Wiltison has given approximately 1,700 pounds of tabs. To the left of Wiltison is his latest haul, 20 pounds worth of "pop tops," which he recently donated to the Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown, W.Va. As it takes approximately 1,267 tops to weigh just one pound, that comes to 253,400 simple acts of refreshing kindness added up to make one big difference in the lives of many children and their families. The Ronald McDonald House Charities group recycles the collected aluminum in order to fund its philanthropic operations, and relies heavily on the assistance of citizens like Wiltison. For their assistance in his efforts, Wiltison has expressed his thanks to Glotfelty Enterprises, Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department, Piedmont Legion, NewPage Electric Shop, Busy Bees Homemakers, Ducky's Bar and Grill, and Dot and Jim Taylor, as well as many friends and strangers. He invites those interested in helping with his project to contact him at 301-387-2722.

"OUR CHRISTMAS GIFT TO YOU" is the name of the annual holiday concert of the Garrett Community Concart Band, which will be presented this Sunday, Dec. 4, at 2:30 p.m. in the Garrett College auditorium. Under the baton of Moe Turrentine, the band will play a variety of classical and contemporary pieces that fit the season, as well as a few patriotic marches, some international numbers (Russian and French), a special Hanukkah arrangement, the popular aria "Habanera" from the opera Carmen, and "Twas the Night Before Christmas," narrated by band spokesman/emcee Stan Grimm. Patty Wolfe, a professional soprano and former member of the U.S. Air Force Singing Sergeants, will be a guest vocalist. Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the door, with prices being $8 for adults, $2 for students, and free for those under age 6. A variety of gift items for musicians and all who are "musically inclined" will be available for purchase in the GC lobby. The band is a non-profit organization that is affiliated with Garrett College. Photo by John McEwen.

Spruce Forest To Host "Christmas In The Village"

The 29th annual "Christmas in the Village" will be held this Friday, Dec. 2, from 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 3, from noon to 8 p.m. at Spruce Forest Artisan Village, Grantsville. The event celebrates the art and heritage of the local region.

The public is invited to join resident artisans and guest artists for holiday cheer, music, a crafts sale, and hands-on activities. Guests may stroll among historic cabins decorated with greenery and lights. Over 400 candles will line the village paths and cross the historic Casselman Bridge.

"Visit the House of Yoder to witness an Amish Christmas and snack on popcorn," said a village spokesperson. "Go back in time inside the Compton one-room school, where children may decorate cookies while listening to storytelling."

Visitors may also try their hand at pottery in the Riverview Clay Studio, located under the Village Pottery. Stop in the cabin studios to see and buy Appalachian crafts. Those include Lynn Lais's pottery, Ann Jones' weaving, Mike Edelman's ironwork, Douglas Salmon's jewelry, Gene Gillespie's turned wood, and Gary Yoder's bird and feather carving. Guest artisans include Reita Marks with quilling creations, Peggy Nixon with slate paintings, and Lenore Lancaster with colored pencil drawings and prints.

Music will be featured at the village church. Friday's performances begin at 4 p.m. with the Allegany High School Chorus, followed each hour by the Mountain Friends Home School Chorus, Gortner Church Choir, and Mountain Melodies.

Saturday's performances begin at 1 p.m. with the Zoller Family and Friends, followed at 2 p.m. by the Frostburg State University Choir, at 3 p.m. by Hammers & Strings, at 4 p.m. by Broken Glass and Rusty Hinges, and at 5 p.m.

"A Small-Town Christmas" Slated For Friday, Dec. 2

"A Small-Town Christmas" in downtown Oakland is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. and run until around 9 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 2.

The event will kick off with the lighting of a Christmas tree located at the historic Oakland Train Station. Once the tree is illuminated, a Christmas parade will begin.

Featured in the parade will be Santa Claus, who will be available at Englander's (located at the corner of Second and Alder streets) beginning at 6:30 p.m. to meet with the public.

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce has stated that there will be bags of treats for all boys and girls. The chamber encourages citizens to bring cameras for photos of their children with Santa. Refreshments will be available for purchase at Englander's, and street venders will also be offering items.

Program To Examine Effects Of Gas Drilling On Real Estate, Job Market

Local residents with natural gas leases, and those interested in hearing some predictions of the jobs that might be created should gas drilling occur in Maryland may want to attend a new evening program offered by CitizenShale.org and scheduled for Thursday, Dec. 8.

Paul Durham, government affairs director for the Garrett County Board of Realtors, and Emily Wurth from Washington, D.C.,-based Food & Water Watch, will offer their perspectives that evening beginning at 7 p.m. in the Garrett College auditorium in McHenry. The program is free and open to the public.

"We are very excited to bring this timely information to our community," said Natalie Atherton, CitizenShale's acting director. "Our county's financial health is greatly dependent on real estate, especially vacation real estate, and local realtors are stepping up to the challenges associated with gas leasing.

"And Emily Wurth brings tremendous knowledge of another critical aspect of gas drilling – jobs," Atherton added.

Durham will outline the local realtors' plan for a Maryland gas lease registry that the local board submitted to a state commission studying shale gas development. If enacted into law this spring by the Maryland legislature, the registry would require everyone who has leased their property for future gas development to record details of the lease at a state-run office, such as, locally, the Department of Assessments and Taxation at the Garrett County Courthouse.

"It is very important to the well-being of our local real estate industry that there be a central place where information about all gas leases in the county can be readily viewed," noted Durham, who helped the local board develop the proposal over the last six months. "Likewise, a state registry will allow local and state officials to get a grasp on the total amount of leasing and what impact it might have on our local economy," he said.

Durham said that local realtors are responding in part to anecdotal evidence that some prospective real estate buyers in Garrett County have grown especially cautious in recent months because of the widespread knowledge that gas leasing is prevalent, while precise information about what parcels are leased has been difficult to obtain. Concerned about the possible impacts of gas development near a property listed for sale, such as damage to underground water supplies in nearby states where so-called "fracking" of gas wells is occurring, buyers want to know whether adjoining or nearby parcels have been leased for gas development.

"The transparency that a state lease registry would offer is better for everyone – buyer, seller, realtor, government, and mortgage-holder," said Durham.

Conflicts associated with gas leases, which include the right in some mortgage contracts for the bank to foreclose on those who lease their properties for gas development, were highlighted in October in a New York Times investigation. The article described how banks worry that gas development could diminish real estate values.

"What happens," the author asks, "if they lend money for a piece of land that ends up storing the equivalent of an olympic-size swimming pool filled with toxic wastewater from drilling?"

Real estate loans backed by federally funded sources such as Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac require certain standards and disclosures of mineral leases, according to Durham. Some banks are deciding to avoid lending on properties where gas rights have been leased, or in areas where real estate values might be jeopardized by extensive gas development.

The local realtor board voted in early November to ask the state to establish the registry. It then sent a letter with that recommendation to the state commission studying issues related to shale gas development. The issue was discussed briefly at the commission's Nov. 15 meeting in McHenry.

Gov. Martin O'Malley appointed the commission this past summer and called for a three-year halt to development, to allow time for the technology and the myriad of issues surrounding it to be considered. Elected state and local officials from Allegany and Garrett counties, along with owners and representatives from local businesses, serve on the 14-person com-

GC Unemployment Rate Decreases From Sept. To Oct.

Garrett County's unemployment rate decreased from 6.5 percent in September to 6.4 percent in October, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Garrett County's civilian labor force for the month of September was 17,044. Of that figure, 1,106 individuals were unemployed. In October, the labor force totaled 16,699, with 1,065 persons unemployed.

Allegany County's rate decreased from 8.5 percent in September to 7.9 in October. Washington County also saw an improvement in its unemployment rate from 9.6 in September down to 8.8 in October.

In addition to Allegany and Washington counties, 12 other Maryland jurisdictions had higher rates in October than Garrett County: Baltimore City, 10 percent; Baltimore County, 7.3; Caroline, 8.5; Cecil, 8.2; Dorchester, 9.7; Harford, 6.7; Kent, 7.3; Prince George's, 7.0; Somerset, 8.7; Washington, 8.8; Wicomico, 8.2; and Worcester, 10.6.

Maryland's overall unemployment rate (seasonally adjusted) for October was 6.8 percent, compared to the national rate (unseasonally adjusted) of 8.5 percent.

For October 2010, Garrett County's rate was 6.6 percent, the state's was 7.1 percent, and the nation's was 9 percent.

Garrett Co. Roads Department Offers Winter Mailbox Tips

As the Garrett County Roads Department is gearing up for the winter season ahead, it offers the following tips to prevent mailbox damage during snow removal operations:

• Homeowners should make mailboxes as visible as possible for snow plow operators by placing a six-to-eight-inch piece of reflective tape and/or small, brightly colored flags on the mailbox.

• Remove snow from around the mailbox, but avoid throwing it back onto the road.

• Homeowners may consider temporarily replacing their decorative/over-size mailboxes with utilitarian, standard ones for the winter. The county will replace a mailbox that it has damaged, but only with a basic, standard-size one.

• Homeowners may want to consider relocating the mailbox if previous damage occurred.

• Make sure the mailbox is firmly supported in the ground to withstand the snow moved aside by the plow.

These tips can also be used toward preventing other road frontage property damage such as fences and entry/lamp posts.

"It is unfortunate that mailboxes are occasionally damaged by Garrett County Roads Department efforts to maintain safe roads during the winter," said DaVina Griffith, risk manager, Garrett County Office of Human Resources.

Plowing can push snow against or in front of mailboxes, limiting access and perhaps causing damage to mailboxes and supports, she noted.

"Remember, it is the responsibility of the owner to ensure that his/her mailbox is visible, stable, and firmly supported so it will be able to withstand snow moved aside by the plow," Griffith said. "Check your mailbox and support often, clearing snow from it and depositing

Man Charged With Attempted Murder After Stabbing

A local man was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies on attempted murder and assault charges that stem from an incident along Hutton Road early Sunday morning.

Investigation revealed that Kendall Shane Lowers, 39, had allegedly stabbed William Sachs Sr., 52, multiple times while in a wooded area off Hutton Road. After reporting the incident to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, Sachs was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital and then flown to Ruby Memorial Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va. Sachs was reportedly listed in fair condition earlier this week.

Lowers was charged with first- and second-degree attempted murder and first-degree assault. He was taken to the Garrett County Jail before being seen by a District Court commissioner, who set his bond at $250,000.

ANNIE GET YOUR GUN! The theatre department of Southern High School is staging Irving Berlin's musical Annie Get Your Gun, with a cast of nearly 50 students. The show will open tonight, Dec. 1, and continue on Dec. 2, 3, 8, 9, and 10, all at 8 p.m. on the high school stage. The musical is based on the life of Annie Oakley, who in the 1800s became the greatest female sharpshooter in the world. See story on today's arts page. The lead roles will be split between two groups of students. Annie Oakley will be played by Corinne Weaver and Frank Butler by Jenner Wilt on Dec. 2, 8, and 10. Other students playing lead roles on those evenings include Stevee Royce, Hao Brooks, Josh Nesselrodt, Justyce Fulmer, Trysta Weeks, Cody Murphy, Anthony Mullan, and Jen Shillingburg. Annie will be played by Alison Mullan and Frank by Brennon Crosby on Dec. 1, 3, and 9. Other students playing lead roles on those evenings include Bryanna King, Megan Fitzwater, Ayren Campbell, Justyce Fulmer, Charlie Frazee, Raine Baker, Josh Nesselrodt, and Hao Brooks. The show is under the direction of theatre teacher Erin White. Tickets, which are $5, may be purchased at the door. Children 8 and younger will be admitted free of charge.

"SHELDON THE DRAGON" BY JULIANNA SHARPLESS placed second in the Creativity category in the 10th annual statewide "Rethink Recycling" Sculpture Contest in Baltimore. Julianna, a junior at Southern High School, was one of six regional winners who competed in the event, which is open to 10th–12th grade students. (See story and additional photos on page B-1). The contest stresses the importance of recycling and preserving natural resources. Julianna created Sheldon with paper, metal, glass, copper, newspaper, plastic, and puzzle pieces. Her sculpture won first place in the 11th grade division in the regional contest.

Boy Scouts Set Christmas Tree Sale In Oakland

Boy Scout Troop 1, Oakland, will sell Christmas trees starting on Saturday, Dec. 3, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at CVS Pharmacy at the corner of 3rd Street and Memorial Drive. Additional times are Monday through Friday from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

There is a donation of $25 per tree. Proceeds will go to the troop for its yearly camping trips and outings.

For additional information persons may call Mark Miller, Scout master, at 301-334-3181.

Driver Charged With DUI, DWI Following Wreck

A McHenry woman was arrested following a single-vehicle accident, after she was discovered to be operating the vehicle under the influence of alcohol. Garrett County sheriff's deputies were the responding officers.

Deputies responded to Sand Flat Road near the intersection of Boy Scout Road. They had been informed prior to their arrival that the driver was attempting to leave the scene. Wanda Jean Housley, 37, was identified as the driver of the vehicle, which had left the roadway and struck a mailbox, disabling the vehicle.

Housley was charged with driving under the influence, driving while impaired, negligent driving, reckless driving, failure to return and remain at the scene of an accident, failure to report property damage to nearest police, and failure to stop after unattended property damage. She was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

Loch Lynn Man Sentenced To Three Years On CDS Possession Charge

A Loch Lynn Heights man was sentenced in recent Garrett County District Court to three years by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert on a controlled dangerous substance possession charge.

Cody James Broadwater, 22, was found guilty on a CDS possession not marijuana charge that stemmed from a traffic stop by Garrett County sheriff's deputies this past August. Two years of his sentence were suspended, and he was given credit for 24 days served. He was also ordered to complete three years of supervised probation to be monitored by the Maryland Division of Parole and Probation following his release.

Broadwater was the driver of a Cavalier passenger vehicle that was allegedly traveling through Oakland at a high rate of speed. A search conducted by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force revealed a quantity of heroin hidden on his person.

Broadwater had additional hearings that resulted in more jail time. He was found guilty on a violation of an ex parte/protective order, for which he was sentenced to 90 days. He was additionally found guilty on a failure to obey a lawful order charge, for which he was sentenced 60 days. He was not prosecuted on three counts of violating a protective order, stalking, disturbing the peace, and disorderly conduct. All charges stem from various incidents that occurred at a Loch Lynn residence from August to October of this year.

In other court news, Christopher Michael Johnson, 20, Oakland, was found guilty on a conspiracy theft of less than $100 charge that stemmed from an incident investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in January. He was sentenced to 90 days with 60 suspended, and he was placed on two years of supervised probation. Johnson reportedly stole a carton of cigarettes from Short Stop convenience store. He was not prosecuted on a theft less than $100 charge.

Jordan Maxwell Shoener, 28, North Kingston, R.I., was found guilty on a possession of marijuana charge that stemmed from a July traffic stop by Maryland State Police. He was sentenced to 45 days sus-

GCHD Warns Public Of Growing Nat'l Prescription Drug Problem

by Diane Lee
Public Information Officer
Garrett County Health Department

Prescription drug abuse among teens is a serious and growing problem. The National Survey on Drug Use and Health showed that there are as many new teenage-prescription drug abusers as new users of marijuana. The survey also showed that while levels of illegal drug abuse among youth had declined in many areas over the past few years, prescription drug abuse has grown significantly.

A high percentage of teens and young adults report that they can get access to someone else's prescription drugs from the family medicine cabinet. In fact, one in five teens reports intentionally misusing someone else's prescription drugs to get high (2008 Parent Attitude Tracking Study, Partnership for a Drug Free America). In Garrett County, 13.6% of high school agey outh used a prescription drug to get high in the previous 30 days, according to the Garrett County Youth Risk Behavior Survey, and 66% of those youth abused someone else's prescription drugs.

"The Garrett County Drug Free Communities Coalition looked at this information a year or so ago," reported Kendra McLaughlin, director of health education at the Garrett County Health Department. "And the members made one of their priorities to reduce access to prescription drugs in the home by increasing awareness among adults."

As a result, health department staff and DFCC members will be promoting a campaign titled "The Streets aren't the only place kids find drugs. Mind Your Meds."

This campaign is being featured in the media, in presentations by community outreach workers at senior centers and work sites, and through participating pharmacies and health care provider offices. Parents will also be targeted, as teens consistently identify them as their most influential source of information about drugs.

"We are reminding parents, family members, and neighbors of teens to secure prescription drugs in the home, and count their pills regularly," McLaughlin said. "Many adults just don't realize that their prescription drugs are at risk of being taken right out of their medicine cabinet. This campaign will change that."

One way to make sure prescriptions do not end up in the wrong hands is to dispose of expired, unused, and unwanted prescriptions drugs appropriately. Garrett County agencies teamed up with the Drug Enforcement Agency on Oct. 29 to hold a Prescription Drug "Take-Back" event throughout the county to assist with proper disposal. Personnel at six sites across the county collected prescription drugs that could potentially be dangerous if left in the family's medicine cabinet. More than 50 pounds of prescriptions were collected and disposed of properly.

For more information about the Mind Your Meds campaign, or about future Drug Take-Back events, persons may contact the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111.

Funding for the Mind Your Meds campaign is made possible by a Drug Free Communities Support Program grant from the Office of National Drug Control Policy and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

"MIND YOUR MEDS" is the message being promoted by the Garrett County Health Department in an effort to stem a growing national problem concerning the misuse of prescription drugs. More than 50 pounds of pills were collected at the six sites around the county during a drug "Take-Back" event held on Oct. 29, organized by the health department. See story. The new awareness campaign is proclaiming the following message: "The streets aren't the only place kids find drugs. Mind your meds!"

St. Mark's Holding Advent Services Focused On Carols

St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland is now engaged in Advent prayer services at the church every Wednesday beginning at 7 p.m.

According to Pastor C. Scott Robinson, the half-hour vesper services include readings, special music by the choir directed by Susan Peterson, and brief talks by congregation members about favorite Christmas carols; the history, background, and other information about each chosen carol.

The first service was held last night, and the remaining are slated for Dec. 7, 14 and 21. The public is invited to attend. For more information, persons may call the church at 301-334-2668.

pended and 18 months of unsupervised probation. The stop revealed a quantity of marijuana, digital scales, several smoking pipes, and individually packaged bags of cocaine. He was not prosecuted on possession with intent to distribute not marijuana and possession of paraphernalia charges.

Ashley Nicole Collins, 26, Oakland, was given a probation before judgment (PBJ) verdict on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a physical altercation with another adult female that was investigated by GC sheriff's deputies in September. She was sentenced to 30 days suspended and one year of supervised probation. She was also fined $500, which was suspended. She was not prosecuted on first-degree assault and second-degree assault charges.

Ashley Anne Monappella, 21, Quakertown, Pa., was given a PBJ on a possession of paraphernalia charge and fined $100. She was also placed on one day of unsupervised probation. She was in a vehicle stopped in July by Maryland State Police, who found various marijuana pipes and a quantity of marijuana. She was not prosecuted on a possession of marijuana charge.

Michael Shaun Cosner, 33, Gormania, W.Va., was not prosecuted on first-degree burglary and theft less than $100 charge that stemmed from a September incident investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies. He reportedly helped an adult female break into an Oakland Sang Run Road residence, where she allegedly stole Percocet pills.

Curtis Ray Friend Sr., 76, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a second-degree assault charge that stemmed from a September domestic dispute investigated by GC sheriff's deputies.

DUI/DWI CASES

The following driving under the influence (DUI) and driving while intoxicated (DWI) cases were recently heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Kenneth Lee Weisend, 43, Pennsylvania, was found guilty on a DUI charge that stemmed from a September traffic stop by MSP. He was sentenced to six months, with five months and 20 days suspended. He was also fined $1,000, of which $500 was suspended, and placed on two years of supervised probation. He was not prosecuted on DWI and DUI per se charges.

Terry Lee Boggs, 55, Maryland, was found guilty on a DUI per se stemming from a June traffic stop by MSP. He was sentenced to 60 days suspended and placed on one year of unsupervised probation. He was not prosecuted on DUI and DWI charges.

Eric John Albanese, 37, Virginia, was given a PBJ on a DUI charge that stemmed from a January stop by MSP. He was sentenced to six months suspended and fined $1,000, with $750 suspended. He was also placed on three years of unsupervised probation. He was not prosecuted on DUI per se and DWI charges.

Nicholas Brian Simpson, 18, Md., was given a PBJ on a DWI that stemmed from a July stop by Maryland State Police. He was sentenced to 30 days suspended and fined $500, of which $300 was suspended. He was also placed on one year of unsupervised probation. He was not prosecuted on DUI and DUI per se charges.

Frostburg State Nursing Program Gets Accreditation

Frostburg State University's growing Bachelor of Science in Nursing program has achieved accreditation from the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education, an essential step in the development of the young program.

FSU's B.S.N. is a completion program designed for licensed registered nurses who wish to earn a bachelor's degree. The program is presented entirely online, except for required clinical hours, which can be completed in sites near students' homes. According to an FSU spokesperson, it prepares its graduates to assume roles in leadership, complex clinical care coordination and public and community health, and provides the academic foundation for graduate study. It can be completed in as little as 18 months, depending on prerequisite courses.

FSU graduated its first nursing students in May 2011; the CCNE site visit in April ensured that all of those students hold a degree from an accredited program, a requirement of graduate programs in nursing, according to Heather Gable, chair of the FSU Department of Nursing and coordinator of the program.

As of the fall 2011 semester, 32 students were enrolled in the program that first received approval in 2008.

For accreditation with CCNE, schools must demonstrate that their mission NAMED GOLD SPONSOR OF PACE – Susquehanna Bank is a 2012 PACE Gold Sponsor, with bank managing director Kathy Getty shown at left presenting the sponsorship check to co-chair J. Robert Smith. The annual PACE reception and legislative breakfast will be held in Annapolis on Jan. 26 and 27. The event will be hosted by the Cumberland/Allegany County Industrial Foundation Inc. and the Garrett County Development Corporation. Sponsorships are vital to PACE, which stands for "Positive Attitudes Change Everything." This financial support allows Allegany and Garrett counties to host the governor, members of the General Assembly, and other leaders as guests as the group presents its priorities, explains challenges, and shares local perspective. In addition to being a sponsor, businesses, organizations, and other entities are invited to display at both events. These are offered on a first-come-first-served basis, and PACE is booking now. The general public is invited to attend, with an all inclusive ticket offered to both events. The theme is "Come to Play – Plan to Stay." For additional information, persons may visit the web site at www.mtmdpace.com or contact Keli Mason, Allegany County Economic Development, at 301-777-5967 or 1-800-565-4080, or via e-mail at kmason@allconet.org.

A Spending Problem...

According to today's issue of the Wall Street Journal, Maryland ranks a respectable, but somewhat surprising, 11th among the 50 states in terms of how well each state is fiscally managed. Those responsible for the rankings reviewed data on the financial health, standard of living, and government services. More specifically, they looked at where each state stood in state debt per capita, the percentage of citizens who have no health insurance, unemployment, and the percentage of those who are below the poverty line.

The report noted the state's credit rating of AAA – the highest possible – and the fact that the state has the third lowest percentage (9.1%) of people living below the poverty line as the two major factors in Maryland's relatively high ranking.

However, just a few days ago, the Maryland Business for Responsive Government (MBRG), a statewide, non-partisan, political research and education organization that works to improve the state's business climate, reported that Maryland's government has one of the highest increases in spending for the current fiscal year. Data released by the National Governors Association shows that Maryland's spending is up 11.4% over that of FY 2011.

Meanwhile, the national average is an increase of 2.9%. Those of Maryland's neighboring states are higher than the average, but the Free State leads that group, with West Virginia showing a hike of 8.2%, Delaware up 9.3%, Virginia up 7.1%, and Pennsylvania actually showing a decrease in spending of 4.1%. Maryland's increase is 7th highest among all of the states.

"These numbers clearly show that Maryland has a spending problem. Maryland's political leadership continues to feed the beast with hard-earned taxpayer dollars through tax and fee increases instead of looking for cost savings in the budget," said MBRG president Kimberly M. Burns. "Without an honest, bipartisan assessment of state spending, the budget will only continue to grow out of control and politicians will demand more and more revenue on a continued march toward big government."

With the state facing another huge deficit at the end of the current fiscal year, the near total loss of Highway User Funds for already financially strapped counties and especially our municipalities, and various other cuts in state revenues – but coupled with an 11.4% increase in spending – Ms. Burns' assessment that "Maryland has a spending problem" seems to be dead on, and it seems like the folks on Wall Street are missing something.

To the Editor:

The Garrett County Historical Society wishes to express sincere appreciation to Rob and Ruth Hinebaugh for graciously agreeing to provide the beautiful Christmas display in the Littman Building window along Second Street in downtown Oakland, which previously held the annual model train display. The Atwills are no longer able to do the tremendous work involved with the wonderful train layout.

Many thanks to Scott and Helen from young and old for the past years of "the trains."

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

The Oakland and Grantsville Rotary clubs are nearing the end of their annual Christmas Project. Each year, 400 Garrett County families with close to 800 children and 150 senior citizens enjoy a special Christmas celebration in honor of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. As many in Garrett County struggle in these tough economic times, Rotary and its many partners are blessed to be able to give the gift of service to others. From a single mom with a new born baby to a 95 year-old senior citizen, your generosity touches many in need.

Gifts are to be returned to the trees by Wednesday, Dec. 7. Volunteers are needed to help with delivery on Saturday, Dec. 10, starting at 8:30 a.m. in the parish hall of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland. For further information, please feel free to contact me, Daryl Walters, at 301-334-7601.

Thank you, and Merry Christmas!

To the Editor:

I agree with your editorial of last week in regard to the Occupy Wall Street movement that there "has to be a better way." I think they should take all their time and energy, and support the "If you're in, you're out" movement. With all of the House and 33 Senate seats up for election in Nov. 2012, we as a people need to send a strong message to Washington, D.C., the message being that if you refuse to do what we sent you to Washington to do, you will be replaced.

Congress is so corrupt that it is almost impossible to tell the crooks from those who care, so the solution is to replace them all, then we will know we got them all. And it should be made perfectly clear that their first item will be to set term limits for both the House and the Senate, not to exceed 8 years for either one.

With a 9% approval rating for Congress, it's time for a major change and that should be the Occupy Wall Street's #1 agenda. I just hope that all the people involved remember next November who caused this problem and get out and vote. If the recent Baltimore election for mayor was an indicator of the level of voter apathy, then nothing will change.

Here's hoping Occupy Wall Street participants make "If you're in, you're out" as their #1 goal! Replace them all; no exceptions!

To the Editor:

The 4th annual Festival of Trees, a fundraising event for the Dove Center, was a joyful celebration of the family fun of Christmas – children, Santa, food, music, entertainment . . . and shopping! There were beautiful, creative trees, wreaths, centerpieces, and gingerbread houses, each one designed and donated by talented and generous individuals, organizations, and businesses.

Several new additions to the event this year included local vendors offering everything from gourmet chocolates to woodcarvings. A special children's shopping area, Ellenheim Mall, where children could buy gifts for very little money, was a huge hit with children and parents alike. The items were donated by the community and gift wrapped for free. Much of this was made possible by moving the event to the new Exhibit Hall at the fairgrounds, which allowed for more activities and comfortable space for the record number of attendees.

In addition to their own special shopping mall, children could have breakfast with Santa, have their picture taken with him in his sleigh, decorate and take home their own special holiday cookie, have their faces painted, participate in many different crafts and games, receive balloons and other small gifts, and interact with several strolling characters, from Rudolph to Frosty. Even Mrs. Claus made a visit.

None of this would have been possible without the generosity and countless hours of community members who supported this worthy cause. On behalf of the organizing committee, we express our deep gratitude to everyone – volunteers, designers, judges, entertainers, and attendees, for making this event such – success. Garrett County is an extraordinary community!

Judy Finkel, Co-Chairs

To the Editor:

Mr. Cobbs of the Maryland Petroleum Council (The Republican, Nov. 24) reports that a poll they commissioned found 74% favoring development of natural gas resources in our state. Until reading this article, I had never even heard of this "poll."

There is too much at stake to plow ahead and allow drilling without making scientific inquiry by unbiased parties. There is too much at stake to reach for "huge sums of money" (Times-News, Nov. 23) without identifying long-term effects. There is too much at stake to glibly insist there is no research to show water contamination, while at the same time the gas industry opposes pre-drilling scientific water analysis, followed by drilling and post-drilling analyses.

If fracking is safe, why the opposition? Claiming there is no research showing water or soil contamination is misleading, when there is no research, period.

Devastation of rural landscapes, potential environmental contamination, the gas industry's exemption from the Clean Water Act, and gag orders (in other states) tied to long and costly legal settlements should give us pause.

Whether landowner, voter, resident, tourist advocate, elected official, or a member of the Governor's Commission, let us all look beyond the promise of "a huge sum of money." No amount of money is worth drilling without careful scientific studies and without holding the gas industry accountable and responsible for safe drilling.

Our governor has stepped up to the plate, in spite of the pressure of a powerful industry and the temptation for quick, economic gain. If our lands are devastated, if our air, soil, and waters are polluted, if our rural area is demolished, what have we gained? I commend the governor for his stand.

From others in neighboring states, we should take note. From the adage we learned in childhood, we should remember – "Stop, look, and listen."

To the Editor:

And now the rest of the story: Recently credit unions have attempted to use "Bank Transfer Day" as justification for Congress to increase their commercial lending authorities, which is ironical and deceiving to the public. Congress years ago passed laws to give a special power to credit unions who serve people of modest means originally limited to being employed at the same company. They pay no federal income taxes. That is a 35% extra profit margin for credit unions. That is 35% less that the federal government will receive in credit unions' profits.

While some credit unions stick to this bargain, a group of large, aggressive credit unions are chafing at the restrictions that are tied to their privileged federal tax exemption. They want more – including increased power to lend to commercial enterprises. These institutions could have this authority simply by switching their company charters to a federal tax-paying mutual savings bank that is owned by its customers.

Congress should not give credit unions access to commercial lending. Credit unions already have this power by simply switching credit union charters to a taxpaying mutual savings bank that is owned by its customers. Do not give them this extension of American taxpayers' subsidy. As our nation's deficit soars, it would be unconscionable for Congress to oblige them.

When the public gets loans from credit unions, are these loans 35% cheaper on interest charged to the borrower? Hardly. Because of your and my federal tax subsidies these credit unions are not paying their fair share of taxes. Isn't it time to rethink this 35% perpetual federal tax holiday instead of widening these federal tax loopholes?

Yours truly in tax fairness and reduction of deficits,
Gary Ruddell
McHenry

To the Editor:

It really is quite amusing to observe the desperate attempt by the "lamestream media" and others on the left as they try their best to somehow spin the sordid saga of the Occupy Wall Street movement across the nation in a positive light.

Although I do not doubt or dispute the fact that many of the original protesters and demonstrators may have been sincere and legitimate in their complaints, it soon went awry. As seems to almost always be the case when those on the left take up a cause in this fashion, things soon deteriorated into violence and mass anarchy. There is no respect for personal property or the rights of others to go about their daily lives. Many businesses suffered greatly because of the chaos.

Yes, we the people are guaranteed the right to "peaceably assemble." How does peaceably assembling coincide with the smashing of windows and deliberate destruction of other personal property? Let alone the other criminal activities which took place at many locations, such as rape, theft, murder, and, of course, the rampant use of illegal drugs. Not to mention the sanitation aspect of it all. Many firsthand observers reported the stench of urine and marijuana as public urination and drug use abounded.

This movement did nothing but put on public display the very worst elements of our society. Regardless of whom we want to blame for our nation's fiscal problems, these malcontents showed us all just how ignorant they are.

There was no coherent, uniting message. Ask a hundred different people and you got about that many different answers. Some were in an obviously drug-induced stupor.

Unlike the Tea Party movement, which had zero violence and complete respect for others' property, both public and private, they will leave no lasting legacy to be proud of.

I was there on the mall in Washington, D.C., on 8/28/10, along with several of my children when Glenn Beck held his rally. Park personnel remarked afterward about the fact that there was almost no trash to pick up, because the people were responsible and disposed of it properly.

The Tea Party has left a lasting legacy already by electing to office many new congressional voices who have pledged to do their best to put a stop to the irresponsible government spending of the last decade, and especially the past three years.

The difference is like night and day!

The race to the bottom!

It all started with:

Michelle Bachmann, quoted on the environment – "Carbon dioxide is portrayed as harmful. But there isn't even one study that can be produced that shows that carbon dioxide is a harmful gas." (Someone else keeps saying this, too.)

Rick Perry, quoted on how he would reorganize government – "I will tell you, it's three agencies of government, when I get there, that are gone: Commerce, Education

TREES FOR TROOPS SHIPPED – A total of 72 Christmas trees were donated this season by local businesses, individuals, and farms to be provided to men and women currently serving in the United States military. The trees were brought to the Mountain Top Tree Farm in Oakland, which is the western Maryland pick-up point for the Trees for Troops Christmas Spirit Foundation and the National Christmas Tree Association. Fed Ex picked them up yesterday for shipping. The Mountain Top farm is owned by Aleta Glotfelty, and managed by Randy and Jean Sisler. The Sislers' son, Sean Anthony, a hospital apprentice with the United States Navy, is on leave this week and was able to help out yesterday with the loading of the trees. He is a graduate of the Great Lakes Navel Station and Fort Sam Houston Corpsman School. He is currently stationed at Camp Lejeune in North Carolina. In addition to the Mountain Top farm, trees were donated from the following tree farms: Foremen, Woodlake, Hinebaugh, and Pleasant Valley, as well as from the following companies: Oakland Timberjax LLC, Pineview Veterinary Hospital, Curt's Corner, and Oak-Mar Restaurant. Pictured from left are Randy Sisler, Sean Sisler, Joe Lynch, Robert Paugh, and Fed Ex driver Brad Yeater.

Letters

and the – what's the third one there? Let's see...."

Rick Santorum, quoted on torture – "McCain doesn't understand how enhanced interrogation works. I mean, you break somebody, and after they're broken, they become cooperative." (Don't Google Santorum.)

Herman Cain, quoted on his family ties – "I am the Koch brothers' brother from another mother!"

Ron Paul, quoted on civil rights – "I would have voted against the Civil Rights Act."

Mitt Romney, quoted on his friends – "Corporations are people, my friend... of course they are."

And finally, the newest front runner!

Newt Gingrich, quoted on how his patriotism has been the reason for his serial philandering – "There's no question at times of my life, partially driven by how passionately I felt about this country, that I worked far too hard and things happened in my life that were not appropriate."

Has everyone in the Republican Party forgotten about January 1997 when the House of Representatives voted 395 to 28 to reprimand House Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-Ga.) and order him to pay a $300,000 penalty? This was the first time in history it has disciplined a speaker for ethical wrongdoing. Gingrich broke House rules by failing to ensure that financing for two projects would not violate federal tax law and by giving the House Ethics Committee false information. (The rest of us call that lying.) He finally resigned in disgrace in November 1998!

Local favorite Roscoe G. Bartlett was one of the 28 who said they believed the sanction, especially the financial penalty, was too severe.

Another supporter was Tom DeLay (R-Tex.), who gave a spirited speech calling the penalty unwarranted. He was later convicted and sentenced to three years for unrelated money laundering

At the Dec. 8 event, Emily Wurth's presentation, titled "Shale Gas: Are the Good Jobs Really Happening?" will draw heavily on Food & Water Watch's white paper released in November. F&WW policy analysts spent months researching employment claims made by the oil and gas industry, university departments that work closely with the energy sector to promote development, and industry-sponsored think tanks and trade associations. The entire F&WW white paper and other documents can be found online at CitizenShale.org.

In New York, for example, where gas development is expected to begin next year after several years of a de facto moratorium, one industry-backed organization attracted much publicity with its claim that gas drilling would create 62,620 direct and indirect jobs.

"But," said Wurth, who is director of F&WW's water programs, "our staff really dug into those numbers, looked closely at the forecasting models, and found that only one-tenth of the direct jobs claimed are likely to materialize."

There is also controversy surrounding job-creation claims made in Pennsylvania by the Marcellus Shale Coalition and Pennsylvania State University. Similarly, elected officials such as Garrett County's state delegation – Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel – and the three-member Allegany County Board of Commissioners have all gone on record with predictions that the industry will bring "thousands of good-paying jobs to western Maryland."

Adorable Adoptables

The theatre department of Southern High School will present Irving Berlin's musical Annie Get Your Gun this week and next, with the opening show set for tonight, Dec. 1, on the school's stage. The run will continue on Dec. 2, 3, 8, 9, and 10, with all shows at 8 p.m.

The musical is based on the life of Annie Oakley, pictured above. Born Phoebe Ann Mosey in Darke County, Ohio, in 1830, the young girl who would rise to fame as the greatest female sharpshooter in the world came from humble beginnings, according to Erin White, director of the show. Oakley's father died from hypothermia when she was young, and she took it upon herself to pay off the mortgage on her mother's land by selling game to local hotels. She gained notoriety when she won a shooting match against American sharpshooter Frank Butler.

Oakley later married Butler and soon joined Buffalo Bill's Wild West traveling show, in which Annie performed trick shots and Frank acted as her manager for 18 years.

Her famous tricks included shooting at a target over her shoulder using a mirror to aim, shooting six balls of amber glass thrown simultaneously before any of them could reach the ground, and shooting apples off her dog's head and lit cigarettes from her husband's mouth. Surviving several automobile injuries and even a train accident, Oakley went on to teach hundreds of women how to shoot a firearm.

"Sitting still," she was quoted as saying, "is harder than any kind of work." She died in 1926, followed just 18 days after by her husband.

In Southern's production, the lead roles will be split between two groups of students. Annie Oakley will be played by Corinne Weaver and Frank Butler by Jenner Wilt on Dec. 2, 8, and 10. Other students playing lead roles on those evenings include Stevee Royce, Hao Brooks, Josh Nesselrodt, Justyce Fulmer, Trysta Weeks, Cody Murphy, Anthony Mullan, and Jen Shillingburg.

Annie will be played by Alison Mullan and Frank by Brennon Crosby on Dec. 1, 3, and 9. Other students playing lead roles on those evenings include Bryanna King, Megan Fitzwater, Ayren Campbell, Justyce Fulmer, Charlie Frazee, Raine Baker, Josh Nesselrodt, and Hao Brooks.

White said the entire cast features nearly 50 students. Tickets, which are $5, may be purchased at the door. Children 8 and younger are admitted free of charge.

Handbag Raffle To Benefit SHS Theater Group

The Depot store in Oakland is conducting a raffle to benefit the Southern High School theater group. Tickets are $1 each, and the winning ticket holder will receive an authentic Coach handbag (manufacturer's suggest retail price: $298).

The drawing is scheduled for Christmas Eve at 2 p.m. The winner need not be present to win.

Participants may enter the raffle as often as they like. Depot employees and their family members are not eligible to enter.

The Depot is located near Wal-Mart at 13180 Garrett Highway (on the hill beside GameStop and Cato).

GC Arts Council Seeking To Add New Members

The Garrett County Arts Council (GCAC) is currently accepting members for the 2012 calendar year. The organization, the mission of which is to instill the appreciation of a variety of arts and cultural opportunities for the citizens of the region, is a registered 501(c) 3 not-for-profit and membership contributions are tax-deductible.

During the past year, through grant funding, GCAC supported two community bands, three theatres, seven community festivals, and projects with the Garrett County Board of Education. The council also provided general operating funds for groups such as Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, Garrett Community Concert Band, and Spruce Forest Artisan Village.

GCAC provided free artists' demonstrations to the public, offered hands-on workshops, organized county-wide artist studio tours, and the Autumn Glory Heritage Craft Fest, and assisted with Art in the Park.

The council also published the literary journal Ginseng, providing an outlet for the work of local writers. The council's retail outlet, the Gallery Shop, provided space for nearly 150 local artists to display and sell their work.

In addition to supporting these types of projects, membership in Garrett County Arts Council provides individuals eligibility to be considered for member-only art shows, receive invitations to artist receptions and special events, and receive the bi-monthly newsletter.

Various categories of membership support are available beginning at a $15 level.

Any member in good standing receives a 10% discount on every purchase at the Gallery Shop. Items available at the downtown Oakland location include original paintings and photography, hand-thrown pottery, unique jewelry, textiles, wood working, glass, handmade natural soaps, and more.

Members may also volunteer their time and knowledge in various ways throughout the year. Opportunities are available to help at events, assist with office projects, or lend expertise to one of the council's various committees.

In addition to membership support, the Garrett County Arts Council receives funding from Garrett County government and the Maryland State Arts Council.

HAU PRESENTING MUSIC OF DENVER – Highland Arts Unlimited will present a Christmas show that will celebrate the life and music of John Denver. Jim Curry's Take Me Home: The Music of John Denver program will be presented on the campus of Potomac State College on Sunday, Dec. 4, at the Church-McKee Arts Center, beginning at 3 p.m. Curry looks and sounds like John Denver, and is an expert at the late musician's works, a spokesperson said. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students. Children under 12 are admitted free with a paying adult. Advance tickets are available at Linda's Hallmark, Candlewyck Inn, Anderson's Corner, and the Allegany County Arts Council, or by calling 304-788-3066 or 304-788-9464.

Garrett Choral Society To Present "Nowell," A Christmas Celebration

The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Julie Turrentine, will present a Christmas concert titled Nowell on Dec. 10 and 11 at St. Peter's at the Lake Center, located along Mosser Road just past Garrett College.

The Saturday performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday's will start at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for those 18 and younger.

The group will sing a number of pieces by well-known composer John Rutter, several traditional carols, and a version of "I Saw Three Ships" accompanied by the group Aurora Celtic, with members Mike Broderick, Aaron Martin, and Alice Fleischman. Aurora Celtic will perform three other traditional pieces.

British carols such as "Past Three O'Clock," "Jesus Christ the Apple Tree," "Sir Christemas," and "Sussex Carol" will be in the program, as well as the familiar "O Come All Ye Faithful" and "Joy to the World."

The choral group will present a Paul Sjolund arrangement of "Silent Night," with soloist Joan Lambert. The performance will also again feature the Con Brio Singers, an octet, who will present "The 12 Days of Christmas" and "Jingle Bells."

This concert is being dedicated to the memory of Barbara Hatch, an alto singer who had just joined the group this year. She died suddenly in October.

The group's main accompanist is Lynn Grimm. The choral society is a volunteer organization that involves about 50 singers from across Garrett County. The public is encouraged to attend.

Holiday Events Slated At Arts Council's Shop

As part of Oakland's Christmas on Alder Street Friday, Dec. 9, the Garrett County Arts Council will host a reception and open house at the Gallery Shop from 5 to 7 p.m. The purpose of this event is to honor all the Gallery Shop artists, many who are participating in the scheduled Holiday Kitchen Show at the gallery.

Garrett County Arts Council members and the general public are invited to stop in for holiday confections and to see the special exhibit.

From Dec. 5 through the end of the month, the Backroom Gallery will feature items appropriate for the "heart of the home." The artists have created original paintings, photographs, woodworking, pottery, fabric art, and other items with a kitchen theme. Gifts for gourmet cooks or food enthusiasts will be available.

In addition, throughout the holiday season, shoppers at the Gallery Shop will have the opportunity to register for a weekly door prize. Each Friday a $20 gift certificate will be given away. This certificate can be used toward the purchase of any item from one of over 150 artists at the Gallery Shop, and is good anytime between now and June 30, 2012. No purchase is necessary to enter the drawing.

The Gallery Shop is a project of the Garrett County Arts Council, a non-profit organization that supports numerous arts projects and organizations throughout county. GCAC encourages residents to shop locally and support independent artists, designers, and crafters this holiday season.

FSU To Present Tomáseen Foley's Celtic Christmas

Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series will present the return of the traditional Irish performers of Tomaseen Foley's A Celtic Christmas on Thursday, Dec. 8, at 8 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall of the FSU Performing Arts Center.

The performance explores a traditional Irish yuletide through a combination of storytelling, traditional dance, and live music, a spokesperson said. Storyteller Foley will be joined onstage by a cast of artists who perform in the Celtic tradition, including Irish dancers Marcus Donnelly and Marianne Knight, steel-string guitar master William Coulter, and Brian Bigley on uilleann pipes, Lakers Topped By Hawks Despite 30-Point Scoring Effort By Butler.

Despite a game-high, 30-point performance by Antonio Butler, the Garrett College men's team went down to a 91-78 Maryland JUCO defeat to the College of Southern Maryland last night on the Lakers' court.

The result evened the Lakers' overall record at 4-4 and dropped their JUCO mark to 1-2. It was the sixth win in nine starts for the Hawks, who are now 3-0 in conference games.

The Lakers won the first half, holding a 43-42 edge at the break, but were then outscored in the second half by a 49-35 margin.

Butler hit 11 buckets and eight of 13 free throws for his total, and also dished out five assists. Teammate Armond Perez had a double-double night, recording 16 points and 10 rebounds, while Din Moore also reached double figures in scoring with 11 points. Matt Gibson contributed eight points and five assists.

Leading the Hawks offensively were Isaac Fullwood and Sedrick Baker, who each finished with 16 points. Brian Dixon was right behind with 15 points, Ryan Vanderwest netted 14, and Daniel Henry hit 13.

The Lakers actually lost the game at the foul line, as they out-gunned the Hawks from the floor by a 31-28 margin. Garrett managed to connect on only 14 of 30 attempts from the stripe, while the visitors made good on 30 of 49 free throws.

GOING HIGH FOR TWO of his game-high total of 30 points against the College of Southern Maryland last night, above, is Garrett College Laker Antonio Butler. The effort was not enough, however, as the Lakers let a small lead at halftime evaporate and the Hawks went on to record a 91-78 win. Also in the photo at far left is GC's Matt Gibson, who netted eight points and had five assists. Below, Garrett's Din Moore looks to penetrate the lane through a couple of Hawk defenders. Moore would finish with 11 points. Also identifiable in the photo are Lakers Armond Perez (#5) and Jordan Grady (#25). Manta Ray Swim Team Finally Finds Permanent Home At McHenry CARC

by Rachel Sincell Vecchioni

The Manta Ray Swim Team is approaching its 30th year of operation, with the team finally able to call the pool at the new Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC) on the campus of Garrett College its home site. Not only does the CARC provide a permanent home for the team, but it has allowed it to become a true year-round competitive team, rather than a recreational league summer team, as it has always been.

It has been quite a struggle the last two years, as the team has survived the closing of the Alpine Lake Resort pool in Terra Alta, W.Va., as well as the Kingwood (W.Va.) City Pool. Both facilities were unable to accommodate the team's needs. The team then turned to the Wisp Resort, where the pool is not quite the standard length for competition – 25 yards – creating an issue with accurate times and endurance needed to perform well at competitions.

As a former 10-year member of the Manta Rays, I am delighted that kids are still offered the opportunity to participate in a sport that teaches so much more than how to swim faster than the guy in the lane beside you. Each of us had the support of the entire team behind us, as well as many influential adults who made what we did possible.

"While it is obvious that the Manta Rays are involved in helping swimmers to swim fast, that is not the only purpose behind the coaching team's goals for the Manta Ray athletes," noted current head coach Dusty Huxford. "As a coaching team, we are far more interested in using the sport of swimming for teaching life skills, such as self-esteem, self-reliance, confidence, respect, and team pride.

The team began in 1982, with Paula Briggs wanting to give children a structured and healthy lifestyle during the early summer months. The team held practices under Briggs and her assistant George Collins for four years at the Wisp Resort pool, with only 14 swimmers participating. Vicky Skipper succeeded as coach from 1986 to 1988, with the team moving practices to Alpine Lake Resort.

Coaches who followed were Joanne Graybill from 1988 to 1997, Nan Gangler from 1997 to 2006, Connie Gibson in 2009, Krista Hollingsworth in 2010, and Huxford beginning in the summer of 2011. The years not documented were headed by a team of coaches.

"The team concept gave the swimmers the opportunity to work, play, and cheer for each other as they refined their strokes and improved their times," commented Graybill. "A lot of time, expertise, dedication, energy, and effort were shared not only by myself but by the volunteer assistant coaches who worked with me over my 10-year tenure as head coach. Their dedication helped to make kids feel good about themselves and their swimming skills."

The Manta Rays leverage a strong parent volunteer base in conjunction with a set of coaches. This allows non-water related duties to be completed by the parents, while the coaches concentrate on specific strengths for the benefit of the team as a whole. Several student assistants volunteer to help the team as well. They are always under the direction of the coaches and are usually in the water assisting swimmers in learning the strokes.

"The Garrett County Manta Rays had so many great adults that influenced our lives... Paula Briggs, Vicky Skipper, Joanne Graybill, Nan Gangler, George Lander, Nancy Geisler, Madeleine Collins, Barb Speicher, Suzie Sincell, and John McIntee, to name a few," said former Manta Ray Josey Coviello. "A few months together every year really carried over in shaping who I am today. I like to think I carry my swim friends with me through life because I am a stronger woman, both physically and mentally, because of those who pushed me and invested in me."

Manta Ray Team

Depending on the season, the Manta Rays have had as many as 60 to 70 swimmers on the team, making it one of the largest in the area. During the summer season, the swimmers compete in the YMCA Summer League at the Riverside YMCA, Cumberland. During the winter season, which began in 2011, the team competes as part of the Cumberland Sea Otters in the Chesapeake and Potomac Swim League.

"Swim team taught me the value of teamwork, the pride of winning, the necessity of self-discipline, and also the pain of losing," said Matthew Sincell, another former Manta Ray. "I remember one year, I was given a trophy at the Championship meet, and after being given the trophy, the scores were tallied again, and I had to give up the trophy to a kid from another team. That was one of the most difficult moments of my young life at the time, and one that taught me how to be a stronger person. More than just the value of learning how to swim, the camaraderie we all shared as kids, as a county, was invaluable."

The staff and coaching team strive to help swimmers determine how to set and accomplish goals, prioritize, and self-motivate. Swimmers learn the value of a good work ethic, as well as limits and boundaries.

POISED AND READY for the sound of the starting bell, these swimmers anxiously wait to begin their back stroke race. Below is Manta Ray Katelin Rank as she works her way down the lane doing an exhausting butterfly. The Manta Ray Swim Team, approaching its 30th year as a recreational league summer team, will now be a year-round competitive team, as the team has adopted the new Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex (CARC) as its home site. See feature story.

"Each swimmer should strive to be the best that he/she can be and not worry how others are doing," said Huxford. "We encourage swimmers to be in control of the things that they can do something about and to not worry about the things that they cannot control."

Innovative team-building exercises create a fun and challenging environment for all swimmers, teaching them a healthy lifestyle and responsibility.

"My eight years on the swim team made for some of the most productive summers of my childhood," commented Stephanie Weaver, a former member of the team. "Nan Gangler's approach to coaching changed my outlook on sports – she focused more on healthy lifestyles and exercise. Taking the emphasis away from the competition aspect made swim team one of the most memorable experiences. It's amazing that something that only lasted a couple of months could mean so much to us all."

The Manta Rays accept swimmers of all types, shapes, and sizes. New swimmer try-outs are held at the beginning of every season, typically during the first two weeks of practice at the beginning of each practice time. A new swimmer will be observed by the coaches and evaluated for swimming proficiency and safety in the water. The new swimmer will then be assigned to a group on the team with similar skills, as well as be assigned to an age group.

Try-out requirements are as follows:

•Age 4–6: must be able to swim one length freestyle (head in water with rhythmic breathing),

•Age 7 to 12: – must be able to swim one length freestyle and two lengths back stroke;

•Age 13 and up – must be able to swim two lengths freestyle, two lengths backstroke, two lengths breaststroke, and one length butterfly.

All swimmers must be members of the CARC. The team has negotiated discounted rates for access to the pool only during swim practice times. All swimmers are strongly encouraged to join the CARC with a full membership. The facility staff has agreed to donate lane hours to the team on a limited basis.

The team is not appropriate for non-swimmers who need beginner swimming lessons. If a swimmer does not qualify, it is suggested that he/she be enrolled in swim lessons in order to develop the basic skills before considering the swim team.

"We were all competitive with one another, but at the same time, we supported and cheered one another to ensure that each member was performing and achieving his/her swimming goals," said Adam Chorpenning, another former Manta Ray. "I met a lot of wonderful and influential people from that experience. I still do IMs every now and again to bring back those memories, and keep up my strokes."

One of the team's goals is to get a full Masters Swimming program up and operational. This is a program open to all swimmers over the age of 18 who are still interested in being a part of the team. Workouts will vary from novice to intermediate to advanced.

Yardage will vary, but generally during peak weeks, novices will swim about 3,000 yards per week, intermediate about 8,000 per week, and advanced about 12,000 per week. These are done over three-day sessions. Workouts will start short on yardage and speed while swimmers work on stroke technique. Over the season, the volume and intensity of the workouts will increase.

Like every successful operation, the team has a full-time board of directors, which is responsible for the short- and long-term well-being of the Manta Rays. This includes oversight of all matters pertaining to finances, coaching, swimmer safety, etc. The board is composed of at least five voting members, one of which is a "member-at-large." At the discretion of the board, at least one coach shall be a non-voting member of the board. Current board members are Huxford, president; Missy Rowan, vice president; Melissa Rank, secretary; Sue Thomas, treasurer; and Gale Bosley, member-at-large.

"The Manta Ray Swim Team can most closely be compared to a fraternity. It is a brotherhood," said Alison (Rudy) Sweitzer. "I too have very strong feelings for the team. Now, I help support the swimmers through Rudy's (store) and have the joy to still interact with them. With the opening of the CARC, the team is entering a new chapter by offering a winter season. I'm so excited for the future of our team."

For more information, persons may visit the web site at www.manta-ray.org or contact the American Red Cross, the CARC, or the Cumberland YMCA.

THIRD GRADER TAKES FIRST DEER – Nick Easterday, 8, claimed his first deer during the recent Junior Hunt Day. The third grader is a student at Broad Ford Elementary. He made the kill while hunting with his father on the property of a family friend. Nick is the son of Chad and Katie Easterday of Oakland.

JUNIOR HUNT DAY SUCCESS – Mitch Thomas, 5, claimed this 8-point during the recent Junior Hunt Day. Mitch took the buck, his first deer, while hunting with his father on family property located near Bethlehem Road. He is the son of Jeff and Denise Thomas.

DOWNS 7-POINT – Peyton Missimer, 11, shot this 7-point buck last Saturday while hunting with family members on private property in West Virginia. Peyton is the son of Chris and Shelley Missimer, Oakland, and is a fifth grade student at Broad Ford Elementary School.

JUNIOR HUNT SUCCESS was achieved by Eliza Wilhelm, 8, of Grantsville. She is the daughter of Chad and Jessica Wilhelm. Her kill was a 6-point buck.

TEN-YEAR-OLD TAKES NICE BUCK – This 8-point stag marks Jesse Helmuth's second downed deer in his young hunting career. The 10-year-old took the animal while hunting in the Pleasant Valley area. Jesse is the son of Jevon and Wendy Helmuth and a student at Swan Meadow School.

BROTHERS TAKE BUCKS – This hunting season has been a success for Fratz brothers Skyler and Collin. Pictured at left is Skyler, 8, with his 8-point stag, while Collin, 12, is at right with his 4-point. Both animals were claimed on family property located near Accident. Skyler downed his buck while hunting with his mother, and Collin was accompanied by his father. They are the sons of Dwayne and Jackie Fratz.

LAKERS TRIUMPH IN DOUBLE OVERTIME – The Garrett College women's basketball team took a dramatic win over visiting College of Southern Maryland last evening (Nov. 30), 79-76, in double overtime. The Lakers roared back from a large deficit to lock the score at 66-66 by the end of regulation. The two teams battled in the first extra period, but again found themselves tied, 71-71. In the second overtime, Garrett pulled ahead by three and managed to burn out the clock to claim its victory. Pictured above is former Northern Husky standout and promising Laker freshman Terra McKenzie (#33, center) driving down the center lane, while teammate Brianna Diggs (#55, left) boxes out a defender. Diggs is also pictured below putting up a shot over her overwhelmed defender from beneath the basket. To her left and right, respectively, are Lakers Lindsey Miller (#3) and Rachel Walbogha (#41). ARE YOU READY? HOW TO PREPARE FOR AN EARTHQUAKE

by Maggie Mooney

C. 2011, Greystone Books, $15.95; 160 Pages

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

The footage of that day was beyond scary. It looked like those first few steps when someone gets off a carnival ride, those dizzy, leg-shaking seconds of no equilibrium. Like walking on a waterbed. Or like waltzing on a sea of jelly as the world breaks apart.

Whatever it was like, you vowed that you'd never go through an earthquake without a little preparation. But then life stepped in and, well, the Big One might never arrive anyhow, right?

Maybe, but why take chances? With the new book Are You Ready? How to Prepare for an Earthquake by Maggie Mooney, you'll be well-armed.

So you saw the news from Japan last spring. Maybe you even experienced an earthquake yourself and you never want to go there again – and for good reason. Maggie Mooney says that over 3 million people died in earthquakes in the 20th century alone.

In order to be completely safe from a quake, you need to understand psychology, she says. Humans tend to naturally "under-perceive" risk. We "assess risk based on our likes and dislikes rather than by... true advantages and disadvantages."

To counter that, we must prepare, push aside denial, and foster resilience.

Because our brains usually take over during times of crisis, Mooney says that our bodies must be conditioned to respond faster. Practice by dropping to your knees, crawling under a desk or table (to attain the "Triangle of Life"), and hanging on to the closest, most secure object. Running outside or standing in a doorway, she says, are no longer recommended.

Develop a communication plan and make a home emergency kit. Assign each member of your family a special bag to hold ID, medical information, and other documents. Make preparation a game for the kids, and don't forget to include your pets in the plan. Know the hazards in your home, where to turn off gas and electricity, and (gulp!) what to do if you're trapped.

Whistling in the dark won't work. Wishing is useless. You already know that you can't continue to pretend you won't be affected by an earthquake; what happened in Japan, Haiti, and Washington, D.C., has proved otherwise. But with Are You Ready? How to Prepare for an Earthquake, you'll at least be equipped for the worst.

With a little geology, a little human behavior, and a lot of common (and not-so-common) sense, author Mooney – herself a resident of a quake-prone area – presents a step-by-step method to ensure that your entire family is ready for tremblors of any size. She wisely and repeatedly cautions against panic, but imparts a sense of urgency and helpfully offers a checklist, as well as resources for more information. I liked those extras, and I liked that they're easy to read and usable.

Are You Ready? How to Prepare for an Earthquake is one of those books you hope you'll never need, but if you do, you'll be glad you read it. Without this book, in fact, if an earthquake happens, you could be on shaky ground.

Pleasant View Baptist Church Slates Christmas Puppet Show

The Pleasant View Baptist Church will again present a puppet show this holiday season, with this year's performance titled An Unexpected Christmas. The play was written by Donna VanLiere.

The puppet show will be held over two weekends, with 12 different performances. The schedule is as follows: Fridays, Dec. 9 and 16, at 6:30 p.m.; Saturdays, Dec. 10 and 17, at 2 p.m., 4 p.m., and 6 p.m., and Sundays, Dec. 11 and 18, at 4 p.m. and 6 p.m.

"A winter storm has left one disgruntled group of travelers stranded in a train station. Unable to do anything but stare at each other, this unlikely mix – one Christian, one doubter, one serious skeptic, and one goofball – strike up a serious conversation about the Christmas story and the miracle of Jesus," a spokesperson said. "This clever, light-hearted story combines a powerful message told by Jim-Henson-style puppets with special lighting and effects, multimedia, a multi-level 40-foot stage, and lots of upbeat, catchy Christmas songs to help get you into the Christmas spirit."

There is no cost for this presentation, but seats are limited at each showing so persons must have reservations. Reservations can be made online at www.pleasantviewbc.org or by calling the church office at 301-334-8515.

"This is a gift from your friends at Pleasant View for the whole family – not just for children," the spokesperson said.

Xylophonist Price To Be Guest At WVU Concert

Virtuoso ragtime xylophonist Harvey Price will be the special guest for a Percussion Studio Recital, to be held Friday, Dec. 2, at the West Virginia University Creative Arts Center.

The concert will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Antoinette Falbo Theatre and is free and open to the public.

Price is from the Philadelphia area and is director of percussion studies at the University of Delaware.

"Many of our students will be joining Mr. Price on a number of ragtime works," said George Willis, director of percussion in the WVU School of Music. "The program will also include a number of other works, such as marimba solos and vibe and marimba duets."

For more information, persons may contact the WVU College of Creative Arts at 304-293-4359.

Annual Fall Jazz Concert Slated At Frostburg State

The Department of Music at Frostburg State University will present its annual Fall Jazz Concert, featuring the FSU Jazz Ensemble and Vocal Jazz Ensemble, on Wednesday, Dec. 7, at 8 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall of FSU's Performing Arts Center. The concert is free and open to the public.

The FSU Jazz Ensemble, directed by Timothy Powell, will perform from a wide variety of jazz styles. Under the direction of Dr. Karen Soderberg and featuring pianist Dr. Bomi Lim Tunstall, the Vocal Jazz Ensemble performance will also include a wide range of jazz styles and works.

For more information, persons may call the FSU Department of Music at 301-687-4109.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL FESTIVAL OF TREES IN THE BOOKS – The annual Festival Of Trees, which benefits the Dove Center, was held over the weekend and deemed a great success by organizers. This year's event was held for the first time at the new Garrett County Fairgrounds Exhibit Hall, and organizers reported a record turnout for the Friday morning Pancake Breakfast with Santa, with a long line forming at 8:30 a.m. This was also the first event to sell out every designer-decorated tree and most of the wreaths and centerpieces, as well as two gingerbread houses at the live auction on Friday evening. Cookie-decorating in Santa's Bakery took place as well, as pictured above. Young Summer Reid of Ohio, who was visiting her local grandparents, is shown as she has a great time making cookies with Mrs. Claus. A full report of winners, plus photographs, will be published in next week's issue of The Republican.

Amahl And The Night Visitors To Be Staged At FSU

The Frostburg State University Department of Music's Opera Theatre will perform the American opera Amahl and the Night Visitors by Gian Carlo Menotti, as well as additional opera scenes, on Saturday, Dec. 3, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 4, at 3 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall of FSU's Performing Arts Center. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students; children 12 and under are admitted free and are encouraged to attend.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors is a one-act opera written and performed in English. It features a shepherd boy (Amahl) who is poor and crippled, his mother, and the visit of three magi that changes their lives forever," a spokesperson said.

Directed by Mariana Mihai-Zoeter, this year's opera production involves most of the students in the university's vocal department, a faculty chamber trio, and choreography designed by FSU dance student Samantha Flowers.

Opera scenes from several well-known operas will also be presented during the event.

For more information, persons may call the FSU Department of Music at 301-687-4109.

WVU Choral Groups Offering Holiday Concert

The West Virginia University choral program will present its annual holiday concert at the Creative Arts Center, Sunday, Dec. 4. Titled Holiday Music from Ireland and the British Isles, the concert will feature the WVU Symphony Orchestra as well as several groups from the Choral Area in a program of seasonal pieces.

Tickets are available at the Mountainlair and Creative Arts Center box offices, or by calling 304-293-7469. Tickets will also be available at the door.

"HELLO DOWN THERE," says the bear cub to photographer Caroline Blizzard of Hawks Flight Studio. The nature photography collection of Blizzard, along with multiple other artists and their wares, will be on display and available for purchase at this Saturday's Our Town Theatre Christmas Market, being held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church Parish Hall in Oakland. The event is free and will feature a wide array of unique gifts, hot food from the Christmas Café, and holiday cookies and other baked goods, including gluten-free desserts. Local musicians Marsh Mountain Consort, Morbheanna, Lynn Grimm, and Ron Rodgers will provide live music throughout the day, and there will be raffles and hourly door prizes. The proceeds will benefit both Our Town Theatre and the local artisans. For more information, persons may call 301-334-5640.

"JUKEBOX CLOCK" BY KEITH MILLER (left) won first place in the 12th grade division in the recent regional "Rethink Recycling" Sculpture Contest. Keith is a student at Southern High School. "The Weaver's Well" by Kelly Mast (right) won second place in the 11th grade division. Kelly attends Northern High School.

Local Student Places Second In "Rethink Recycling" Art Contest

Six Garrett County students recently traveled to Baltimore to participate in the 10th annual statewide "Rethink Recycling" Sculpture Contest. The event was sponsored by the Maryland Department of the Environment.

Julianna Sharpless, an 11th grade student at Southern High School, won second place in the Creativity category for her sculpture titled "Sheldon the Dragon." Julianna created Sheldon with paper, metal, copper, newspaper, plastic, and puzzle pieces. (See photo on front page).

Winners are selected in five different categories: Creativity, Workmanship, Best Use of Materials, Most Popular, and Overall Best Sculpture.

In addition to Julianna, regional winners participating in the state sculpture competition were Dallas Hetrick, 10th grade, NHS; Rhiannon Dodge, 10th grade, NHS; Kelly Mast, 11th grade, NHS, Keith Miller, 12th, SHS; and Sean Kamp, 12th, NHS.

Sponsored by the Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling and the GC Arts Council, the regional contest was held on Oct. 29 at the Oakland Community Center, with 36 students in grades 10 to 12 participating in the event.

"The regional contest and getting to state proved to be extremely challenging this year," said Kimberly Madigan, GC recycling coordinator. "However, students, teachers, sponsors, friends, and family coordinated efforts, making this year the most memorable by working together and keeping sight of what was really important: a rewarding, educational experience for our students. I am very proud of the students who participated in both the regional and state recycling competitions."

She added that local students always "jump right into" this project and are eager to express their "eco-message" through the recycled sculptures.

"It is a fun recycling project that not only diverts materials from the landfill, but also aids in the toughest part of any recycling program – educating the public, especially our youth on the importance of recycling and preserving our local natural resources," Madigan said.

The "Rethink Sculpture" contest is in celebration of America Recycles Day – a national event that encourages business, environmental and civic groups, and local, state, and federal government agencies to promote recycling, source reduction, and buying products made from recycled materials as a means to a more sustainable society.

Travel to the state "Rethink Recycling" contest and participation in the regional contest were made possible by donations from Coca-Cola Enterprises, Garrett 8 Cinemas, the Junior Women's Civic Club, Kim and Mike Madigan, Madigan's Auto Sales, Lakeside Creamery, Mtn. Laurel Garden Club, Ours Auto Salvage, Smiley's Pizzeria, Pine Lodge Steakhouse, the town of Oakland, and Wal-Mart.

An Opportunity Grant was awarded by the Garrett County Arts Council in support of the regional and state events. Selected sculptures by NHS and SHS students will be on display at the council's Gallery Shop in Oakland until tomorrow, Friday, Dec. 2.

Persons who have questions, suggestions, or comments regarding any of the free recycling programs available in Garrett County may call Madigan at 301-387-0322.

"THE MAGNIFICENT TURTLE" BY SEAN KAMP won second place in the 12th grade division in the regional "Rethink Recycling" Sculpture Contest. Sean attends Northern High School.

"FAERIELAND TRAGEDY" BY DALLAS HETRICK (above) placed first in the 10th grade division in the regional "Rethink Recycling" Sculpture Contest. Dallas is a student at Northern High School. "Dragon Fly" by Rhiannon Dodge (below) placed second in the 10th grade division. Rhiannon is also a student at Northern High School.

CELEBRATING 40 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY.

GC STUDENTS MEET HOLOCAUST SURVIVOR – Students in Beth Luers' 20th century world history class had a unique opportunity recently, as they met one of the few remaining survivors of the Holocaust, Adolf Hitler's attempt to exterminate the entire Jewish population before and during World War II. Leo Bretholz, whom Luers refers to as a friend, mentor, and partner in teaching, spent time and dined with the students in Baltimore. Pictured above with Bretholz, kneeling, from left, are Lauren Butler, Judy Hilton, and Cristy Gank. In the next row, same order, are Lindsey Smith, Jenny Shaffer, Matt Broadwater, Bretholz, Luers, and Erin King. Standing in back are Jon Walton, Ana Wyrick, Jack Paugh, Cherra Mathis, Crystal Moon, Ailsha Piessinger, Breanna Baker, Ben Sweitzer, Ruth Martin, and Amy Quinn. Bretholz and Luers are pictured below.

Holocaust Survivor Leo Bretholz Meets With GC History Students

by Peggy Santamaria

Leo Bretholz, a survivor of the Holocaust whose book Leap into Darkness recounts his seven-year odyssey to escape from the Nazi regime, joined Garrett College professor of humanities Beth Luers and students from her 20th century world history class for lunch recently near Baltimore.

The students were already familiar with the saga of Bretholz's escape from his Third Reich captors as a teenager on a train headed for a death camp.

"He was on his way to Auschwitz in a boxcar, but he and another boy on the train worked on the bars at the little window for hours until they could bend them enough to squeeze through and jump from the train, thus avoiding Auschwitz and their deaths," Luers said.

Meeting in a theater-converted-to-restaurant in Pikesville, the Garrett College visitors dined and talked with the 90-year-old Bretholz, hearing his story firsthand.

Sophomore Erin King explained that the format for conversation was in a group, with the students gathered around Bretholz.

"We talked about his experiences and about future generations," King said.

Sophomore Cherra Mathis had read Leap into Darkness before meeting Bretholz.

"The account is told from the point of view of a 17-year-old boy," she said. "So at first it was difficult for me to reconcile that this man is the same person who went through all those experiences."

The students all agreed that it was almost incomprehensible that this man had survived the inhuman treatment of his fellow human beings.

"I found it so disturbing that people who had been friends could turn against you and spit in your face," King said.

In response to this, Luers repeated Bretholz's often-spoken reminder – "It all started with words."

In reflecting on the conversations with Bretholz, the class members noted that things similar to the Holocaust still happen today – on a smaller scale – throughout the world, but that "issues that are not pleasant may not be reported."

Their comments underscored the importance of speaking out against injustice when they see it and "recognizing that it is the little things that lead to the big things."

All who participated in the visit with Leo Bretholz agreed that it was an encounter that they would never forget.

"We all know how lucky we are to have Beth Luers as our teacher," Mathis said.

Luers speaks of Bretholz as a friend, a mentor, and a partner in teaching history. She said that she deeply appreciates his willingness to meet with students and to help bring a sense of reality to learning about the Holocaust and its lessons in human psychology.

"I know that my students will never be the same after meeting and talking with Leo," she said.

Dove Center Benefits From GC Donations Of Food Tree, Wreaths

As in the past, the Garrett College community rallied to participate in the 2011 Festival of Trees, a fund-raising event held each year to benefit the Dove Center, Garrett County's resource for domestic violence and sexual assault.

Two different projects were under way on the McHenry campus during the weeks leading up to Thanksgiving break: a food collection and wreath-making.

As Thanksgiving approached, officers of the Student Government Association geared up for a food drive to collect non-perishable items for donation to the center. Large cartons were placed in well-traveled areas of the college to be filled by students, faculty, and staff.

Once gathered, the cans, boxes, and jars of food were transported to the Exhibit Hall at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in preparation for the Festival of Trees, which was held this past weekend. In the hall, SGA officers Alicia King, Connor Norman, and Samantha Mnyanda, assisted by SGA advisor Michael Chavis and admissions associate Christine Uphole, assembled the food items into a Christmas tree formation. Around the base of the "tree" other food containers were decorated with bows to look like gifts.

The second ongoing project was the creation of wreaths. A request went out campus-wide for students, faculty, and staff to "get in the holiday spirit" by making wreaths that would be donated for auction at the Festival of Trees.

Staff members in various departments pooled their creative resources, as did GC students, and the result was 10 unique, decorative wreaths. Once displayed at the festival, they were up for bid as well as review by visitors, who would cast votes to select outstanding contributions.

"We were very excited to learn that two of our wreaths earned high praise and took awards," said Ann Wellham, dean of marketing and enrollment. The first-place ribbon was awarded to the wreath created by the staff in the Garrett College business office. The brightly colored wreath was made of Christmas cards cut into the shape of holly leaves.

The Best of Show award went to the offering created by the Garrett College library staff.

"We made our wreath from pages of an old copy of The Hunchback of Notre Dame," said Dana Shimrock, director of the GC library. "Each page was curled into a loose cone shape and attached to the wreath. We then added some gold trim to complete the festive appearance."

"Garrett College's contributions to the festival were greatly appreciated," said Sherry Bradshaw, member of the Dove Center board of directors and coordinator of the Festival of Trees. "The 'uncanny' food tree will be a welcome addition to our shelter pantry, and the beautiful wreaths earned substantial amounts of money that will be put to good use by the center. We hope the college will make the food tree a regular feature in our festival."

A FOOD "TREE" was constructed out of donations collected by the Garrett College Student Government Association. The items will go to the Dove Center in Oakland. Winning the award for Best of Show at last weekend's annual Festival of Trees was the wreath created by the Garrett College library staff, pictured below. The wreath consisted of pages from an old copy of a book, along with gold ribbons.

Garrett Outreach Centers To Host Information Events

Garrett College admissions and financial aid staff will be available in early December at both the GC Northern and Southern outreach centers to meet with individuals interested in attending Garrett College during the 2012 spring semester. Prospective students can receive help completing the application for admission and filing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Rachelle Davis, director of admissions, and Cissy VanSickle, director of financial aid, will be at the Northern Outreach Center in Grantsville next Thursday, Dec. 8, from 6 to 8 p.m. They will meet with individuals at the Southern Outreach Center in Oakland on Thursday, Dec. 15, from 6 to 8 p.m.

There is no fee to apply for admission or financial aid, and registration is not required to attend the help sessions.

Students who wish to apply for admission will also be counseled about taking the COMPASS placement indicator and registering for spring classes, which will begin Jan. 24, 2012. Those who wish to file the FAFSA should bring their 2010 tax returns, if available.

More information about the college's programs and services is available online at www.garrettcollege.edu and by calling 301-387-3739 or, toll-free, 866-554-2773.

White House's Let's Move Program Providing School Salad Bar Grants

by Gina Cairney
Capital News Service

Young children may not jump for leafy greens and crispy carrots, but Maryland schools are seeing a surprising interest from students for healthier options than the pizza and chicken nuggets already on the menu.

Four schools throughout the state were awarded grants for salad bar equipment, thanks in part to Michelle Obama's "Let's Move Salad Bars to Schools" program to promote healthier lifestyles by funding and awarding 6,000 salad bars throughout the country by the end of 2013.

Any schools participating in the National School Lunch Program, offering students reduced-price lunches, are eligible to apply for a grant of $2,500 toward salad bar equipment for their school, according to the Let's Move web site.

"It was more intricate than we initially thought," said Laura Green, development director at the Baltimore Leadership School for Young Women in Baltimore City, "but people were excited from the moment we were awarded the salad bar equipment."

Baltimore Leadership School applied for its grant in October 2010 through Whole Foods Market, and received its equipment in March.

Let's Move was founded to combat childhood obesity rates. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said childhood obesity rates have tripled since 1980. Approximately 12.5 million children and adolescents between ages 2 and 19 are considered overweight or obese.

A 2006 Maryland Pediatric Nutrition Surveillance System survey found a 15 percent obesity rate among children in the Women, Infants, and Children program between ages 2 and 5, and an 18 percent overweight rate among children in the same age group.

It's no secret that good nutrition is important, especially to young children, but as executive chef Robert Hedetniemi from the National Institutes of Health Clinical Center said, "Some difficulties or barriers exist that restrict schools' and families' access to quality fresh foods."

Denzel Mitchell, founder of Five Seed Farms, a sustainable farm in northeast Baltimore that also helps with the nutrition program at Baltimore Montessori Public Charter School, said the school's salad bar isn't set up yet because "there's no produce" and the rules set by the school district make it difficult to start the salad bar.

"There needs to be a connection between production and consumption so kids can see where their food comes from," said Mitchell, but "it's expensive to get the produce to feed 300 kids every day."

Chesapeake Public Charter School in St. Mary's County may be the most successful of the four schools awarded the salad bar grants, but even this school faced some problems in its application process.

Second-grade teacher Rob Schou, who initiated the grant application, said the easiest part of the process was applying for the grant itself, which Whole Foods made easy online. The hardest part was convincing people the school needed a salad bar.

Schou said because Chesapeake Public Charter was part of the county's food program, the school wasn't allowed to offer more than what the county provided, "and they don't provide salad bars, so we had to get an exemption from my boss's boss and his boss's boss, and the food service person."

The students wrote persuasive letters arguing for why the school needed the salad bar, which Schou said worked well, but "the bureaucratic process of getting a salad bar was definitely difficult."

Since the school started offering fresh produce to its students, principal Angela Funya said the impact has been great.

"We continue to educate the students about the choices they can make about food," she said.

The fourth school also awarded a salad bar grant was Gwynn Park High School in Prince George's County, but the salad bar is not yet set up.

The idea of having a salad bar in the school has been widely accepted by many staff members and students, but there are also other schools in Maryland waiting for salad bar grants.

Midtown Academy in Baltimore City could not be reached, but Melvin J. Berman Hebrew Academy in Rockville applied for a grant, and is waiting for donations to match the grant of $2,500 so it can upgrade its existing salad bar.

"We already have a healthy lunch program, but we're trying to add more vegetables and fruits," development director Jennifer Zuckerman said.

The school has not advertised to the community to receive donations because of other priorities, but the school has been slowly upgrading the salad bar without grant money. Zuckerman said the academy is still interested in pursuing the grant, and it wants community support to be able to continue offering greater choices to its students.

"It's a kosher diet, so it's expensive to get the food," said Zuckerman.

Despite the advantages a fresh produce option provides students, chef Sheila Crye from Young Chefs Inc. is quick to point out some of the negative aspects of having salad bars in schools.

When hundreds of students use the same serving spoons, she said, there's a likelihood of spreading germs, and some students may be more susceptible to catching E. coli, listeria, etc., from raw produce.

DONATION MADE, NEW MEMBER INDUCTED – The Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club recently met at the Oakland American Legion, where a donation was made to the newly formed Broken Road Associates organization. Bill German gave a presentation about the non-profit which he and his wife Brittany have started to help provide assistance for pediatric care for families at Garrett County and Ruby memorial hospitals. Above, from left, are Lion Bubba Marucci, the Germans, and Lions president Josh Bosley. Rich Rohrbaugh became the newest member, and the induction was done by Marucci. Below are sponsor Terry Helbig, Rohrbaugh, Marucci, and Bosley. Vision testing continues at Crellin and Friendsville elementary schools working with Head Start, pre-k, and kindergarten students. The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club will join Porter Welch at Friendsville. Those with question concerning the free vision testing program should contact Welch at 301-334-4180.

Christmas Musical To Be Presented At Loch Lynn Church

The JamZone children of Loch Lynn Church of God's Kidz Factory will present a children's musical titled The Great Christmas Giveaway – The Gift Goes On! this Friday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 4, at 4 p.m. The Cherub Choir, which comprises children up to 5 years of age, will also perform.

"The children would like to extend a special invitation to all of their school teachers," said a church spokesperson.

In the musical, Brody, Ashley, and the rest of their class officers meet at a mall to search for the perfect present for their homeroom teacher.

"There are many temptations and detours along the way, but they come to learn that true joy is only found when we give to others in the same way Christ gave to us," said the spokesperson. "Featuring engaging songs, spiritual message, and sparkling arrangements that many have come to expect from the Kidz Factory musicals, The Great Christmas Giveaway is sure to delight audiences of all ages."

The church is located next to WKHJ radio station at 8649 Gorman Road (Rt. 560) near Loch Lynn. For more information, persons may call 301-334-3221.

Chamber To Host After Hours Event

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will hold its next Business After Hours event at Duteh's at Silver Tree on Wednesday, Dec. 7, from 6 to 8 p.m. The cost of the event is $6 for members paid in advance and $10 for non-members, as well as members paying at the door.

The chamber is also supporting the local Toys for Tots campaign to help give children in the area a special gift for the holidays. Those interested in making a donation should bring an unwrapped toy to this event. Those who donate will receive a free ticket to a future after hours event.

"We are happy to utilize the chamber's Business After Hours event to help collect toys for the Toys for Tots program," said president and CEO Nicole Christian. "These toys go directly to children in our community to help them have a happy holiday."

Those attending are asked to RSVP no later than Dec. 2 by e-mailing katie@garrettchamber.com or calling 301-387-5237.

In Isaiah 11:6 we read, "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid...." Every creature is from the same Source, the Great Originator of all existence. We are all in it together in our journey through life. As we sit in God's house, joining together in fellowship and worship, may we experience the warmth reflected in the eyes of our fellow worshipers and receive the grace of His love.

If It's Not Happening Now, It's Not Happening

While it may be natural to worry about the future, we lose a lot of sleep and we worry unnecessarily about things which never come to pass and over which we have little or no control. The phrase "if it's not happening now, it's not happening" is meant to convey the idea that we should be more attuned to the present moment and less concerned about what is going to happen tomorrow. This isn't meant to suggest that we shouldn't plan for the future or complete our work ahead of time. If you have a paper due at school tomorrow or a project at work that must be completed on deadline, then you should be working on it. But, too much of our waking life is made anxious by vague fears which never come to pass, not to mention how these fears disturb our dreams. So, we should do what we can to prepare for tomorrow, but then enjoy the present and remember that if the dreaded thing isn't happening now, it isn't happening and may never happen, so don't worry.

Therefore do not be anxious about tomorrow, for tomorrow will be anxious for itself. Let the day's own trouble be sufficient for the day.

The 'Hawaii Five-0' force ... for real or not?

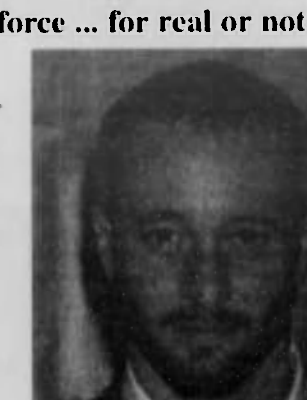
By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: I have been watching the new "Hawaii Five-0," and I was wondering if Hawaii has a special police force that does special investigations of crimes there. – Kevin Swales, Columbus, Ohio

A. If the question is whether there is a real Hawaii Five-0, such as that now led by Alex O'Loughlin as the CBS series reboot's Steve McGarrett, the answer is "no." According to the Internet site The Hawaii Five-0 FAQ, a then-governor of the state had wanted such a force, but it didn't happen. The politician then mentioned his idea to series creator Leonard Freeman, and thus was born the show that now has had two successful runs.

Q: While on vacation in New Mexico, we stopped to watch the filming of the pilot for "Longmire" starring Lou Diamond Phillips. Can you tell me if and when the pilot will be shown and if any more shows were filmed after the pilot? – Dan and Jackie Schmidt, Brookfield, Wis.

A: The series – based on Craig Johnson's novels about a small-town sheriff – has been picked up for a first-season total of 10 episodes by A&E Network, which hadn't scheduled a specific premiere date as of this writing, but the show is expected to run in 2012. Australian actor Robert Taylor has the title role; besides Phillips, additional cast members include Katee Sackhoff ("Battlestar Galactica," "24"), Cassidy Freeman ("Smallville") and Bailey Chase ("Saving Grace").



Alex O'Loughlin

Q: We used to watch "Undercover Boss," and I was wondering if and when it will be back. – Ralph Schlegelmilch, Detroit

A: CBS plans to start the third season Sunday, Jan. 15, in the same time period the show held previously ... now slated between "60 Minutes" and "The Good Wife."

Q: Why was the NBC show "Free Agents" canceled so quickly? – Emily Reed, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A: As is usually the case when a show is gone after only a few weeks, the reason is ratings that never got off the ground. NBC even premiered the Hank Azaria-Kathryn Hahn comedy a week before the television season officially began, but to no avail. Ironically, the original British version of the show – whose run had been meant to coincide with the U.S. one – debuted on BBC America several days after NBC canceled its version.

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was celebrated Irish playwright George Bernard Shaw who made the following sage observation: "The liar's punishment is not in the least that he is not believed, but that he cannot believe anyone else."
• Virginia law prohibits anyone over the age of 15 from wearing a mask in public, unless it's part of a traditional holiday costume, for work or for medical reasons. • You might be surprised to learn that there are people who study how air quality, humidity, the hardness of the water and pollution affect people's hair. According to these researchers, the worst American cities for your tresses are Corpus Christi, Texas; Olympia, Wash.; and Pittsburgh.
• In a survey conducted by the Roper Center for Public Opinion Research, it was found that two-thirds of Americans believe they are smarter than the average American.
• If you happen to be traveling in India and are passing through the town of Deshnoke, you might want to check out the Karni Mata temple -- but not if you have an aversion to rodents: Karni Mata is the rat goddess. Visitors can dine at the temple, but they have to watch out for the more than 20,000 rats mingling with the guests. Don't worry, though; if a rat runs across your feet, it's considered to be good luck.
• Ever wonder what the world's deadliest animal is? It's the lowly mosquito. Thanks to the diseases it spreads, it kills more humans than any other animal on the planet.
• In 2004, a record was set for the world's farthest pizza delivery when a Domino's Pizza in London delivered a vegetarian supreme pizza to Melbourne, Australia -- a distance of 10,532 miles. The world record challenge was conducted as a fundraising event and brought in nearly $50,000 for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Dec. 7, 1787, in Dover, Del., the U.S. Constitution is unanimously ratified by all 30 delegates to the Delaware Constitutional Convention, making Delaware the first state of the modern United States. Government under the U.S. Constitution took effect on March 4, 1789.
• On Dec. 10, 1901, the first Nobel Prizes are awarded in Stockholm, Sweden, on the fifth anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel. Although Nobel offered no public reason for his creation of the prizes, it is believed that he did so out of moral regret over the lethal uses of his invention of dynamite and other explosives.
• On Dec. 11, 1936, after ruling for less than one year, Edward VIII becomes the first English monarch to voluntarily abdicate the throne. The British government, public and the Church of England condemned his decision to marry American divorcee Wallis Warfield Simpson. Edward claimed it was impossible to discharge his duties without the woman he loved.
• On Dec. 5, 1945, five U.S. Navy Avenger torpedo-bombers take off from the Ft. Lauderdale Naval Air Station in Florida on a three-hour training flight. They never returned, and no trace of the bodies or aircraft was ever found. The story helped cement the legend of the Bermuda Triangle, an area of the Atlantic Ocean where ships and aircraft are said to disappear without a trace.
• On Dec. 8, 1969, at a news conference, President Richard Nixon says that the Vietnam War is coming to an end. His pronouncements proved premature. In April 1970, he expanded the war by ordering attacks on communist sanctuaries in Cambodia.
• On Dec. 6, 1976, deaf professional stuntwoman Kitty O'Neil sets the land-speed record for female drivers at the Alvord Desert in southeastern Oregon, averaging more than 512 mph.
• On Dec. 9, 1983, "Scarface," starring Al Pacino as a Cuban refugee who becomes a Miami drug lord, opens in theaters. The film, written by Oliver Stone and directed by Brian De Palma, initially received unfavorable reviews but is now considered a classic.

Q: My mom grew up in Soulard, a neighborhood in St. Louis. During the early 1930s, she met Irma S. Rombauer, who, with her daughter Marion, was compiling a new cookbook, "The Joy of Cooking." It was published in 1931, and my mother was given a signed first edition.
I have often wondered about its value and wonder if you can help me. Is this just another cookbook, or do I have something really special? I am a professional cook and often use the cookbook's later editions, especially the one published in 1962. -- Susan, Wheatridge, Colo.
A: Take off your apron and sit down, because I have some rather startling news for you. First, let me provide you with a little background about "The Joy of Cooking," one of the most significant cookbooks in American history.
Irma and Marion Rombauer lived in the Compton Heights neighborhood of St. Louis, and even though neither woman had much experience in the kitchen, Irma's husband committed suicide, which made it necessary for the two women to find a way they could support themselves. Irma gathered recipes, and her daughter illustrated them. The first edition had a definite German-American flavor, which reflected their neighborhood. The editions that followed made "The Joy of Cooking" a national bestseller, and many consider it one of the better cookbooks ever.
And now for the good part. Are you sitting down, Susan? Since so few copies of the first edition exist, your signed copy is probably worth about $5,000, perhaps more at auction. The 1936 edition is valued in the $140 to $250 range, and the 1962 edition (which I also like and use), goes for $30 to $50, depending on condition. Another popular edition is the one issued in 1943 because of its "sugarless" recipes, necessary because of war rationing.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

FASTER THAN LIGHT PARTICLES?

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. It was recently reported that measurements showed some neutrinos traveling faster than the speed of light, which caused a splash on TV news. Why is that such a big deal?

A. There are three separate issues here: one about reporting, one about doing science, and one about the basic philosophy underlying physics.

The "reporting" issue is the easiest to handle: When the initial claim was made that something was observed to be traveling faster than the speed of light, it was really big news in the world of science, and so it went on page one and made it onto the TV talk shows. Some weeks later, when possible sources of error were found, it got tucked away on page C-37. It's not particularly exciting to find particles going slower than the speed of light.

The second point – about how to do science correctly – points to a problem that has been growing in recent years. Careful and meticulous science is normally reported in arcane journals read only by specialists. The publicity departments of research centers like to issue press releases that keep them in the public eye. These two objectives are fundamentally in conflict. When a seemingly "blockbuster" result comes along, the scientists themselves want to believe their results, and the lure of exciting publicity can be extremely strong. A similar example happened 20+ years ago, in the case of "cold fusion."

After the flurry of press releases dies down, then careful scientific procedures step back in and plod along, out of the spotlight. The foremost thing is for someone else, completely independently, to replicate the observed result. If that cannot be done, it raises suspicion about the original claims. But when the result is confirmed, that enhances its credibility.

A good example of "doing it right" began in 1998 with the publication of an observation that the rate of expansion of the universe was actually accelerating, a claim opposed to conventional wisdom of the time. Over the next few years it was confirmed by others, and theorists began constructing "reasons why," including the innovative concepts of dark matter and dark energy. The Nobel Prize in Physics for 2011 honors those who made the observations of 1998. As for the subsequent theories, "the jury is still out" on those.

The claim of observing ultra-fast neutrinos in September ran into objections right away. Within days, other scientists suggested a half-dozen possible sources of experimental error. By October, it was argued that there was a satellite-transmission factor containing a possible delay of 65 nanoseconds. The original authors double checked their analysis and fired back in mid-November, reasserting validity. Quite recently a collaborating group reduced their estimate of the velocity. That pattern is the way research gets done – but it barely gets mentioned in the media.

The third issue, about the philosophy of physics, is what made the whole topic a very big deal. For several centuries following Isaac Newton, it was believed that time was absolute and immutable, completely independent of space. Then along came Albert Einstein with the entirely new concept that space and time are connected, interrelated, and indeed interchangeable. The notion of time being convertible into space was a huge surprise to everyone about a century ago. Einstein's Theory of Relativity was a major revolution in how physicists form their concepts of the entire universe.

Over the intervening years, relativity has been vindicated by many different observations, and there is no good alternative theory still standing. Because the predictions made by relativity come out correct again and again, we have a very high confidence level in the theory. It's a cornerstone of modern physics. However, always in the back of our minds is the fact that any theory is subject to challenge, revision, or overthrow.

Since space is measured in meters and time in seconds, there must be some factor relating the two if they are going to be interrelated. That factor is $C = 3 \times 10^8$ meters/second, the speed of light (186,000 miles/second in English units). In the equations of physics, space and time appear in a totally symmetric way, always connected by the constant C. Although humans may still have distinct ways of perceiving space and time, in equations they behave the same.

One consequence of that space-time symmetry is that the speed of light C must be the upper limit on velocity of anything moving. The very fact that there is a fundamental relationship between space and time establishes that limit. It's not a barrier to be exceeded (like the speed of sound), but a built-in numerical constant that's essential to the space-time geometry in which we live.

Electromagnetic radiation travels at the speed of light, and that places an upper limit on how fast information can be transmitted. If something did travel faster, you couldn't find out the information about it fast enough. Since any measurement is a form of getting information, how could you ever measure such movement? Very fundamental questions arise at once.

Consequently, when a claim comes along that something is traveling faster than the speed of light, it strikes directly at a core concept in physics. That's why it was such a big deal.

Meanwhile, there is all sorts of science fiction involving time-warps and faster-than-light travel. The Star Wars movies were a very entertaining series. But fiction and entertainment should never be confused with the actual physics of reality.

Dr. Sheahen lives at Deep Creek Lake and has taught physics at Garrett College. Persons wishing to submit questions for this column may e-mail them to newsroom@therepublicannews.com.

LOAR AUXILIARY HONORS PRESIDENTS – The Loar Auxiliary of Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently honored its current and past presidents as part of the 60th anniversary celebration. The Loar Auxiliary first became active in 1951 with Mrs. W.W. DeWitt serving until 1953. The presidents who followed were Alva Gorner 1953 to 1955, Carlton Bowser 1955 to 1957, DeWitt 1957 to 1959, Mrs. W.J. Richey 1959 to 1961, Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty 1961 to 1963, Betty Renninger 1963 to 1965, Glotfelty 1965 to 1967, Elizabeth Thayer 1971 to 1975, Ruth Durst 1975 to 1977, Frances Riley 1977 to 1978, Nancy Helbig 1978 to 1980, Dorothy Frame 1980 to 1982, Lollie Fridinger 1988 to 1993, Betty Pritt 1993 to 2008, and Betty Wolford from 2008 to current. The organization ran without a president-elect from 1967 to 1971 and 1982 to 1988. A plaque has been placed in the hospital's main lobby to honor their service. "Some of our historical information of the Auxiliary is incomplete," said Wolford. "We continue to search for details and the names of officers for the missing years." Those with any additional information that can be used are asked to contact the hospital gift shop at 301-533-4045. From left are Fridinger, Pritt, Helbig, and Wolford.

GCCAC Financial Counselor To Hold Budgeting Workshop

Garrett County Community Action's financial education counselor Heidi Phillips will hold a workshop, "Show Me The Money," on Monday, Dec. 5, from 6 to 7 p.m. in the Mary Browning Senior Center, Oakland. Phillips is currently working with clients on budget, credit, and foreclosure counseling.

With this workshop, the Asset Development Department and the Child and Family Development Division of GCCAC are joining forces to present ideas on how to use earned income tax credits and tax refunds wisely, so that families can become economically self-sufficient. Phillips will also provide information on free tax preparation and other money saving ideas for low-income families.

"Garrett County Community Action is aware of the current financial challenges faced by low-income families and is looking for ways to assist Garrett Countians in coping with the current economic situation without resorting to high-cost payday loans and rapid refunds," said Phillips. "With the holidays and winter months fast approaching, some folks can become overwhelmed with financial choices. Individuals, couples, and families are struggling to make ends meet and provide for their families this holiday season."

The workshop is intended to help families identify how they can keep the most money in their pockets by making smart financial choices. It will also provide participants with some information to keep them financially sound. According to the agency's new strategic plan, one of the goals of GCCAC is to increase the number of families and individuals who are able to live independently in the county, using all of its talents and resources.

A free dinner will be offered, as well as children's activities, door prizes, and giveaways. Transportation is also available to those who need it. For more information, persons may contact GCCAC at 301-334-9431, ext. 147.

Local Businesses To Participate In Scavenger Hunt

As part of a community-wide campaign to help promote local businesses, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will hold a Scavenger Hunt from Dec. 7 to 23. Local residents are encouraged to visit the 15 participating area businesses to take advantage of Foursquare check-in discounts and giveaways, as well as complete the Scavenger Hunt to win prizes.

The campaign is a community-wide initiative utilizing the social media application Foursquare, which is used by people to "check in" from area locations. Individual users of Foursquare can alert friends of where they are, and business users can promote their establishment and reward loyal customers. The application is free and is one of the newest and fastest growing social media tools.

"The campaign will start out on a local level using Foursquare to help encourage Garrett County residents to patronize local establishments," said chamber president and CEO Nicole Christian. "Once local participation has taken root, it will help to fuel the use of Foursquare by visitors to Garrett County."

To participate in the Scavenger Hunt, one must download the Foursquare application to his/her mobile device and go online to visitdeepcreek.com to view the list of participating Scavenger Hunt businesses, their check-in offers, and prizes. You must then check in to, and take a photo of, each business listed and post the photos onto each business's Foursquare page. As some businesses have specific photo requirements, participants should read each offer carefully.

As soon as the list is complete, participants are to stop at the Garrett County Visitors Center to have check-ins and photos verified. The first 16 participants with entries verified by the Visitors Center will be allowed to select a prize. Prizes are available on a first-come, first-served basis, and the contest ends after all 16 prizes are claimed.

"With this Scavenger Hunt, you know where your friends are hanging out, you can compete with them for points, you end up going to great places, and you could score some cool discounts too," says Bob Carney, manager at Long & Foster Resort Rentals & Sales.

Area businesses participating in the Scavenger Hunt are Adventure Sports Center International, Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty – Rentals, Cornish Manor Restaurant, Dutch's at Silver Tree, Four Seasons Dining Room at Will O' the Wisp, Garrett College Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex, High Mountain Sports, Long & Foster Resort Rentals, Pine Lodge Steakhouse, Railey Mountain Lake Vacations, Railey Realty, Rudy's at Wisp, Smiley's Sports Bar & Grill, Taylor-Made Deep Creek Vacations, and Wisp Resort.

Prizes include dining, shopping and amusement activity gift cards, matted photo, 30-day pass to the CARC, apparel, cooler bags, whitewater rafting, dogsledding tour and presentation, and more. Prizes are provided by all of the participating Scavenger Hunt businesses and by Husky Power Dogsledding at Mountain MD Kennels.

For complete contest rules and details, persons should visit www.visitdeepcreek.com or call the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386.

GEARS HOLDS FIRST OF TRAINING SESSIONS – The Garrett Engineering and Robotics Society (GEARS) recently held the first of its training sessions for local youth clubs interested in robotics. Four local 4-H clubs attended the Nov. 8 training session held in Accident, and each received between $580 and $1,000 worth of LEGO Robotics equipment. The clubs were trained on how to design and build SuGO (sumo wrestling) robots and how to incorporate SuGO design competitions into their own club activities. A mixture of 21 youth and adults attended. This ongoing SuGO Outreach Project was funded by a grant from the Naylor Family Trust and is being used to excite area youth about careers in science and technology. Spots are still available for the Dec. 6 evening training session set in Oakland. For more information or to register, persons may visit www.SuGOBOT.com/grants.htm or contact Phil Malone at 301-387-2331. From left, Gertrude Tesar, and Zach and Mark Spurrier, all from the Country Explorers, put final touches on their SuGObot during the recent training. Aaron Lantz, member of the G-FORCE FTC robotics team, was the helper for this group's training. In the rear are Wesley Dixon, Peter Tesar, and helper Andrew Hauser, working on their own robot.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Another Thanksgiving has come and gone. Since my mother is gone, the Bass household had the honor of hosting our family gathering. It is just not the same without my mother, but at least we had my Aunt Helen Englar and her two sons Mike and Courtney there. All 10 grandchildren of my mother were together again, and they are a most wonderful group of young adults. They seem to be making good progress in their lives, and are still as close as possible. Lesa and Maddy Whittemore were also there.

As usual, we had the prefect Thanksgiving feast, exactly like we used to enjoy at Pappy and Babble's. There was turkey, mashed potatoes, dressing, homemade noodles, green bean casserole, my special favorite, sauerkraut, and, of course, pumpkin pies. But I went overboard and ate too much.

As I took an outdoor break, I was surprised to hear lots of gunshots in the woods. I thought the hunting season did not start until after Thanksgiving. It alarmed me enough to not go outside, because all hunters are not as responsible as they should be.

I know when I was young, I did not ride my horse or venture into our woods during deer season. It seemed like it lasted forever. I am very worried about my new dog Jackson, a young bluetick hound. He might get excited and run into the woods and get shot.

I am also worried that some stupid hunter will shoot the handful of rare and precious white deer, especially the white fawn Mereditn saw about two years ago in the summer. I don't think all hunters understand that these are sacred animals, and doom will come to anyone who kills them. But surely simple common sense will tell you that you shouldn't kill such a rare and special animal just to get your picture in the newspaper.

I believe that no newspaper should publish a picture of an ignorant person proudly posed by a dead white stag, unless its caption includes enough information that people will be outraged and make their displeasure known at the ignorant act.

One thing is for sure – Thanksgiving had the best possible weather. It was partly sunny and about 50 degrees.

Today is Black Friday – the biggest shopping day of the year – and I have no regret that I am not involved in it.

They say that the crazy shopping spree on Black Friday is a new cultural celebration like many county fairs or spring break. But they got a little carried away. One mall in California had a shooting, and at various big stores where they had very desirable items at bargain prices, but in limited supply, people used Tasers and pepper spray to try to get to the front of the line.

The day after Thanksgiving was a very different kind of Black Friday for me. That day in 1991, I had to put down my beloved Little Joe. That is the most painful choice I ever made. But he couldn't really walk, which was no wonder since he was 31 years old. He spent all those years with me, except part of his first year.

I couldn't resist calling my Caitlin this morning when I suddenly felt very lonely. When she answered, she sounded so sad because, as she told me, a homeless friend died last night. I guess she met her at the homeless shelter Bartlett House, then continued to see her and maintain contact with her and tried to help her when her life met another bump in the road.

Sadly, she drank herself to death, and Caitlin learned a sad lesson. You can't always solve all the problems for everyone. I know Caity tried very hard to help her. I urged Caitlin to try to find out where her family lives and write a letter to them to tell them she wasn't completely alone when she approached death, and she shares their feeling of loss.

It is a source of comfort when the sympathy mail comes and shows that your lost loved one was loved by so many people, even if it happens that the loved one ended her life homeless and suffering from alcoholism. There will not be a big shower of letters or cards arriving for them, so even if it is only one, it will be a big comfort. So in a small way, Caitlin already fulfilled her ambition to change the world, even if it means saving a single individual

VFW Transportation Van Service

Starting Dec. 5, 2011, we will offer transportation service three (3) days a week. Those days will be Monday, Wednesday & Friday.

Transportation for the VA Clinic in Cumberland, Md., and connector shuttle service to Martmsburg Hospital departs from VFW Post 10077.

In the near future, service will be offered five (5) days a week.

Transportation service will be canceled when local schools are closed.

Contact the Transportation Coordmator at 301-387-5317 and leave a detailed message to schedule a ride.

If we are taking someone to meet the van to Martinsburg, we need to leave at 5:45 a.m. to ensure that the connection is made. If appointments are only for Cumberland, we'll need to try to leave approximately one hour prior to them.

4-H Club News

NORTH GLADE

by Jacki Markwood, reporter

The North Glade 4-H Club's monthly meeting was held on Nov. 16 at the North Glade 4-H Building. Teroy Friend led the pledges, and President Warren Wright reviewed old business. Election for 2012 officers was held.

The club's Christmas party and December meeting will be held at the Swanton Community Center on Dec. 15 at 6 p.m. Members are asked to bring canned goods for local food banks.

Record books are due to the club leader no later than Jan. 19. Enrollment papers and participation fees are also to be returned at the December meeting.

This year's last demonstrations were given by Teroy Friend, Shawn Markwood, Warren Wright, Wyatt Wright, Patrick Duggan, Hannah Gillispie, Michael Duggan, Blake O'Brien, and Joe McClosky.

RYAN'S GLADE

by Laura Pritts, reporter

The November meeting of the Ryan's Glade 4-H Club was held on Nov. 15 at the White Church Community Building. The meeting was called to order by Tara Marple, president. The pledges were led by Zachary Pritts and Emma Rush. Roll call was taken with members naming something for which they were thankful.

Emma Rush gave a report on the fall beef weigh-in. Members discussed the sausage gravy and biscuit dinner, which made a profit. One club member, Nicholas Friend, was one of the top three ticket sellers for the beef raffle.

The group discussed enrollment for 2012, and papers are due at the next meeting.

Plans were also made for the annual Christmas party and awards dinner. Members decided to send a package to someone in the military instead of exchanging gifts.

Members are asked to bring snack foods to the next meeting, which is planned for Tuesday, Dec. 20, at 7 p.m. at the White Church Community Building.

Anyone interested in joining the club may contact University of Maryland Extension Office or any club member.

ONE MORE WEEK TO GIVE!

With the economic situation this year, we expect great need...

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Winter Clothing For Needy Children

For the 14th year, The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are asking for your help. Without it, many Garrett County children will go cold this winter.

Just what is the WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM?

The Republican and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland and The Republican's WARM THE CHILDREN PROGRAM is basically neighbors helping neighbors. We here at the paper are asking for monetary donations (tax deductible) from you, the readers. The collected funds are being used to purchase new winter clothing for Garrett County children in need. Because the newspaper administers the program, there are no added fees or overhead costs. Every penny donated is used to buy the winter items.

How are needy children being identified?

A special corps of volunteers is working right now to identify those in need this year. (Please do not call for the service. If you have been selected, you will be notified.)

How will the children's clothing be purchased?

Members of the Civic Club of Oakland are taking the families shopping at Wal-Mart. The children, with the help of their parents, may select their own new coats, hats, sweaters, long johns, jeans, boots, pajamas, or other needed winter items, spending up to $125 per child.

The Civic Club of Oakland is again heading up the volunteer/shopping coordination. Many volunteers are working together to make sure the children of Garrett County stay warm this winter.

To make a donation, please complete the coupon below, cut it out, and mail it along with your tax-deductible contribution to the address noted. All checks should be made out to Warm the Children.

Donations should be postmarked by December 5, 2011. Those collected after December 5 will be saved for next year's campaign.

from homelessness, and another, and another. Because each individual does matter. We all want the same things: love, friendship, acceptance, comfort, and the feeling that we do matter to someone and that life has meaning.

There was a large Thanksgiving gathering at Dave and Nancy Beachy's home, including the Poholsky family, Cindy and Sam Stanton, their daughter Lea, and her two children, and their son Aaron and his daughter.

When I cruised the guide on my TV looking for a University of Maryland game, I didn't find it. But I did see a Towson University game, which is where my twin nephews Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, my niece Emma Bass, and Madelyn Whittemore were. So I really tuned in.

Later I learned the surprise that our first lady Michelle Obama has a brother who happens to be the basketball coach at Towson. I heard that the first family went to a game at Towson during the Thanksgiving weekend. I asked my sister-in-law Marci about it, and she said that the whole campus was so excited about it. I wish I had turned it on so I could see the excitement for myself.

I am so looking forward to next year's Olympics. It is always so inspiring. The reason it was on my mind was that there was a figure skating competition on NBC.

I am in a bad place. I awake every morning at 4 a.m. because some unfavorable things force their way into the front of my mind. Yesterday, it was how scary the world is for my beloved daughters. Yes, they were successful in school and have thriving social lives. But all the rules have changed. I was facing that idea alone. But who else is awake at that obscenely early hour? No one.

I need to face one of the greatest losses I ever experienced when I didn't do enough to prevent disaster from happening to the closest being in my life – my horse Joey.

In the summer of 1972, I tried to prepare us for an important three-phase competition in July. But in Bittinger, June was very cool and rainy. That was because of Hurricane Agnes. I did several miles of galloping sessions each day, which should have been enough to get Joey fit.

There was nothing he enjoyed more than a cross-country course, because it involved going as fast as possible in open country and scaling a dozen big jumps. It lasted for several miles. He was not just an excellent cross-country horse. He was brilliant.

But that day in July in the Frederick area was very hot – in the 90s. When we started, he simply blasted out and galloped as fast as he could. I knew very soon that it was way too fast for this kind of heat, but he kept it up, even one mile out when he started up a mountain slope.

We were in the woods, and he did something he never did before. He refused to jump three times. Even when I used my crop and spurs, he wouldn't jump. He must not have been able to jump. I am afraid he must have suffered a heat stroke.

That only became clear about 20 years later, when one of his hind legs became paralyzed. But he seemed fine when I put him away in his stall, and also the next day in the show jumping phase. He performed perfectly.

It couldn't be anything but the fact that he couldn't jump, but I still asked him to jump another two times. Shame on me. That is the greatest failure of my life. I can't face it even now.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Warm Winter Clothing for Needy Children

The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are now engaged in the 14th year of Warm the Children. The program provides new winter clothing and footwear for Garrett County children in need. Because the program is a function of the newspaper and of volunteers, every penny donated goes toward the purchase of these items. The following individuals and/or organizations donated to the fund this week. An advertisement with information about how to contribute can be found elsewhere in today's issue.

COMMUNITY SERVICE PROJECT COMPLETED – Four Frostburg State University students interning at Grantsville Elementary School recently completed a community outreach project that also benefited the Rotary's project to eradicate polio throughout the world. Students were asked to donate at least 60 cents, which is the cost of a polio vaccine. The project raised over $2,000, including matching funds from Thrivent Financial for Lutherans. Pictured above, from left, are Linda Buckel, Grantsville Rotary president; FSU interns Amanda Fazenbaker, Hannah Hare, Sarah Willand, and Cindy Storck, and Matt Eggleston, Grantsville Elementary School principal.

Local Non-Profit Awards Halmos For Philanthropy

The Community Trust Foundation, which supports western Maryland and Mineral County, W.Va., with its charitable resources, recently honored Dr. Peter Halmos for humanitarianism. The reception and dinner were held at the Lane Center at Frostburg State University, with over 150 people in attendance.

According to the group, the criteria utilized to select CTF's first humanitarian award recipient included "personal and professional accomplishments consistent with the goals of the foundation as evident by their own example to serve as a philanthropic leader in growing stronger and more vibrant communities, to demonstrate an ethic of kindness, benevolence, and active compassion."

"When you are this fortunate, you try to help others less so," Halmos remarked after receiving the award.

"I believe I have done that during my 40 plus years as a cardiologist, medical leader, community activist and more recently by participating in philanthropy. While you give, you also receive. One does not have to be a Bill Gates.

"The process is quite easy and the Community Trust Foundation is available to help anyone. The satisfaction of helping others stays with you for a long time and more than compensates you for your generosity."

Since the foundation's inception, Halmos, with his wife Iris, created two funds – the Iris and Peter Halmos Community Fund and the Halmos Arts Fund. Both funds have made possible a number of different programs and initiatives related to the community and arts. These are the Allegany Arts Council (Symphony Saturdays and Backbone Mountain Review), New Embassy Theatre, Music at Penn Alps, YMCA, Palace Theatre, Cumberland Theatre, FSU Center for Creative Writing, County United Way–Imagination Library, Tri-State School for the Arts, and Appalachian Independent.

Separate from these two funds, the Halmoses have also offered financial support to the Allegany Arts Council Plein Air Event and the Cultural Events Series at FSU.

In 2006, the organization was founded locally to facilitate "a targeted philanthropy." The late Robert Ebert established CTF with a small group of business and civic leaders who shared his interest in advancing the region by building philanthropic resources. According to CTF, it is an organization committed to building vibrant, strong communities by working in partnership with donors and community groups providing leadership to address community issues.

To learn more about CTF, tax-exempt IRA withdrawal, and how to establish a charitable fund, individuals may e-mail info@ctfinc.org, or call 301-876-9172.

FINANCIAL AID WORKSHOP TO BE OFFERED

A financial aid workshop will be offered Monday, Dec. 12, at 7 p.m. in the media center of Southern High School for seniors and their parents. Angie Hovatter, director of financial aid at Frostburg State University, and Cissy VanSickle, Garrett College's financial aid director, will explain how to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) form, as well as answer questions about the financial aid process. "This workshop is specifically aimed toward high school seniors and their parents," stated Beverly Sincell, SHS guidance counselor. Sincell will also be at the workshop to discuss information on scholarships and how the Guidance Office can assist families through the process of applying for college. Persons may call Mrs. Sincell with any questions at 301-334-1660.

ANNIE GET YOUR GUN

Irving Berlin's famous musical, Annie Get Your Gun, about Annie Oakley's rise to fame, will be performed on Dec. 1-3 and Dec. 8-10. Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. on the Southern High stage. General admission is set at $5. Children 8 and under will be admitted for free.

BUY ONE FOR YOUR SCHOOL

A wide selection of popular retail and restaurant gift cards is available for sale in the main office of Southern High School. The sale is a fundraiser for the school. American Eagle, Disney, Cabela's, iTunes, Old Navy, Michael's, Lowe's, Amazon.com, Sheetz, Bass Pro Shops, Bed Bath & Beyond, Kohl's, Toys-R-Us, HSN, and Bath & Body Works are just some of the retailer gift cards available. Many local chain restaurants are included too. For a complete listing of gift card types and denominations, one may visit the school web site: http://cardinal.ga.k12.md.us/Schools/SH/.

RAM FAN GEAR FOR CHRISTMAS

Southern High School reminds Christmas shoppers that its Ram Gear is available for purchase during the holiday season. Performance tees, denim shirts, baseball hats, hooded sweatshirts, and Ram camouflage gear are being offered. Ram Gear will be available at December home sporting events or at the school store from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

SEASON BASKETBALL TICKETS ON SALE

Season basketball tickets are available for both the boys' and girls' teams, as well as in a combination package. Those interested may contact Joy Thrasher at 240-321-4550 for more information or to purchase tickets.

CANNED FOOD DRIVE FOR HOUSE OF HOPE

The National Honor Society is sponsoring a canned food drive to benefit the House of Hope from Nov. 29 to Dec. 16. The first-period class that collects the most items will win a doughnut breakfast. Last year, Southern High School donated over 1,000 items to the drive. The honor society hopes to beat that number this year. Items may be brought into the school by students, or dropped off at the school in care of Heather Savage, National Honor Society advisor. This is the 13th year the honor society has conducted the food drive for the House of Hope.

JUNIOR CLASS PIE FUNDRAISER

The junior class is selling delicious Pie Shoppe pies to raise money for the 2012 prom and senior-year expenses. Pie orders and money are due by Wednesday, Dec. 7, and may be picked up at SHS on Tuesday, Dec. 20, between 3 and 5:30 p.m. To purchase a pie, pumpkin roll, nut roll, etc., one may see a SHS junior, e-mail shsprom@gmail.com, or call 301-334-9447.

CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The Southern High Christmas concert has been rescheduled for Dec. 19. The band boosters' and food department's beef raffle drawing will take place at that time.

SHS NEWSLETTER NOW ONLINE

The fall school newsletter, The Ram Gazette, is now available online at http://cardinal.ga.k12.md.us/Schools/SH/. Parents who do not have Internet access may contact the school for a printed newsletter.

CLASS OF 2012 APPAREL

Class of 2012 clothing designs are on display in various locations around the school, including Ms. Sanders' and Ms. Zumpano's classrooms. Any senior wishing to purchase clothing may place an order with Ms. Sanders.

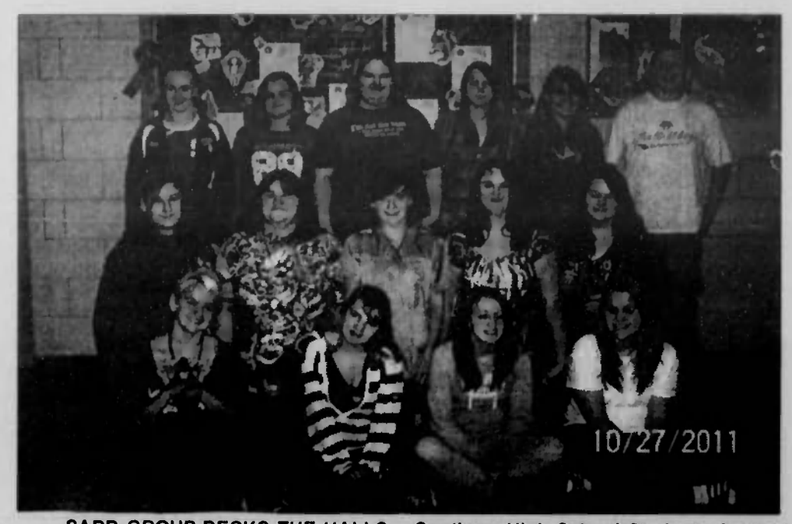
Also: All seniors are asked to stop by Ms. Zumpano's room to sign the senior sweatshirt.

HOBY AMBASSADOR ANNOUNCED

Sophomore Jessica Cooper has been selected as the 2012 Southern High School ambassador for the Hugh O'Brian Leadership Program. According to a spokesperson, HOBY provides teens with unique leadership training, service-learning, and motivation-building experiences through leadership seminars conducted in the spring. Jessica was one of nine students nominated by teachers at Southern based on their leadership potential and concern for others.

BURGER KING SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Online applications are now being accepted for the Burger King Scholarship, which awards up to $1,000 to high school seniors planning to enroll at an accredited, non-profit two- or four-year college/university in the United States, Canada, or Puerto Rico. Selection criteria include academic achievement and participation in school and community activities. Students may find more information and apply online at www.haveityourwayfoundation.org. The application deadline is Jan. 10.



SADD GROUP DECKS THE HALLS – Southern High School Students Against Destructive Decisions group members decorated teachers' doors with red ribbons for National Red Ribbon Week (October 23 through 31). They also put up a display with the story of Red Ribbon Week. The tradition of displaying red ribbons as a symbol of intolerance toward the use of drugs began in 1985 when drug traffickers murdered a drug enforcement agent. According to a spokesperson, the mission of the Red Ribbon Campaign is to present a unified and visible commitment toward the creation of a drug-free America. Activities of SADD groups are supported in part by funds from the Garrett County Health Department. Pictured above are SADD students displaying a few of their ribbons. In the front row, from left to right, are: Christina Hall, Emily Nazelrod, Leah Welch, and Sarah Lambka. In the second row are: Erica Bemiller, Lydia Palmer, Emily Parlseau, Melissa Cooper, and Anissa Fike. In the back row are: Rebecca Lee, Kendra George, Tilla Lynch, Santana Howdyshell, Tiffany Parlseau, and Nathaniel Martin.

Special Ed. Group Reschedules Dec. Advisory Meeting

The Garrett County Special Education Citizens Advisory Committee, which serves in an advisory capacity to the Garrett County Board of Education, has rescheduled its next meeting for Wednesday, Dec. 14, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in the board room of the BOE building.

SECAC, established in 2003, confronts issues affecting the education of students with disabilities. The committee's stated mission involves advocacy for all students with disabilities or special needs, the promotion of community and citizen awareness of issues relating to disabilities, and providing a forum for county-wide citizen input on special education programs, related services, and relevant issues.

SECAC has invited all interested persons to attend the meeting. Those with questions may call 301-334-7658.

Paradise Church To Present Drama At Sunday Worship

The children and youth of Paradise United Methodist Church will present a drama titled A Very Opinionated Christmas Tree as part of a Hanging of Greens worship service slated for this Sunday, Dec. 4, at 10:30 a.m.

With the assistance of the worshipping congregation, the children will be decorating the sanctuary while sharing the meaning of many of the Christmas decorating traditions, including the meaning behind many Chrismons that adorn the Christmas tree. Chrismons are symbols that represent a variety of biblical and theological concepts, and the ornaments are white with gold decorations of beads, ribbon, glitter, etc.

The church is located on Sand Flat Road. The public is invited to attend.

Balance to be payable by same method within fifteen (15) days after final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court, with interest on said balance from the date of sale to the date of actual receipt of funds by the Substitute Trustee at 7% per annum. There shall be no abatement of interest for any reason. Deposit not required ifmortgagee is purchaser. Substitute Trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and to extend the time of settlement at his discretion. Property is sold in "AS IS" condition. The Substitute Trustee makes no representations and/or warranty whatsoever regarding the title or any other matter with respect to the property, either express or implied, including but not limited to: the nature, condition, quality and quantity of the land, suitability of use and/or purpose, description of the property and/or improvements, if any. The Property will be sold subject to all easements, conditions, liens, restrictions, rights of redemption, covenants, encumberences and agreements of record affecting the same, and such state of facts that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property will be sold subject to all existing building, zoning, wetland, and environmental problems and or violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, if any. Purchaser at the foreclosure sale shall assume the risk of loss with respect to the Property as of the time of sale. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining possession of the property. Taxes, and similar public charges and assessments will be adjusted to the date of sale and thereafter assumed by the Purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for all unpaid and/or current sewer costs, including transfer fees. All costs of conveyance and settlement, including incidental settlement costs, including transfer taxes and recordation taxes, shall be paid by Purchaser. Time is of the essence as to Purchaser. In the event the Purchaser fails to settle as required, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available, Substitute Trustee may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the property at the risk and expense of Purchaser. In such event, Purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of resale, reasonable attorney fees, and all other charges due. In the event that Substitute Trustee is unable to conveymarketable title, or, in the event the Mortgagor entered into a repayment plan, reinstated or paid off the loan prior to sale, or if for any other reason, Substitute Trustee did not have the right to sell the property, the sale is null and void and Purchaser is not entitled to any legal or equitable remedy, other than the return of the deposit, without interest and any and all other claims of the Purchaser are hereby released. Other terms and conditions may be announced at the sale. The information contained herein is offered for informational purposes only. It is Purchaser's obligation to obtain an independent investigation of the Property. The Note holder and Substitute Trustee do not make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of this information and Purchaser holds them harmless from same.

Clark and Mary S. Clark, Husband and Wife unto Erik C. Wemple and Stephanie A. Mencimer, Husband and Wife.

The property address is part of parcel which currently has the improvements address of 115 Cheeks Lane, Oakland, MD 21550.

Said property is in fee simple and is sold in an "as is condition" and subject to all covenants, conditions, liens, restrictions, easement, rights-of-way as may affect same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $16,000.00 will be required at the time of sale, such deposit to be in cash, cashier's check, certified check, or in other form acceptable to the Substitute Trustees. Balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of the final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County. If payment of the balance does not take place within ten days of ratification, the deposit will be forfeited and property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed of trust note from date of sale to date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees in the event the property is purchased by someone rather than the note holder.

In the event settlement is delayed for any reason , there shall be no abatement of Interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges, assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $250.00 for outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to the date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees.

NOTE: The information contained herein was obtained from sources deemed to be reliable, but is offered for informational purposes only. Neither the auctioneer, the beneficiary of the Deed of Trust, the Substitute Trustee nor his agents or attorneys make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of information.

PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS ARE URGED TO PERFORM THEIR OWN DUE DILIGENCE WITH RESPECT TO THE PROPERTY PRIOR TO THE FORECLOSURE AUCTION.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND
Case No. 11-C-11-12330
The Honorable James L. Sherbin, Judge
Happy Days, LLC
10604 Bever Dam Road
Hunt Valley, MD 21030
vs
Robert F. Levy and Irene C. Levy and
All persons that have or claim to have any interest in property located in Election District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland, known as Lot No. 26, in Block A, Section 1, containing .55 acre, more or less, and described in a deed from Piney Mountain Corporation to Robert F. Levy and Irene C. Levy, husband and wife, dated November 2, 1967, and recorded November 21, 1967, in Liber No. 282, folio 550, one of the land records of Garrett County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this proceeding is to secure the foreclosure of all rights of redemption in the following property located and situate in Election District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland, sold by the Collector of taxes for the County of Garrett and the State of Maryland to the Plaintiff in this proceeding consisting of Lot 26 in Block A, Section 1, Piney Mountain Corporation, containing .55 acre, more or less, and described in a deed from Piney Mountain Corporation, to Robert F. Levy and Irene C. Levy, husband and wife, dated November 2, 1967, and recorded November 21, 1967, in Liber No. 282, folio 550, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland. The Complaint states, among other things, that the amounts necessary for redemption have not been paid.

It is thereupon, this 14th day of November 2011, by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, ORDERED, that Notice be given by insertion of a copy of this Order in some newspaper having a general circulation in Garrett County, once a week for three (3) successive weeks warning all persons interested in the property to appear in this Court by the 13th day of January 2012, and redeem the property and answer the Complaint, or thereafter a final judgment will be entered foreclosing all right of redemption in the property and vesting in the Plaintiff a title free and clear of all encumbrances.

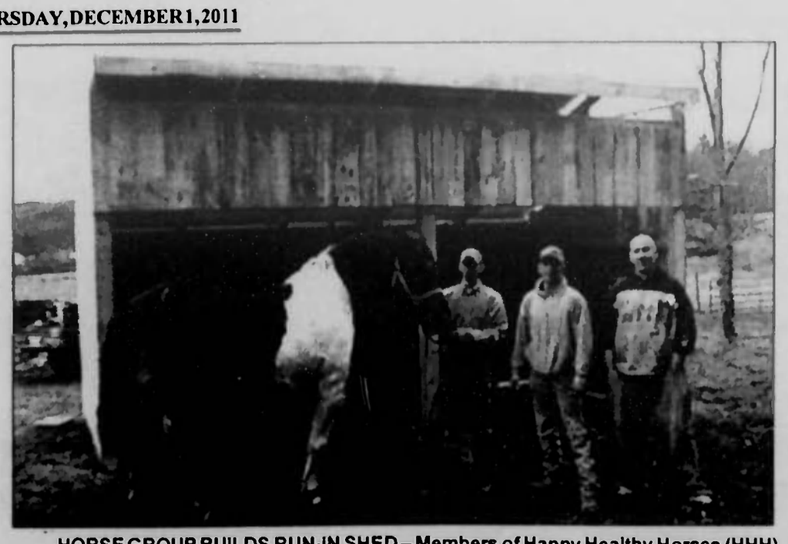
Town Hall

OAKLAND

The next town council meeting will be held on Monday, Dec. 5, at 7 p.m., with a public hearing set at 7:30 to address Annexation Resolution R2011-09, Northern Annexation 2.

The meeting will continue with the approval of the Nov. 7 meeting's minutes, the November financial report, and utility bill adjustments. There will be a discussion on the energy audit, and a request from the health department for pavilion use at Broadford Park. The Thrasher Engineering agreement will be reviewed pending MDE approval. A letter from county commissioners regarding the tax differential will be discussed, as well as the PACE display. The meeting will adjourn following the approval of bills, the mayor update, and committee reports.



HORSE GROUP BUILDS RUN-IN SHED – Members of Happy Healthy Horses (HHH) just completed a new run-in shed for local equines that need rehabilitation, training, temporary shelter, or medical care. HHH is the Garrett County Human Society's (GCHS) equine program that is under the direction of Deb Clatterbuck, GCHS animal control officer. She is assisted by Janet Ridder, Stefany Glotfelty, Katie Hinebaugh, and GCHS cadet presidents Natalie Arnold, southern Garrett County, and Megan Sines, northern Garrett County. More than a dozen of Garrett's youth volunteer to care for the horses, perform farm chores, trail ride, and learn as much as possible about equines. Various materials for the shed were supplied by Ridgidply Rafters and OC Cluss Lumber Company. Some of the local business owners who support HHH with numerous projects are pictured above. Christmas Sing Slated Sunday

The 30th annual "Christmas Melodies" sing will be held this Sunday, Dec. 4, at 2 p.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church, Red House. The public is invited to attend.

The event is under the sponsorship of the Adult Fellowship organization.

December Slate Of Bloodmobile Visits Announced

The American Red Cross bloodmobile is scheduled to make five visits to Garrett County during the month of December.

The first will be this Friday, Dec. 2, at the Oakland fire hall, where donors will be welcomed from noon to 6 p.m.

The bloodmobile and staff will be at Northern High School on Monday, Dec. 12, collecting blood from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The third visit will be hosted by Garrett County Memorial Hospital on Friday, Dec. 16, with donors asked to respond between 11 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The Oakland fire hall will again be the location for a visit slated for Friday, Dec. 23, from noon to 6 p.m.

The final regular local visit will be on Monday, Dec. 26, from noon to 5 p.m. at the Grantsville fire hall.

All presenting donors at these Garrett County drives will receive a Rita's Italian Ice coupon, courtesy of Rita's Italian Ice in LaVale, while supplies last. In addition, each week during December a presenting donor's name will be randomly drawn to win a $25 Rita's Italian Ice gift card.

"We greatly appreciate the support of Rita's Italian Ice during the holiday season. With the potential for inclement weather and outbreaks of colds and flu, it can be challenging this time of year to maintain sufficient blood supplies to meet patient needs," stated Carey Toth, donor recruitment representative.

She added that donors of all blood types are needed currently, particularly those with O positive, O negative, A negative, and B negative blood types.

Individuals who are at least 17 years of age (16 with parental permission in Maryland), meet height and weight requirements (at least 110 pounds based on height), and are in generally good health are typically eligible to donate blood. Persons are asked to bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive ID when responding to donate.

Those with specific eligibility questions are urged to call the Red Cross Donor Client Support Center at 1-866-236-3276. The majority of donors are eligible to give blood every 56 days.

Donation appointments may be scheduled at many Red Cross blood drives. To schedule a blood donation appointment where available, persons are invited to call 1-800-RED CROSS (733-2767) or go online to www.redcrossblood.org.

The Greater Alleghenies Region directly serves hospitals, patients, and donors in a 100-county area in Kentucky, Marvland, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia, with more than five dozen blood products and related services, and also supports blood needs experienced by patients elsewhere in hospitals served through Red Cross Blood Services.

KITZMILLER

CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

An Old-Fashioned Christmas Program ill be held this Friday Dec from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Kitzmiller Elementary School. The town will be conducting the tree lighting, and the Empowerment Group will provide sleigh rides by Ray Miller and be selling bows to place on the Christmas tree.

ONE SNARL OF THE DAY – Problems abounded in the southern end of Garrett County this morning, as well as in the Cranesville, W.Va., area and other surrounding locales, as a result of a heavy downpour of snow last night, which was preceded by slush and ice earlier yesterday. Roadways were treacherous this morning as well, causing a two-hour delay for public school students, following a one-hour early dismissal yesterday. The result of the storm can be seen in part above, as it brought down some massive trees and caused power outages. This tree fell across Center Street in Oakland last evening, causing a brown-out in much of the town, including this newspaper office, until about noon. Allegheny Power crews were out for hours, and remain out as of press time (which is several hours behind, of course), repairing widespread damage. The forecast for the rest of the weekend is a bit better, as it will be cold, but with just flurries here and there, all of which is much more characteristic of Garrett County in December anyway. Judge Reverses Conviction In Dep. Livengood Murder

A Washington County Circuit Court judge recently reversed the 1980 murder conviction of a Fairmont, W.Va., man in the shooting death of Garrett County sheriff's deputy David Livengood.

Judge Daniel Moylan ruled that the judge at Roberto Oskar Rezek's trial gave improper jury instructions. Rezek was granted a new trial. A date has not yet been scheduled.

Judge Fred C. Wright III presided over Rezek's Washington County jury trial over 30 years ago. Rezek was sentenced to life plus 15 years for first degree murder, robbery, grand larceny, and breaking and entering.

Moylan ruled that Wright's instructions on the law to the jury should have been binding and not advisory. Moylan cited two Maryland Court of Appeals decisions in which it was ruled "the court's instructions are binding on the jury."

Moylan noted in his ruling that Wright told the jury, "Anything I say to you about the law . . . is merely advisory and you are in no way bound by them. You may feel free to reject my advice on the law and arrive at your own independent conclusions as to what the law is."

Rezek and his codefendant, Richard Tichnell, had requested a change of venue from Garrett County. Tichnell was convicted of murder by a Wicomico County jury and received the death penalty, which was later commuted to a life sentence. He died in prison in 2006.

MORE THAN 8,000 POUNDS OF FOOD were delivered in Oakland last Wednesday, which will be used in an ongoing joint ministry outreach of the Episcopal Church in Garrett County, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, and Methodist churches of the northern end of the county. The churches' members work together year-round to help feed children in the local area who are in need of regular, nutritious meals. The food was purchased from the Maryland Food Bank by Priority Partners, the health and nutrition arm of Johns Hopkins Medicine, and then was donated and delivered to St. Mark's for use in this joint ecumenical feeding ministry, according to St. Mark's pastor, Scott Robinson. It is being stored at the former Food Lion building, now owned by First United Bank and Trust. Truck driver Troy Barner is pictured at left, and those who assisted in the unloading, some of whom are pictured above at right, were Stan Grimm, Dave Moran, Mike Konski, Bob Dempsey, Don Forrester, Gayle Bachtel, Pastor Chip Lee, and Pastor Robinson. Probation Violation Charge Results In Five-Year Sentence

A 33-year-old Pasadena man was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court on Monday to five years in the Division of Correction (DOC) for violating his probation. Bert Joseph Lorch had admitted in April that he was not paying restitution as required by the conditions of his probation, and the court had postponed sentencing for Lorch to provide additional information and to make payment in the interim.

Lorch had pleaded guilty in July 2007 in three cases involving burglaries at construction sites and the theft of tools. He was originally sentenced to 12 years in the DOC, with five years suspended. After being granted parole in January, Lorch's probation conditions became effective.

In an unrelated case, Thomas Matthew Tusing, 33, McHenry, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence of alcohol. Related charges were dismissed upon his plea.

Judge Jim Sherbin then sentenced Tusing to three years in the DOC and suspended all of that sentence. Tusing was placed on probation and ordered to abstain from consuming alcohol and

GC Commissioners Deny Junkyard License To Oakland Businessman

The Garrett County commissioners voted unanimously on Tuesday not to grant a junkyard license to Oakland area businessman Don Nine. Following their decision, the commissioners held a brief discussion about land-use restrictions and zoning.

"I believe the public has resoundingly articulated their concerns, interests, and apprehensions against the issuance of this junkyard license," Commission chair Gregan Crawford said. "I support their concerns."

Nine operates Don's Classic Car Company at 506 Hutton Road, where used vehicles are brought to the 4.5-acre property, salvaged for parts or repaired, and resold.

A public hearing on the application was held in November in which Nine outlined his plans for the license. He indicated he would not operate a junkyard per se, only a storage/recycling lot. Old cars would be stored in a 150-foot by 300-foot screened-in area at the back of the property. Restored vehicles would then be available for purchase on a lot in front of the property, and car shells would be transported from the site to a junkyard.

Nine noted that he had already installed a 7-foot high fence around the proposed storage area and was willing to erect more screening.

Many of Nine's neighbors objected to granting the license, voicing their concerns about the unsightliness of the property, possible negative impacts on the environment, and the potential for declining property values.

One of Nine's neighbors pointed out that at one point in 2007 more than 30 "junk" cars were on the Nine property, which prompted several people to petition the county to look into the violation.

The county junkyard ordinance states that no more than five vehicles slated to be junked or dismantled may be located on a property, unless the owner has a license.

The ordinance also states that a junkyard cannot be within 500 feet of any residence, retail business, church, or other institution, unless screening effectively prevents the junkyard from detracting from the value of those places.

It was noted at the hearing that at least one business is within 500 yards of the Nine property, and there are home owners who, despite fencing, can see the proposed junkyard/storage site from their elevated properties.

Licensing and enforcement inspector Mark Weber acknowledged at the hearing that the county has received complaints about the Nine property over the last three or four years and that Nine has brought it into compliance intermittently during that time.

Weber stressed, however, that Nine was working with his office to bring his property into compliance in order to get a license and become "legitimate."

On Tuesday, Commissioner Bob Gatto made a motion not to grant the license to Nine, based on the 500-foot setback stipulation in the junkyard ordinance.

"Even with the fence, I don't feel that's protecting those residents that are within that 500 feet, along with those businesses," Gatto said

Crawford seconded the motion, and Commissioner Jim Raley made the vote unanimous.

Raley indicated the lack of a junkyard license would not prevent Nine from continuing to do business on the site, but it would limit its operation. The commissioner noted that Nine could still keep up to five salvage cars on his property and/or erect a building to store/dismantle many more vehicles.

Local Lawmakers Scheduled Annual Prelegislative Mtg.

Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel will hold their annual prelegislative forum on Saturday, Dec. 17, at 10 a.m. in the Garrett College Continuing Education Building, Rooms 205-207.

The local lawmakers encourage citizens to attend the event and make comments, ask questions, or offer suggestions for the upcoming General Assembly session in Annapolis.

Edwards and Beitzel will be available to discuss any questions pertaining to state issues or legislative matters.

Swanton Man Dies After Hit And Run Incident Early Today

A Swanton man was pronounced dead along Bittinger Road/Rt. 495 this morning after police responded to a report of a person lying along the southbound shoulder. Garrett County sheriff's deputies are seeking any information regarding the accident, which has been deemed a hit and run.

Kenneth Wayne Friend, 52, was reportedly walking along Rt. 495 between New Germany and Dry Run roads sometime between 6 and 7 a.m. to help a neighbor shovel snow. He was struck by a passing vehicle that did not stop after the accident occurred. An investigator with the Maryland Examiner's Office responded to the scene.

Anyone who may have been in the area at the time of the accident or who might know the suspect involved is asked to contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911. Anonymous tipsters may also visit www.garrettcountycrimesolvers.org. Monetary rewards will be offered for pertinent information.

Deputies Seeking Info On Burglary Of Local Theater

Garrett County sheriff's deputies are investigating a burglary that occurred at Our Town Theatre, Center Street, Oakland, last Wednesday.

Unknown suspect(s) reportedly forced entry into the building and attempted to gain access to the safe. Anyone with information regarding the incident is asked to contact the GCSO or Garrett County Crime Solvers at 301-334-1911.

GC State's Attorney Welch Will Not Seek Death Penalty In Double Homicide Case

Garrett County state's attorney Lisa Thayer Welch announced Monday that she will not seek the death penalty in the case of Jeffrey Charles Minnick. The 46-year-old former Accident area resident was indicted by the grand jury in July with two counts of first degree murder in the stabbing deaths of Timothy Brandon Field Lax and Jessica Irene Baker.

"The state had filed a Notice of Intent to Seek Death Penalty in the case," Welch said. "The state is filing a motion to withdraw that notice and will, instead, be filing Notice of Intent to Seek Sentence of Imprisonment for Life Without Parole. In reaching this decision the state has continued to balance all factors, including the desires of the victims' families and the lengthy delays that are involved in a case implicating the death penalty."

A motions hearing scheduled in the Minnick case was postponed from Dec. 6 to Dec. 27. He has been incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail without bond since his arrest.

On June 1, Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Reese Street in Oakland when Minnick was discovered by residents and told them he had been stabbed. The defendant was taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for his injuries.

The deputies and K-9 unit went to a place Minnick was known to frequent – a wooded, vagrants' camp site along the railroad tracks between 2nd and 8th streets in Oakland. Upon their arrival, they found the bodies of Baker, 18, and Lax, 24. Both victims were of the Oakland area.

A warrant was served on the defendant upon his discharge from the hospital on June 3.

Minnick is listed on the Maryland Sex Offender Registry for a Tier III conviction in North Carolina. A Tier III conviction requires lifetime sexual offender registration.

He was also sentenced in Maryland to 10 years for second degree assault in January 2002 and two years for reckless endangerment. He was released from prison on March 16 after serving time for those convictions.

Publication Delayed

The Republican was uncharacteristically late to news stands today (Dec. 8), after a power outage resulting from last night's storm delayed the printing process for about two hours. As of press time telephone service at Sincell Publishing Co. Inc. was unavailable, but is now in working order.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO PRESENT "NOWELL" – The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Julie Turrentine, will present its 2011 Christmas concert, this year titled "Nowell," on Dec. 10 and 11 at St. Peter's at the Lake Center, located along Mosser Road just past Garrett College. The Saturday performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday's will start at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for those 18 and younger. A number of pieces by well-known composer John Rutter will be presented, as well as several traditional carols, and a version of "I Saw Three Ships" accompanied by the group Aurora Celtic, with members Mike Broderick, Aaron Martin, and Alice Fleischman (see photo on arts page). In addition to some British Christmas carols, the choral group will present a Paul Sjolund arrangement of "Silent Night," with soloist Joan Lambert. The performance will also again feature the Con Brio Singers, an octet, who will present two familiar Christmas tunes. This concert is being dedicated to the memory of Barbara Hatch, an alto singer who had just joined the group this year and who died suddenly in October. The group's main accompanist is Lynn Grimm. The choral society is a volunteer organization that involves about 50 singers from across Garrett County. The public is encouraged to attend.

FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS GATHERED on the Saturday after Thanksgiving for a barn raising at the farm of Loren and Leona Bender near Salisbury, Pa. The couple's barn was destroyed on Nov. 14 when an electrical short sparked a fire. Although the barn housed over 60 milk cows, only five calves were lost. Through the Mennonite Disaster Service, over 150 volunteers, including many Amish neighbors, helped to frame the new building on the barn raising day. Work is nearing completion on the inside of the barn now, including the cement floor, stalls, and milking equipment. The herd is currently being milked at a neighboring farm until the new building is complete. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

Md. Officials Push For Residents To Receive Flu Shot

Dr. Joshua Sharfstein, secretary of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and health officials throughout the state are encouraging all residents to receive their annual influenza vaccinations now, if they have not done so already.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention have designated the week of Dec. 4-10 as National Influenza Vaccination Week. According to CDC, it takes about two weeks after vaccination for antibodies to develop and provide protection against influenza virus infection. Because of this, CDC recommends early vaccination to ensure that as many people as possible are protected during the flu season.

"Our priority is keeping all Marylanders healthy and safe, Sharfstein said. "I urge all Maryland residents to get their flu vaccines before it's too late."

DHMH also reminds all Marylanders to use preventive measures during this flu season. These actions include: frequent and thorough hand washing, covering the mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing, and staying home from work or school when sick.

Typical flu symptoms include: fever, dry cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, headache and muscle aches, and extreme fatigue. While most people recover from an influenza virus infection, some individuals may be at risk for more serious complications.

Residents in high risk categories are encouraged to contact their physician or health care provider as soon as they experience any flu symptoms, especially fever and cough, to find out if they may benefit from anti-viral medications. If taken early in the course of the flu, these medications may help decrease the length of illness.

Persons over 65 years of age should check with their health care provider to make sure they are vaccinated for pneumococcal disease.

Other tips on avoiding the flu are available on the DHMH web site at www.dhmh.maryland.gov, and from the CDC web site's flu information web pages at http://www.cdc.gov/flu/.

Correction Noted

An article published last week in The Republican concerning the charitable donation of beverage "pop tops" to the Ronald McDonald House contained regrettable errors.

It stated that 20 pounds of "pop tops" were donated, when in fact the total donation weighed 200 pounds. Also, the news item incorrectly thanked the Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department for its sponsorship. It should have thanked the Deer Park VFW.

FIRST LEGO League Competition Slated At Northern High

A FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) LEGO League (FLL) robotics competition will be held at Northern High School on Saturday, Dec. 17, with matches beginning at 12:30 p.m. and the awards assembly beginning at 3:30 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

A total of 18 teams from Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties will be competing for one of seven invitations to the Maryland State FLL Tournament in January. Hosted by the FIRST Robotics Team 1629, teams will be judged in four categories: including robot performance, research presentation on the challenge theme, root design, and the core values of FIRST.

This year's challenge theme is "Food Factor," focusing on food safety. More information on this particular challenge can be found at www.firstlegoleague.org/challenge/2011foodfactor.

FLL teams consist of up to 10 students ages 9 to 14. Along with presenting creative solutions to problems in food safety, teams will be competing with LEGO based robots. Team members build their robots prior to the event to autonomously score as many points as possible on this year's challenge field in three separate, 2½-minute matches.

Teams will undergo research and technical judging, as well as participate in practice rounds with their robots in the morning. The event is one of 12 qualifier events in which teams must compete in order to go on to the state tournament.

Over 200 FLL teams compete within the state of Maryland. FLL is a worldwide program, with teams in more than 50 countries. "Nearly 200,000 children discover the fun and excitement in science and technology through the FLL events," noted a spokesperson.

For more information, persons may visit www.team1629.com.

GTS Seeks Input On Local Public Transportation

Garrett Transit Service, a department of the Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc., has made available a public survey to gather input concerning public transportation needs and services in the county.

The survey is available at the GCCAC web site: www.garrettcac.org or by logging on to www.surveymonkey.com/s/S5GVPJX. For those who prefer a paper copy of the survey, copies have been placed at the following locations around the county: GCCAC, Center Street, Oakland; Department of Social Services, Garrett Hwy., Oakland; Garrett County Health Department, Memorial Drive, Oakland; Friendsville library and Post Office, and Grantsville's town hall and Post Office. Surveys need to be completed by Wednesday, Dec. 21.

The public opinion survey is being conducted as a way to gather input, particularly from non-riders of public transportation in the county. A rider survey is also being conducted aboard the GTS vehicles as part of a Transit Development Plan.

The purpose of the study is to develop a five-year plan for public transportation services in Garrett County, and an important task for this effort is to solicit input from residents concerning transit needs. Individual survey responses will be kept confidential and will not be identified by the name of the respondent.

The Transit Development Plan is being conducted by the KFH Group, a consulting firm that specializes in the transit industry, with funding assistance through the Maryland Transit Administration. For more information on the plan or the survey, persons may contact John Hill, director of transportation for GTS, at jhill@garrettcac.org or 301-533-9010, ext. 301.

Several People Injured In Three-Vehicle Accident

Several people were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a multiple vehicle accident on Rt. 135 in Deer Park last Friday. Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to the 6:40 p.m. scene.

Investigation revealed that Michael D. Haire Jr., 31, Grantsville, had been traveling east on Maryland Highway, Rt. 135, when he crossed the centerline, hitting two vehicles traveling west. The first vehicle was driven by Elaine P. Warnick, 70, Barton, who had one passenger, Gerald L. Warnick, 72. The second vehicle was driven by Heather D. Byrd, 30, Swanton, who had a juvenile passenger riding with her. All involved parties were taken to GCMH by Southern Rescue Squad and later released.

Charges are pending additional investigation. Alcohol is believed to be a factor in the accident. Deer Park volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Man Arrested In Connection With Church Burglary

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested a West Virginia man following an investigation into a reported burglary that occurred at the Loch Lynn Church of God on Oct. 6.

GCSO investigators, assisted by investigators with the C3I unit, Cumberland, arrested Joshua Lee Delawder, 27, Keyser, last Friday at a Rawlings residence. An undisclosed amount of currency was stolen during the burglary, and property damage was done inside the church. Delawder is charged with second-degree burglary, theft under $1,000, and destruction of property over $500.

He was taken to the Allegany County Jail on $25,000 bond and later transported to the Garrett County Jail, where he is currently being held.

Adorable Adoptables

Four Arrested By GC Deputies For Trespassing

Four men were arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies on Saturday after a trespassing complaint was made concerning a Fingerboard Road residence.

Chad Anthony Cerrito, 27, Oakland, Carl Devon Sliger, 20, Terra Alta, W.Va., Cody William Burgess, 19, Rowlesburg, W.V.a, and a juvenile, Oakland, were all found to have trespassed on posted private property. The juvenile was also charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia.

Sliger, Cerrito, and Burgess were all taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing. The juvenile was later released to the custody of his parents.

The births of three babies were announced this week, two boys and one girl

A son, Mason Tucker, was born to Holly and Walter Bittinger, Salisbury, Pa., on Nov. 26 at Western Maryland Health System, Cumberland. The maternal grandparents are Rick and Donna Blamble, Oakland, and the paternal grandparents are Paul and Linda Bittinger, Salisbury.

A son, Colton Levi, was born to Jeffrey and Melissa (Beckman) Jones, Swanton, on Nov 1 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The maternal grandparents are Jimmy and Mary Beckman, and the paternal grandparents are Gary and Lois Jones, and the late Carolyn Jones.

A daughter, Lyla Kay, was born to Nathan and Anissa (Jamison) Frantz, Centreville, Va., on Nov. 2 at Reston (Va.) Hospital. The maternal grandparents are Ken and Sandy Jamison, Oakland,and the paternal grandparents are Jerry and Deb Frantz Winc, Mtn. Lake Park, and the late Paul Frantz.

Civic Club Names J. Gallagher 2011 Woman Of Year

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland has announced that Jo Gallagher is the group's 2011 Woman of the Year.

Gallagher is the club's membership chairman, and members describe her as "truly an asset to the club."

She also is a Hospice volunteer, a member of the League of Women Voters, AAUW, Catholic Daughters, Alpine Lake Ladies Golf Organization, and St. Peter's Catholic Church and choir.

She was born on Valentine's Day in Pottsville, Pa., and moved to Maryland in 1973 when she married her husband Dick. She is a graduate of St. Joseph's College and worked in telecommunications for 31 years before retiring to Garrett County in 2003.

The honoree's hobbies include gardening, golfing, bowling, dancing, playing poker, interior design, taking care of her dog, and traveling. She said she "loves anything Irish, especially Irish festivals and Notre Dame football."

"Civic Club members indeed feel fortunate to have Jo as a member," a spokesperson said.

A Double Standard...

Elected officials often have no problem making decisions when the effects of those decisions have no direct, personal, negative impact on them. But when those decisions or situations do in fact affect them personally, their decision is sometimes different. Case in point is the announcement at the county commissioners' meeting this week by Chairman Gregan Crawford that he is ready to make a motion to "develop zoning laws that will regulate the propagation and proliferation of future wind projects in the county." Turns out that the commissioner lives close to a wind turbine and says that he "can hear it every day."

Such a motion by the board chair could not come at a better time. While the wind industry has already "invaded" the county and, in the opinion of some, marred our scenic ridgetops, because of a continued total lack of zoning/regulations, there are three more local wind projects planned for the near future. All these companies currently need are grid authorization and a building permit.

Interestingly, the commissioners just this past week turned down a request by an Oakland area businessman that he be granted permission to have an auto junkyard on his property. Because of the eyesore problems caused by junkyards that caused a major stir several decades ago, the county commissioners at the time did craft regulations to give them some county-wide control over junkyards. The concept behind it all is to protect adjacent property owners from being subjected to having to look at these yards "every day." Isn't is interesting – isn't it a travesty – that property owners who are now located adjacent to the wind turbine projects were not afforded the same consideration, as they saw forestland right beside them or right across the road from them clear-cut to accommodate massive wind towers – towers that are noisy and feature relentless, annoying light flicker, as noted by Commissioner Crawford. Seems like a classic double standard.

To be clear, there is no accusation here that Commissioner Crawford would not be concerned about wind turbines if he did not live close to one. But there is no question that actually being a victim typically gives one a little more impetus to take action. It is a sincere hope that at least one of the other two commissioners will provide a second to the motion that is apparently about to be made by Mr. Crawford, and based upon statements made by Crawford in a recent letter to one of the wind companies, he may already have that support. "The board does not support further industrialization of ridge tops until a prudent and reasonable public policy has been created and enacted that will provide protections to those who will be adversely impacted," he wrote. Note that he wrote, "The board...."

Some of us now eagerly await the commissioners' follow-through on this issue.

To the Editor,

I was saddened to hear of the passing of Cynthia Knight. For me she will be a voice missed in our community where a different opinion or tilt of thinking is a welcomed and healthy slant from the average perception.

I never met Cynthia nor know much about her, but I can say I was always pleased to see she had posted another letter. The fact that we have this forum to express ourselves, the freedom to do so, and citizens willing to take the time is most telling about the true character and spirit of America.

Cynthia Knight was a wife, a mother, and a citizen. She will be missed.

To the Editor:

All people should volunteer for a charity. Volunteering is like this: One single person – like one candle – can make a difference. You can make other less fortunate people feel happy.

The elderly, under privileged, and sick people feel lonely, all cooped up where they are. They need company and companionship. For example, you could visit them or take them to lunch.

There are other ways you can help. If you love animals, you could volunteer at an animal shelter. If you like business or organizing things, you could hold a fundraiser for a worthy charity. Also, if you have a great voice, you could use it to educate others like I am right now. Finally, if you like to cook or even if you are just good at making sandwiches, you might find a way to feed hungry people in your area.

Every person is important and every person can do something – like you!

To the Editor:

Cell phones have helped us for many years, but they are causing us many problems in the car. Being distracted leads to more crashes, and that is what cell phones are causing us to do. The under-20 age group had the most fatal crashes because they were texting while driving. The majority of teens ignore cell phone driving restrictions. This can lead to more crashes. It's against the law to text and drive, so you could get a ticket. One fifth of experienced adults still text while driving.

Nothing is more important than keeping your eye on the road when you drive.

To the Editor:

Statistics show that this is a very lonely, depressing time of the year for some of our neighbors, especially our shut-ins. Many are 60 years of age and older, some of whom are bedridden. They are living longer, but many have no family in the area and are unable to get out to be with others.

The Meals on Wheels Program, through the Area Agency on Aging, provides home delivery of approximately 2,500 meals per month. This is not an easy task for an area like ours because of distances and weather conditions. The delivery of these meals puts a smile on the faces of many people in our county. Many days the person delivering a meal may be the only person these people may see. They truly make a world of difference to these individuals.

This year I am asking you and your readers to make a contribution to Meals on Wheels in the name of a friend or relative. Knowing that another individual will have a hot meal will make you feel good. These people need to eat all year long, so make a generous contribution, avoid the crowds, and take a tax-deduction for your gift. Make your check payable to Meals on Wheels, 104 E. Center Street, Oakland, MD 21550.

Thank you for your time and consideration, and happy holidays to you and yours!

Barbara A. Briggs

To the Editor:

Another jewel has been added to Garrett County's crown. The fourth grade students at Grantsville Elementary recently had the opportunity to tour the Garrett County Transportation and historical museums. We all thought it was awesome. The transportation museum has old cars, a toy train, and boats. The historical museum has lots of rooms. There was a Civil War room, a log cabin room, and a mining room.

Our Transportation Museum guide, Bob Boal, was exciting and energetic. He always had a smile on his face and was ready to answer any question. He told us all about the cars and boats. He also introduced us to antiques. We encourage you to visit the new Transportation Museum.

Our historical museum guide, Mrs. Norma Rickman, was very knowledgeable and nice. We all enjoyed the experience to come and to learn how Garrett County used to be. Our class would like to come again. We learned a lot about the Deer Park Hotel. We are going to persuade our parents to take us again. It was very exciting. Thank you for inviting us over.

A very heartfelt thank-you to the Smith Family Foundation for generously paying for our bus transportation to and from Oakland. It was a very cool experience.

In closing, we encourage everyone to visit and explore these wonderful assets in Oakland. We appreciate all the hard work that was put into the museums. We are fortunate to have all the historic items in the museums.

To the Editor:

Regarding the Marcellus shale drilling (aka fracking) and Ruth Yoder's wise words of caution in last week's letters to the editor, the residents of Garrett County should know that the EPA has finally proven that the process of fracking can contaminate wells.

The EPA did a three-year study in a small town, Pavillion, Wyoming, begun under the Bush administration, testing the town's wells (42 domestic and four stock wells), plus two they drilled themselves deeper into the aquifer.

The following results were released in November: The town's wells were polluted with about 20 different harmful chemicals, including methane and benzene, due to the underground process of the drilling itself. This pollution was not caused by surface spills or agricultural chemicals.

The Canadian company doing the drilling (Encana) has had to truck water into the town. Even taking a shower in their well water is dangerous. The residents are advised to ventilate their bathrooms when they shower. And the company and the EPA are investigating "alternatives for permanent alternative sources of water." In other words, the damage is permanent.

We should all be grateful to our governor for putting the brakes on the approval process that would have destroyed our water, and I fervently hope his commission takes the EPA's findings into account.

Sincerely,
Susan Thayer Haydel

To the Editor:

I don't know whether this is the Race to the Bottom or Send in the Clowns!

Newt Gingrich is now gaining momentum from Herman Cain's supporters and the support of the elusive pro-adultery voters of the Right wing of the Republican Party.

It's rumored that Cain is now goign back to the pizza business. The Religious Right apparently doesn't mind a little hanky panky (or even multiple sexual abuse allegations), but draws the line at a 13-year affair. So (Ubeki-beki-beki-beki-stan-stan) Cain has finally suspended his campaign.

However, the Junior Janitor and Juvenile Mopping Association of America has wholeheartedly thrown in its support behind Gingrich (without declaring themselves lobbyists), and they are lobbying school principals around the country for their fair share of the work. The next step in this natural progression is for the 8-9-year-olds to mow the soccer fields prior to the Saturday game. This Newt is really chock full of some great ideas! I understand one of the planks in his platform will be full employment of every one below the age of 12.

It's also rumored the historians around the country are lining up to give history lessons to Fannie & Freddie – they just need to agree on a fee schedule.

In a private meeting with Reince Priebus, Newt promised to keep his patriotism under control and spend less than $500,000 a year at Tiffany's. He also agreed he would give discounts to the Republican Party for future speeches if it would forget about his previous stance on global warming, and Photo-Shop him out of that picture with Nancy Pelosi.

It's still a crying shame their isn't a voting booth in jail for one of Newt's most ardent supporters – Tom De-Lay. (I just hope he doesn't wear his "Dancing With The Stars" wardrobe in prison – wink, wink....)

May be each of the Republican's front runners could ride an elephant down Pennsylvania Avenue to keep the circus going!

I've got an idea for a bumper sticker: "It's Tough being Republican in Garrett County."

To the Editor:

My friends Stephanie Abe and Will Biser and I wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to all who assisted us in our fundraising effort to gather funds to return to Sucre, Bolivia, with the Bolivia Mission Team to work again this year at the Shalom Es Mi Casa orphanage. This event was held last week at the Oak-Mar Restaurant.

A special note of thanks goes to Andrew Fike and his restaurant staff for their extraordinary assistance for the event. Expressions of appreciation go to all who helped that evening: Jodi Kulack, Evan Savopolous, Britni Brenneman, Ashly Davis, Julie Hartman, Maliya Teets, Lynda Quan, Shelby Beck, Ron DeWitt, Shane Snider, Betsy Digman, Debbie Glotfelty, Veronica Gordon, and Dixie Few.

We also want to share our gratitude with all those who prepared the outstanding selection of desserts for the evening. And, finally, we want to say thanks to everyone who purchased a meal, as the entire cost went toward helping cover the expenses of the trip for us.

For the three of us, this will be our second trip to serve in this international mission when we depart at the end of December. We will be part of a larger team that will be constructing another house at the second orphanage location, which will house another 10 or so abused and/or abandoned children and their assigned house parents. We also recognize that we go as your representatives because your support is what makes this possible for us to make a difference in the lives of these children.

Again, we thank each one of you for your help. Please keep us and the entire team in your prayers as we depart to serve.

In Appreciation,
Jason Johnson

For years The Republican banner on the front page was always the same – a predictable logo or trademark.

For the past year or so, however, I've noticed something no reader has commented on in print – subtle variations of the coloring and background in The Republican banner.

I especially loved the November 24 banner. Close examination shows a fearful turkey running away from the reader, leaving a trail of feathers behind in the wake of his haste.

This had me chuckling, and I say "kudos" and more power to the graphic designer or artist who is developing the weekly banner! Please know that your work is appreciated.

ordered to pay fines and costs totaling $1,145.

Tusing was charged in July by Garrett County sheriff's deputies who responded to a call for an unresponsive driver in a vehicle on the roadway at the intersection of Winding Way Road and Lake View Court in McHenry. Investigation revealed Tusing had consumed quantities of alcohol prior to driving and he was unable to complete field sobriety tests satisfactorily, according to the state's attorney.

In other court proceedings, Shawn Leroy Fazenbaker, 19, admitted to violating his probation. Sherbin revoked his probation and sentenced him to serve 18 months in the Garrett County Jail.

In September 2010, Fazenbaker was charged by Garrett County sheriff's deputies with the theft of three guns removed from the residence of a friend with whom he was residing in the summer of 2010. The guns were recovered, and witnesses identified Fazenbaker as one of the persons who had sold the guns to a third party, the state's attorney noted.

Fazenbaker had pleaded guilty in June to theft ($100 to $1,000 in value), and the 18-month sentence was suspended in favor of probation. Fazenbaker violated his probation by changing addresses without permission from his probation agent and by not obeying all laws, as he was cited for driving revoked and was found in possession of a controlled dangerous substance and drug paraphernalia, according to the state's attorney.

In another recent court case, Brad Lawrence Sturgis Jr., 25, Glen Burnie, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. Sherbin sentenced him to one year in the Garrett County Jail, suspending all but 10 days. Sturgis was also fined $300.

He was charged in February by the Maryland State Police who were called to a McHenry hotel about possible marijuana use in one of the rooms. A K-9 gave a positive alert in front of Sturgis's room.

Troopers questioned Sturgis, who admitted to having marijuana and a metal smoking device on his person. He also said there was more marijuana in the room. Sturgis gave troopers permission to search the room, where they found the additional marijuana and a smoking device, according to court records.

In an unrelated case Timothy Lee Rounds, 34, Oakland, pleaded guilty to driving on a revoked license. Related charges were dismissed upon his plea.

Sherbin sentenced him to one year in the Garrett County Jail, then suspended six months of that sentence. Rounds will be on probation upon his release. Fines and costs totaling $725 were also imposed.

Rounds was charged by Maryland State Police who stopped the vehicle he was driving last May in the Swanton area for a speeding violation. Subsequent investigation revealed Rounds's license was suspended and revoked and the vehicle he was driving was uninsured.

In another court proceeding this week, Adam James Beitzel, 19, pleaded guilty to sexual solicitation of a minor. Sherbin then sentenced Beitzel to 60 days in the Garrett County Jail and suspended 30 days of the sentence. He will be on probation upon his release from the jail. Court costs totaling $305 were also assessed.

Beitzel was arrested in May by investigators with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office who determined he had been text messaging with a person he believed was underage and arranged to meet that person for illegal activities.

RETIRED AFTER 28 YEARS – Jim Burnworth, 67, Confluence, Pa., recently retired from Phenix Technologies with 28 years of service to the company. He began employment in 1983 in the assembly department. He mostly worked on resonant test sets, Thoma-type regulators, and dielectric test sets, and specialized in column type regulators. "I enjoyed my work and always had good co-workers," he said. He recalls traveling to Jasper Electric Motors, Alabama, and to ABB in Quebec City to work on regulators. "I especially liked seeing the old world, European style of Quebec City." He used to hunt and fish and is looking forward to spending his time fishing again. He and his wife Alice, also retired, have been married 46 years and have three children and three great-grandchildren. Their son David is a pastor in Kansas City, their son Brian is a design engineer for Johnson Control Power, York, Pa., and their daughter Lisa homeschools her two children.

Eugene D. Helbig Retires From First United Bank, Trust

Eugene D. Helbig Jr., Oakland, senior vice president and senior trust officer of First United Bank & Trust, recently announced his retirement after 25 years of employment, according to William B. Grant, president and chief executive officer.

After serving in the U.S. Navy from 1972 to 1975, Helbig returned to Oakland and was employed by Garrettland Realty as rental manager/bookkeeper while attending college. He then worked for Rodeheaver and Associates, Oakland, as the company's supervising senior accountant.

Helbig was hired by First United in 1986, working first in the Auditing Department. He moved to the Trust Department and was named trust officer in March 1988, and two years later was promoted to senior trust officer.

In his final position with the bank he was responsible for the management of approximately $550 million assets in the Trust and Investments Department, plus $140 million in Investment Services assets. Under his management the Trust & Investments assets grew to almost $800,000,000.

"All of us at First United wish Gene the very best in retirement," said Grant. "During his 25 years of service, he did a tremendous job serving his trust customers, and overseeing the 10-fold growth of his department from $60 million to over $600 million in assets under his management. We will miss his passion for the business and his expertise."

Helbig is a graduate of Frostburg State University, where he earned a bachelor's degree in business administration. He was also a part of the FSU College of Business Advisory Council and was named an FSU College of Business "Who's FSU" inductee. He attended numerous financial, investment, estate, and banking seminars, including many Cannon Trust School seminars, which includes the Sales Manager School. He is a graduate of the National Graduate Trust School and is licensed for Series 7 NASD. He passed the certified public accountant exam in 1982, the certified financial planner exam in 1988, and the Series 7 exam in 1998.

In addition to his banking duties, Helbig is a long-time member of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board of governors, and serves as the treasurer of the GCMH Foundation, of which he is a charter member and for which he also serves as the chairman of the Planned Gifts Committee.

He is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church, where he is the Parish Committee treasurer, lector, and usher. He also belongs to the Knights of Columbus, American Legion Post #71, the Maryland Bankers Association Trust Committee, the Maryland Association of CPAs, and the American Institute of CPAs.

He is a former member of the Oakland Mountain Lake Park Lions Club, Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and the National Ski Patrol at the Wisp.

Helbig resides in Oakland with his wife Cathy. They are the parents of one son, Justin, and one daughter, Katie, and the grandparents of three children.

Mr. Upole, Miss Bowman Marry

Norma Bowman Wilt and Gene Wilt have announced the marriage of their daughter Connie Diane to Michael Upole. He is the son of Gile and Karen Upole of Oakland. Connie is also the daughter of the late Sam Bowman.

The wedding took place on Friday, Nov. 11, at the Baehr Memorial Chapel in Mendota, Va. The service was conducted by the Rev. Jim Sproles.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School, class of 1987, and is employed at the Bristol Hospital in Bristol, Tenn.

The groom is a graduate of Southern High School, class of 1988 and is employed at Jacob's Field Services Inc. in Kingsport, Tenn.

The couple reside in Mendota. The wedding reception was held at their home.

NORMA MARKLEY

Norma Markley, 71, Peter's Creek, Alaska, passed away on Sunday, Dec. 4, 2011, at Providence Hospital in Anchorage, Alaska, following complications from a head injury that occurred in a sudden fall.

Born Sept. 2, 1930, in Grantsville, Norma was the youngest daughter of the late Simon Opel and Elsie Beitzel.

She married Clayton, "Bud" Markley in 1948, and together they reared three children, Jack, Dan, and Rachel.

Having vacationed in Alaska, the family drove the Alcan in 1970 and settled in Chugiak, which became her home for the next 41 years. In true pioneer spirit, the family built a log cabin, and Norma enjoyed dog mushing and shooting her muzzleloader rifle. She loved fishing on the Kenai River, camping, and canoeing

Known for her warm hospitality, she was always interested in a good story or a new recipe. Kind-hearted and generous, she would cook feasts and send leftovers home with everyone.

Norma's laughter was contagious, and her home was where every child and neighbor loved to be. She was an avid quilter and made sure every family member owned at least one quilt. She will be remembered for enjoying a good read and had a special fondness for her cats.

Norma is survived by two sons, Jack Markley and wife Judy, Wasilla, Alaska, and Dan Markley and wife Patty, Medical Lake, Wash.; one daughter, Rachel Cavitt and husband David, Eagle River, Alaska; five grandchildren, Jennifer Tackitt, Jason Markley, Sarah Markley, Rebekah Carley, and Hayley Cavitt; four great-grandchildren, Kaitlynn and Kayanna Tackitt and Trevin and Emery Carley; one sister, Mary Brenneman Frye, Grantsville, and one brother, Robert Opel, Chugiak, Alaska.

Friends will be received on Friday at 3 p.m. at Evergreen Funeral Home, Eagle River, where a funeral service will be conducted on Saturday, Dec. 10, at 11 a.m.

Norma's body will be buried next to her late husband's at Wasilla Aurora Cemetery.

Tax-deductible memorial donations can be made to Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Committee, P.O. Box 870800, Wasilla, AK 99687; or online at www.iditarod.com.

WARM THE CHILDREN

Providing New Warm Winter Clothing for Needy Children

The Republican newspaper and the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland are now engaged in the 14th year of Warm the Children. The program provides new winter clothing and footwear for Garrett County children in need. Because the program is a function of the newspaper and of volunteers, every penny donated goes toward the purchase of these items. The following individuals and/or organizations donated to the fund this week. An advertisement with information about how to contribute can be found elsewhere in today's issue.

PLEASANT VIEW BAPTIST PRESENTING CHRISTMAS PUPPET SHOW – A biennial tradition is being upheld at the Pleasant View Baptist Church as members of the congregation will present a puppet show to celebrate Christmas. This year's offering is titled An Unexpected Christmas, and it will be presented 12 times over the next two weekends. The first performance will be Friday, Dec. 9, at 6:30 p.m. The remaining show times are as follows: Saturdays, Dec. 10 and 17, at 2, 4, and 6 p.m.; Sundays, Dec. 11 and 18, at 4 and 6 p.m.; and Friday, Dec. 16, at 6:30 p.m. There is no cost for the presentation, but seats are limited at each showing so persons must have reservations, a spokesperson said, who also cautioned that reservations are filling fast, so persons should make theirs as soon as possible by going online at www.pleasantviewbc.org or by calling the church office at 301-334-8515. The Pleasant View Baptist Church is located 2 miles south of Oakland along U.S. Route 219.

"Celebration Of Dance" To Be Staged At WVU

The WVU Dance program will present an informal concert at the Creative Arts Center called "A Celebration of Dance" on Friday, Dec. 9. The event is a culmination of this semester's creative work by 12 choreographers and 41 dancers from the program.

There will be two performances, at 7 and 9 p.m., in the Antoinette Falbo Theatre at the Creative Arts Center, Morgantown, W.Va. Seating is general admission and all tickets are $9.

"The program will also feature a sneak preview of our new Masterworks initiative," said Yoav Kaddar, director of the dance program. "Students will perform works in progress, featuring 'Aureole' by American master choreographer Paul Taylor. The complete and fully produced dance will be the centerpiece of our spring concert, 'Dance Now!' to be held Feb. 2, 3, and 4 at the Creative Arts Center.

Tickets for the dance concert may be purchased by calling 304-293-7469 or by visiting the WVU Box Office at the Mountainlair or the Creative Arts Center. They are also available through Ticketmaster outlets, or by visiting www.ticketmaster.com.

TO PRESENT CHRISTMAS CANTATA – The Loch Lynn Church of God choir, directed by Shirley Fitzwater, will present a Christmas Cantata titled "The Night Before Christmas" on Friday, Dec. 16, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 18, at 6 p.m. Pastors Ivan and Cindy Ackerman and the congregation invite the public to attend the praise and worship celebration. The church is located at 8649 Gorman Road, Oakland, beside WKHJ Radio station. For more information, persons may call the church at 301-334-3221.

SHS Chorus, Band To Give Combined Holiday Concert

The Southern Garrett High School chorus and concert band will join to present a Christmas concert at the high school on Monday, Dec. 19, beginning at 7 p.m. (Originally the date was set for Dec. 16, but was changed because that is also the time for the Southern Middle School Christmas Extravaganza.)

The chorus is under the direction of Debi Beachy The group will be accompanied by Sean Beachy.

The band is directed by Joshua Elmlinger. Both groups will present several holiday pieces, and will join together for some of the presentation.

The Southern band is now selling raffle tickets for a half beef, donated to the group by the Newman Funeral Home. The winning ticket will be drawn at this concert. The proceeds will benefit the band and the high school's foods department. Raffle tickets are available from any band member or any foods department student.

There is no admission price to this concert, but donations will be appreciated. The chorus will sell baked goods at the event.

Raley said the junkyard issue lends itself to a future discussion about land-use restrictions and countywide zoning.

"This happens to be one of those categories where land use has been restricted," Raley said about the junkyard ordinance.

He indicated that some people do not like the looks of wind turbines, a category in which the county has no ordinance.

"Does the county want comprehensive zoning or don't they, or do we want to be selective in zoning," Raley asked. "I think it's a discussion that Commissioner Crawford brought up early this morning, that is one that is substantive to the future of Garrett County and where we want to be, because, very clearly, this is about limiting people's use of their land."

Crawford had noted earlier in the commissioners' public session that without countywide zoning, three proposed wind turbine projects will be constructed in Garrett County.

"I think this is exactly the type of case for which some sort of zoning needs to exist," Crawford said about the junkyard issue. "Nobody ever wants any land control until after someone puts a junkyard next to their house or a dirt race track next to a community."

He said, contrary to what many people believe, zoning can protect property values, adding he always thought it strange that one individual's rights can automatically trump everybody else's.

"I guess the question is," Crawford said, "Can the absence of zoning be far worse than the presence of zoning, and that's what we need to decide."

AURORA CELTIC TO JOIN IN CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT – Aurora Celtic, an area music group, will take part in this weekend's performance of the Garrett Choral Society, both accompanying the chorus as well as playing a few pieces of their own. Aurora Celtic consists of Mike Broderick, Alice Fleischman, and Aaron Martin, pictured above from left. The trio, which has performed throughout the Mid-Atlantic states, Europe, and the Kennedy Center, plays "evocative, energetic traditional music for fiddle, Irish flute, mandolin, tenor banjo, and pennywhistle that bridges the cultures of Scotland, Ireland, and Appalachia," a spokesperson said. The choral society performances will be held at St. Peter's at the Lake, a church located along Mosser Road, just past Garrett College, on Saturday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 11, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for those 18 and younger.

Store in Oakland during the early morning hours of Jan. 18, 1979. The deputy was shot seven times. His K-9 Sarge was mortally wounded with a samurai sword.

Rezek and Tichnell fled the scene in the deputy's police cruiser. A short time later, the suspects accosted a family in their Deer Park residence. They tied the family up and stole their car. Later that day, Rezek and Tichnell were taken into custody by the West Virginia State Police near Morgantown.

SHS Boys' Varsity Opens Season With Easy Victory Over Frankfort

Leading the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team to a resounding 76-42, season-opening victory over visiting Frankfort on Tuesday were seniors Kurt Gangler and D.J. Ritchie.

Gangler hit a game-high 22 points, while Ritchie was right behind with 21 points, as the Rams took control of the contest in the opening moments and never looked back.

The Rams, coached by Jon Hegeman, jumped out to a 22-6 advantage by the end of the first quarter, led 46-19 at intermission, and took a commanding 64-31 lead into the final stanza.

Also reaching double figures for Southern was Wyatt McBee with a dozen points, while teammate Drew Miller chipped in with eight.

The Falcons, who were also opening their 2011-12 campaign, were led offensively by Jordan Wilson and Ryan Minnigh with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

The Ram junior varsity and freshman teams also opened their seasons on positive notes, with the jayvees recording a 40-30 win, and the Ram freshmen earning a 49-29 victory. Leading the SHS jayvees in scoring was Dave Hinebaugh with 19 points.

The Rams are scheduled to host Hampshire this Friday and travel to Keyser next Tuesday. The junior varsity games will tip off at 6 p.m. and the varsity clashes will get under way at 7:30.

Lakers Fall To Trojans In OT, Defeat Westmoreland, Rockville

After holding a slim 29-28 edge at halftime over host and arch rival Allegany College of Maryland in Cumberland on Saturday, the Garrett College Lakers ultimately fell to the Trojans in overtime, 84-76, in a Maryland JUCO Conference clash.

The Lakers rebounded Monday, however, in Youngwood, Pa., where they recorded a 75-63 win over Westmoreland CC in a non-conference tilt.

The split left the Lakers with an overall record of 5-5 and a JUCO mark of 1-3.

Allegany's Casey Roberts gave the Lakers the most trouble in Saturday's game, as he finished with a game-high 30 points and scored 10 of those in the overtime period.

The former standout at Allegany High School also pulled down nine rebounds.

The Lakers actually led through most of the contest, but the Trojans knotted the score with 6:41 remaining in regulation. A tie of 65-65 at the buzzer sent the game into the extra period, in which the Lakers were out-scored by a 19-11 margin.

Garrett's Antonio Butler was right behind Roberts in scoring, as he finished with 29 points on 10 buckets and an 8-for-11 effort at the foul line. Teammates Armond Perez and Din Moore each scored 16 points.

Others finishing in double figures for the Trojans (3-6, 3-1 JUCO) were Ricky Mosley with 19 points, Sam Dale with 11, and Chris Day with 10 points. Day was also credited with seven assists.

Each team finished with 29 field goals, but the home team made good on 22 of 32 throws.

Despite a relatively unimpressive team shooting performance by the Lakers, they nonetheless held the lead through the entire game. The Wolfpack could get no closer than within six points in the second half.

"We didn't shoot well, and they played hard and controlled the tempo of the game," said Laker head coach Dennis Gibson, "but they really didn't have an answer to Butler going to the hoop underneath. I'm just glad we found a way to win it."

Perez scored 18 points for the Lakers, while Matt Gibson recorded 10 and Din Moore had seven assists. Butler also led the team in rebounding with nine. Patrice Tekeda just missed double figures, as he finished with nine points.

Leading the Wolfpack offensively were Augustus Moreno and Zachary Landes with 17 and 16 points, respectively. Eddie McKlueon added 12 points, and Troy Parsley scored 10.

Butler came through once again last night as the Lakers' leading scorer in the win over Rockville, as he drained 25 points, while Moore led a second-half rally by netting all 13 of his points in the second half.

Rockville held a 29-25 edge at the half, and the Lakers were down by 10 in the second half. They still trailed by five with less than two minutes to play, but Moore hit some key buckets and Matt Gibson sunk a three-pointer at the shot-clock buzzer that put Garrett on top by five.

Gibson finished with eight points, and Butler had nine from the line, while the Lakers hit 12 of 18 opportunities.

Butler emerged as the top gun for the Lakers in Monday's win over Westmoreland, as he netted 25 points via 10 field goals and three free

Southern Girls Drop Season Opener To FH

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball team performed well, but appeared to have a few kinks to work out in the team's season opener, played and lost on Monday in Oakland to Fort Hill, 53-48.

The progress of the contest was hampered by the ref's whistle, as the two teams combined for 50 fouls and 75 free throws. It was the battle for rebounds, however, that ultimately cost the Rams, who were overpowered on the boards by the Sentinels.

Southern led at the half by a margin of 25-24, behind the effort of Kambrie Bosley, who hit three 3-point shots on her way to 11 total points. Teammate Raeslee Weimer had 10 points and Lindsay Brady 9.

Mariah James led Fort Hill and three double-figure scorers with 13 points. Ashley O'Neal and Alyssia Twigg followed her with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Southern won the jayvee game 25-17. Alicia Roth had 12 points and Faith Tichnell eight for the Rams.

Southern is scheduled to host the Golden Tornado of Keyser tonight (Dec. 8). Tip-off is set for 6 p.m.

GC Women Slip At Allegany, Win At Westmoreland

Following its 75-47 loss to Allegany College on Saturday, the Garrett College women's basketball team earned a victory on the road over Westmoreland, 67-48. Then on Wednesday, the Lakers were scheduled to host Montgomery-Rockville, but information on that matchup was not received.

Leading the charge over Garrett for Allegany was Madi Nightengale, who scored 25 points and nailed four three-pointers in that JUCO game played at Bob Kirk Arena.

Nightengale, an All-Area selection from Mountain Ridge High School, had five 2-point field goals to go with her four 3-pointers and 3-for-3 performance from the foul line.

Allegany also saw production from Ashlei Sutton, who added 12 points, and Brittany Taylor, who ended the game with 10 points, eight assists, and seven rebounds.

The Lakers were led by Terra McKenzie, All-Area selection from Northern High School, who had a team-high 14 points. Her teammates Lindsey Miller and JaQuita Cherry finished with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Allegany built a 36-25 lead before halftime, and continued to outmatch Garrett in the second half, winning the scoring battle 39-22.

On the road at Westmoreland, McKenzie totaled 21 points and rallied the Lakers to a second-half comeback victory.

Garrett found itself in early foul trouble and down 32-27 at the end of the second quarter. Things would shift in the Lakers' favor after the break, however, as the team outscored its opponent by a margin of 40-16.

Rachel Waibogha scored 12 points for Garrett, while former Hampshire High standout Lindsey Miller added 10 points.

Oakland Men's Hoop League Notes Results

Opening games were played in the Oakland Men's Basketball League on Sunday, with teams sponsored by Taylor-Made, Automated Packaging, and Fox's Pizza all victorious.

Jason Brenneman poured in 32 points to lead Taylor-Made to a 77-35 thrashing of Terra Alta. Max Cadorette netted 12 for the winners, and Shaun Shaffer led Terra Alta with 12 points.

Ted Kitzmiller and Maverick Nelson scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, to pace Automated Packaging to a 45-40 win over Hutton Auto. Joey DiSimone hit a game-high 22 points for Hutton Auto.

Leading Fox's to a 65-52 win over D&L Coal were Ryan White and Mike Browning with 19 and 17 points, respectively. Hershel Seabolt scored 17 for D&L.

Games slated for this coming Sunday will pit Fox's against Hutton Auto at 6 p.m., Terra Alta vs. D&L Coal at 7 p.m., and Taylor-Made against Automated Packaging in the 8 p.m. contest.

ECONOMICS LESSON:

A college economics professor made a statement that he had never failed a single student before, but had recently failed an entire class. That class had insisted that Obama's socialism worked and that no one would be poor and no one would be rich, a great equalizer.

The professor then said, "OK, we will have an experiment in this class on Obama's plan." All grades will be averaged and everyone will receive the same grade so no one will fail and no one will receive an A (substituting grades for dollars - something closer to home for them and more readily understood).

After the first test, the grades were averaged and everyone got a B. The students who studied hard were upset and the students who studied little were happy. As the second test rolled around, the students who studied little had studied even less and the ones who studied hard decided they wanted a free ride too so they studied little.

The second test average was a D! No one was happy. When the third test rolled around, the average was an F.

As the tests proceeded, the scores never increased as bickering, blame and name-calling all resulted in hard feelings and no one would study for the benefit of anyone else.

To their great surprise, ALL FAILED and the professor told them that socialism would also ultimately fail because when the reward is great, the effort to succeed is great, but when government takes all the reward away, no one will try or want to succeed. It could not be any simpler than that.

Remember, there IS a test coming up: THE 2012 ELECTIONS

These are possibly the 5 best sentences you'll ever read and all applicable to this experiment:

1. You cannot legislate the poor into prosperity by legislating the wealthy out of prosperity.
2. What one person receives without working for, another person must work for without receiving.
3. The government cannot give to anybody anything that the government does not first take from somebody else.
4. You cannot multiply wealth by dividing it!
5. When half of the people get the idea that they do not have to work, because the other half is going to take care of them, and when the other half gets the idea that it does no good to work, because somebody else is going to get what they work for, that is the beginning of the end of any nation.

Huskies Drop Game One To Bishop Walsh

The season opened with a narrow defeat, 42-39, for the Northern High School girls' basketball team, which fell to host Bishop Walsh on Tuesday. Both teams played stingy defense in the back-and-forth matchup that ended with the Huskies being edged out by three points.

Northern was then scheduled to host its first game against Frankton on Wednesday, though weather caused the game to be postponed.

Against Bishop Walsh, the Huskies trailed by one, 14-13, after the first quarter and in spite of playing tough defense were down by seven at the end of the first half, 25-18.

Following the break, both Northern and Bishop Walsh scored 10 points, and although the Huskies led in scoring in the final quarter, 11-7, they lost the game.

Ram Grapplers Working To Fill Shoes Left By Scheffel, Oziases

The wrestling team of Southern High School, which placed fourth in the state among 66 1A and 2A teams last spring after capturing consecutive Maryland State team titles the previous two seasons, will be looking to rebuild this season. The Rams were slated to open their 2011-12 campaign last night at home against Northern and Frankfort, but that tri-match was postponed because of weather conditions.

"We lost some outstanding wrestlers from last season, including three-time state champions Jakob 'Bubba' Scheffel and Lex Ozias, who are now both wrestling at Virginia Tech, along with state champion Coy Ozias and starter Sean Chapman, who both moved away," said Ram head coach Dave Taylor. "We also lost Dale Marple, Nick Stewart, and Kameron Barnard to graduation," he added.

Taylor said he is counting on returning state qualifiers Mikey Skipper, Kevin Miller, and Austin Shaffer to lead the Rams this season. Also expected to make a strong impact are regional qualifiers Gavin Murphy and Dakota Pritt, seniors Coty Rasel, Dillon Bennett, and Garrett Beachy, and junior Scott Cooper.

"All of our wrestlers have been working hard and are fighting for spots in the line-up," Taylor said. "There are

Zumpanos Support FSU Baseball In Memory Of Aaron

The Aaron P. Zumpano Memorial Baseball Fund was founded in 1988 after the death of its namesake, whose freshman year at Frostburg State University was cut short by a car accident. The fund formed by the Zumpano family in memory of Aaron supports the FSU baseball team annually in an effort to "enhance the players' athletic experiences and meet the team's immediate needs."

Baseball has been central to the lives of generations of the Zumpano family, including father Gene and son Steve, who have both played for the Frostburg Bobcats.

Today the Zumpanos say that it is Aaron's memory that inspires them to give.

"Baseball has given me some of the greatest gifts of my life," related Steve Zumpano. He credits the sport and his participation in it for his closest friendships, his career, and meeting his wife.

"It is my hope that current and future FSU baseball players have a similar experience, where those relationships with teammates and coaches continue to shape and influence them after college."

Steve Zumpano, a member of FSU's Bobcat Hall of Fame, acknowledges that Aaron – his younger brother – was the more talented athlete, and had opportunities to play baseball at a number of schools. The brothers, both graduates of Northern High School, were three years apart in age, and had few opportunities to play together while growing up.

Steve states that the two were looking forward to sharing the field together during what would have been Aaron's freshman and his senior year.

"I have no doubt his career numbers would have been deserving of hall of fame recognition as well. He was that good," Zumpano said.

"I was the center fielder, but he was every bit my equal as a freshman."

This will mark the second year the memorial fund has provided for the baseball program. In the 2010 academic year, the money helped purchase an outfield fence cap for Bob Wells Field, which was meant to improve player safety, as well as to enhance the ball park's aesthetic appeal. This year's payment is earmarked for improvements to the locker room facilities.

FSU athletic programs, as part of NCAA Division III, cannot make use of student tuition or state funds, nor are athletic scholarships available to DIII athletes. That leaves teams to rely on only student fees and private donations to meet player needs.

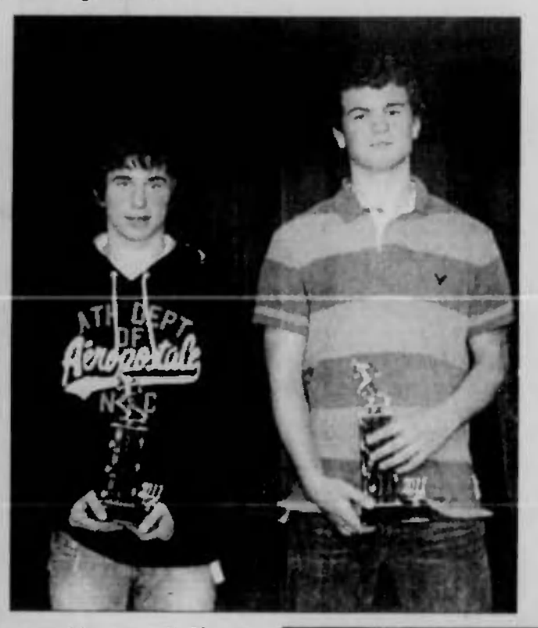
"Aaron felt strongly that sports and these types of relationships played an important role in his life," Steve continued.

"Baseball was the sport that we both loved the most. Our family's continued financial support of the baseball team, through the Aaron P. Zumpano Memorial Baseball Fund, is done in his memory to assist the team with current needs and to encourage and enhance these types of lifetime friendships in some small way."

Though prior to his death Aaron had yet to declare a major, his brother suspects that his desire to help others would have led him to a career in education – assuming he didn't make it into professional baseball.

"Aaron knew that obtaining a degree was the most important goal as a student-athlete," Zumpano explained.

"If being able to play baseball after college as a professional was an option, then it would be a bonus. His interests were diverse, but he enjoyed people and helping others."



For more information on the Aaron P. Zumpano Memorial Fund and FSU athletics, those interested may contact Leslie Reed at 301-687-4161 (866-241-3296, toll free), e-mail lkreed@frostburg.edu, or visit http://www.frostburg.edu/foundation/ways-to-give.

some very talented kids on the team this year. I am looking forward to an exciting season, and I believe we will surprise a few people along the way."

Taylor said that he expects the Rams' toughest dual-meet competition will come from Mountain Ridge, Winters Mill, Williamsport, and Northern.

"The Wheeling Park and Berkeley Springs tournaments are also very challenging," he added.

"The 25 kids on the team this year are looking forward to filling the shoes of Bubba, Lex, and Coy, and continuing the strong wrestling tradition at Southern," Taylor concluded.

The Rams are scheduled to compete in the aforementioned Berkeley Springs Tournament this Friday and Saturday, and will host Allegany on Monday

Seniors on the roster this year are: Garrett Beachy, Logan Hinebaugh, George Kimmel, Gavin Murphy, Dakota Pritt, Mikey Skipper, Austin Cosner, Coty Rasel, Dillon Bennett, and Kevin Miller.

Junior members of the team are Cooper McCauley, Brandon Umbel, Stephen Collins, Scott Cooper, and Teroy Friend.

Sophomore team members are Austin Shaffer, Brandon Uphold, Bradley Clary, Justyce Fulmer, Tanner Massey, Brian Rinker, and Will Foulke.

Freshmen on the squad are Joshua King, Austin Sines, and Dalton Cooper.

Volunteers Sought To Share, Deliver Holiday Dinners

The local Area Agency on Aging is seeking volunteers to share their meals with elderly residents this holiday season.

"In Garrett County, there are some frail homebound elderly persons who will not have a family or friends visiting them for the holiday," said an AAA spokesperson. "How could you help one of these persons? It is easy When preparing your holiday meal, simply include enough for a homebound elderly person in your area, plate up a meal for him/her, and deliver it to his/her home."

The Area Agency on Aging Home Bound Meals Program will provide volunteers with the name and addresses of home-delivered meal clients in need of a holiday meal.

"Last December, volunteers visited 20 elderly persons and brought them both smiles and a meal," said the spokesperson.

Individuals and families who would like to volunteer for this program may contact the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging Homebound Meals Program at 301-334-9431, ext 137.

"In order to process the requests, it would be helpful to contact us by Dec. 19 for Christmas," said the spokesperson. "Your time and efforts will be greatly appreciated."

Holiday Delight At Friend's Store Set By Park Staff

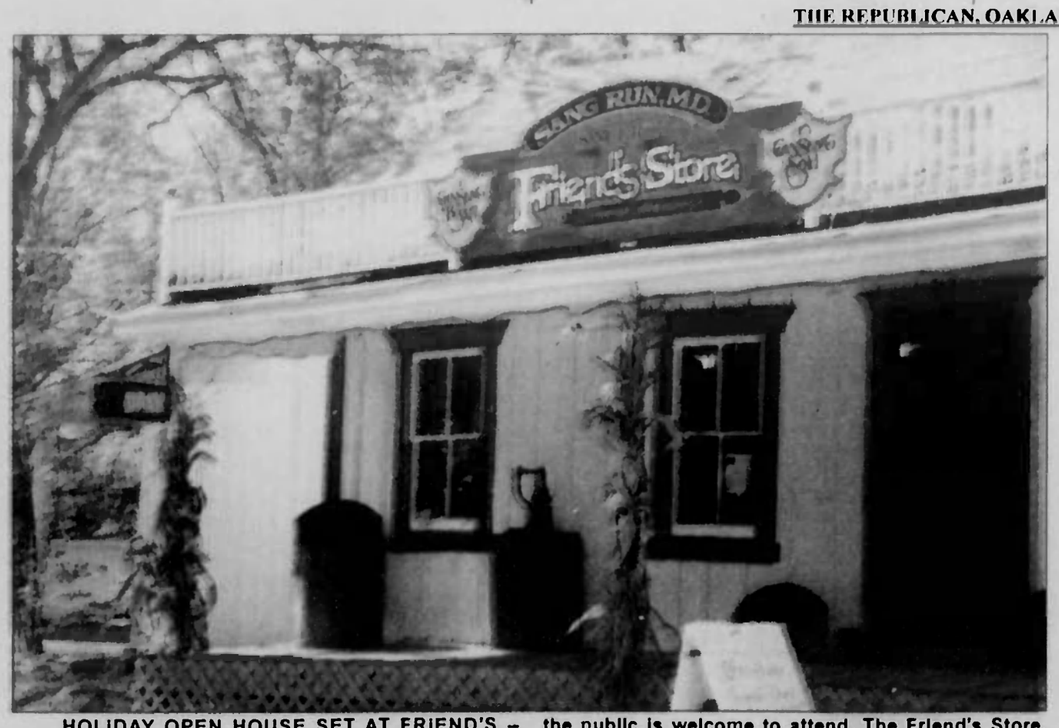
Guests are invited by state park staff and volunteers for a holiday open house at the historic Friend's Store and main residence. The event will be held on Saturday, Dec. 17, from 5 to 9 p.m.

The store and grounds are located at 3735 Sang Run Road.

There will be eggnog, hot cider, and gingerbread available, and guests may engage in candle-dipping, watch a wreath making demonstration, and taste a Dutch oven dessert.

A special open house will occur at the Friend's Delight home. A candlelight tour of the property, including inside the house main foyer, library, and main living room, will be given from 6 to 7 p.m. and again from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

For more information, persons may call 301-387-7067 Friday through Sunday, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., or visit the web site at www.discoverycenter-dcl.com.



HOLIDAY OPEN HOUSE SET AT FRIEND'S – Candlelit tours, candle-dipping, wreath-making, and other Christmas events will take place on Saturday, Dec. 17, at the historic Friend's Store and family property, located along Sang Run Road and managed by the Deep Creek Lake State Park staff and volunteers. This holiday open house will be held from 5 to 9 p.m., and the public is welcome to attend. The Friend's Store, built in the 1800s, was once the meeting place for furriers and ginseng traders. It was bequeathed by its former owner, John Hinebaugh, to the Department of Natural Resources about four years ago. In that time, the store and grounds have been restored. See story.

IRS Seeks Owners Of Undelivered Taxpayer Refunds

In an annual reminder to taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service announced this week that it is looking to return more than $1.8 million in undelivered tax refund checks. In all, 1,393 Maryland taxpayers are due refund checks this year that could not be delivered because of mailing address errors.

Maryland undelivered refund checks average $1,338 this year.

Taxpayers who believe their refund check may have been returned to the IRS as undelivered should use the "Where's My Refund?" tool on the IRS.gov web site. The tool will provide the status of their refund and, in some cases, instructions on how to resolve delivery problems.

Taxpayers checking on a refund over the phone will receive instructions on how to update their addresses. Taxpayers can access a telephone version of "Where's My Refund?" by calling 1-800-829-1954.

While only a small percentage of checks mailed out by the IRS are returned as undelivered, taxpayers can put an end to lost, stolen, or undelivered checks by choosing direct deposit when they file either paper or electronic returns. Last year, more than 78.4 million taxpayers chose to receive their refund through direct deposit. Taxpayers can receive refunds directly into their bank account, split a tax refund into two or three financial accounts, or even buy a savings bond.

The IRS also recommends that taxpayers file their tax returns electronically, because e-file eliminates the risk of lost paper returns. E-file also reduces errors on tax returns and speeds up refunds. Nearly eight of 10 taxpayers chose e-file last year. E-file, combined with direct deposit, is the best option for taxpayers to avoid refund problems.

The public should be aware that the IRS does not contact taxpayers by e-mail to alert them of pending refunds and does not ask for personal or financial information through e-mail, as such messages are common phishing scams. The agency urges taxpayers receiving such messages not to release any personal information, reply, open any attachments, or click on any links to avoid malicious code that can infect their computers.

"The best way for an individual to verify if she or he has a pending refund is by going directly to IRS.gov online and using the 'Where's My Refund?' tool," stated an IRS spokesperson.

GCCAC Announces Third Installment Of Food Workshop

Garrett County Community Action in conjunction with the University of Maryland Extension Service will present a workshop titled "Making Healthy Choices on a Budget: Part 3" on Wednesday, Dec. 14, beginning at 6 p.m. in the Mary Browning Senior Center. This will be the final installment of the workshop.

Abbi Kifer, food supplement nutrition educator from the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, will present ideas for healthful eating and will prepare recipes using inexpensive yet healthful ingredients.

"Garrett County Community Action is aware of the challenges posed by the current economic climate," said a spokesperson for GCCAC.

"Unemployment, the cost of fuel, and food prices are still high, while wages remain stagnant. Individuals, couples, and families are struggling to make ends meet and to put healthful food on the table.

"Recent reports have even suggested that only the wealthy can afford to eat healthful food regularly,"

GCCAC and the UM Extension Office have expressed their interest in empowering families to change this. The workshop will ask participants to discuss their consumption of fruits and vegetables and will present information about the cost of these foods.

GCCAC invites those interested to enjoy an "evening of learning and fun for the entire family." For further information, or to sign up for the workshop, one may call GCCAC at 301-334-9431, ext. 147.

Southern Middle School Hosting Holiday Events

The Southern Middle School visual and performing arts Christmas Extravaganza will be held on Dec. 16, beginning at 7 p.m.

The school band and chorus as well as general music students will perform in the cafetorium. A visual arts exhibit will be on display, and theatre students will present skits.

The public is invited to attend.

CLIMATEGATE 2.0

by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Q. It seems that the whole "climate change" issue has turned into just a big PR war. There's a new batch of e-mails and a new round of denials. Has anything really changed at all lately?

A. The "new batch" you refer to has already gained the colloquial title "ClimateGate 2.0," indicating that these are a sequel to the e-mails released two years ago, which unleashed the ClimateGate scandal. The "2.0" means it's more of the same.

To understand the public relations war, the first step is to identify where there is agreement and disagreement.

On a geological time scale, everyone agrees that the Earth has been slowly warming since the end of the last ice age, and in particular, there has been a gradual warming trend for the past two centuries. But when recent decades are examined, the pattern is not so clear, and there is considerable disagreement.

Simultaneously, the amount of carbon dioxide (CO_2) in the atmosphere has been increasing for the last two centuries, from a pre-industrial level of 0.028% (280 parts per million) to a present day value of 0.037% (370 ppm). Scientists agree that the measurements of that change are valid. Separately, mankind has burned a lot of fossil fuels in that time, so it is commonly asserted that mankind is responsible for the rise. That connection is plausible, but not guaranteed.

Following that, a further assertion is often made that the increasing CO_2 causes the rise of temperature. That theory is called anthropogenic global warming (AGW) and has been championed by Al Gore and assorted UN dignitaries. Here is where the disagreement comes. How much of the observed global warming is caused by mankind burning fossil fuels? That is a fair question, but the words "how much" show that the disagreement is about actual numerical values. It is on that point that there has never been agreement among climate scientists.

Everyone recognizes the recent correlation between steadily rising CO_2 and irregularly rising temperature, but agreement stops there. Data for a million years have shown that when temperature goes up, about 800 years later the CO_2 level in the atmosphere goes up. Causality would say that T drives CO_2, not the other way around. To claim that it's different this time around presents fresh puzzles.

The notion that CO_2 causes warming began over a century ago with the idea of "heat trapping" by certain gases in the atmosphere, predominantly H_2O, but CO_2 to a slight extent. Infrared heat radiation given off by the Earth gets absorbed by such gases and scattered in the atmosphere, and about half comes back to Earth, thus warming the planet. That "blanket" effect earned the name "greenhouse gases" (a term dating from the time when people didn't understand how greenhouses work). "Heat trapping" is a plausible explanation that occurs regularly in conversation.

However, on the level of accurate numerical measurements, there's more to the story. CO_2 in small quantities is known to absorb infrared radiation quite well, but when the concentration of CO_2 gets up to around 280 ppm (the pre-industrial value), the absorption effect reaches "saturation" – the light is nearly all taken. After that, a further increase of CO_2 concentration to 370 ppm makes little difference. And doubling the CO_2 concentration has a still smaller effect. This numerical reality is what most people overlook, thinking that "doubling CO_2" must imply "twice as much" heat trapping.

The pathway by which the claim of further CO_2 influence is pursued is to say that changes in CO_2 cause bigger changes in water vapor via a series of feedback effects, and it is the H_2O that's going to set off the climate catastrophe. For that to come true, all of the feedback mechanisms have to be "positive feedback," but some are known to have "negative feedback." This pathway quickly leads into computer modeling by complex GCMs (general circulation models). Pursuing a numerical answer now becomes far more difficult.

Large computational models involve the motion of air currents, ocean currents, cloud formation, rain/snow, sunlight reflecting off the tops of clouds, infrared radiation reflecting off the bottom clouds, and so forth. A lot of assumptions are built into the computer codes. It is known that the modeling of clouds (and their relevance to sunlight) is very uncertain, owing to the intricate chemistry and thermodynamics taking place.

What's worse, the computer models are unable to reproduce the past, where excellent observational data shows exactly what results should come out of the pipeline. The old scientific maxim "Data Trumps Theory" comes to mind. Consequently, the computer models lack credibility.

The recent historical record also casts doubt upon AGW theory. About 30 years ago, satellites began taking temperature measurements of both land and sea. Integrated over the entire Earth (previously impossible), they show no real change, only fluctuations from one region to another, from one year to another. Northern Europeans observed Arctic warming and called it global warming.

Furthermore, in recent years some fully plausible alternate explanations (non-CO_2-related) have come along, and the earlier 1980s assertion that "CO_2 and temperature are both going up, so it must be cause & effect" doesn't fly anymore.

MIT professor Richard Lindzen captured the "skeptic" position very well by saying that the influence of mankind is "trivially true, but numerically insignificant."

Where the situation stands today is that there is no scientific consensus at all about the importance of CO_2, and the skeptics stand on equally solid scientific ground as the proponents of AGW. Word of that is only starting to get around, and that's why there is a "big PR war."

SHS DONATES TO TOYS FOR TOTS – Each year the Marine Corps League, Garrett County Detachment, Oakland, conducts its annual Toys for Tots collection campaign in support of the Marine Corps Reserve. During this year's campaign, which was conducted at Walmart last Saturday, Bryson Holler brought in a box of toys that had been donated during a recent Ram Rumble function at Southern High School in which Toys for Tots was the designated charity. From left are Art Hanlin, one of the volunteers; Rob Hellig, commandant, Marine Corps League, Oakland; and Holler, SHS Student Council treasurer.

Exercise Classes To Be Held At Wellness Center

Local fitness instructor Sara King will lead an Advanced Conditioning Exercise class beginning Dec. 20 at the new Wellness Center at the Community Aquatic and Recreation Complex at Garrett College.

Advanced Conditioning Exercise is a boot camp motivating class that combines cardiovascular conditioning with sports training. Basic calisthenics using hand weights, ones own body weight, aerobic steps, and stability balls will leave participants feeling stronger and toned.

Classes will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Dec. 20, 22, 27, and 29, and Jan. 3, 5, 10, and 12. The fee for the series is $40 per participant.

"This class is highly recommended for those who want a challenge, as well as the desire to burn calories," explained Jeannie Miller, Garrett County Memorial Hospital wellness nurse.

King received her certification as an instructor through ACE Group Fitness and has extensive experience in aerobics, cheerleading, tennis, dance, gymnastics, strength training, and yoga. She has earned numerous national and international rankings in aerobic gymnastics, including national champion in 2008, and three consecutive years of being ranked in the top three in the United States and top 10 internationally. Currently a student at Frostburg State University, King is continuing her education in health and fitness.

For additional information or to register for classes, persons may call 301-533-4295. The new Wellness Center at the CARC is a division of Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Program information is also available at www.gcmh.com.

Irving Berlin's famous musical Annie Get Your Gun, about Annie Oakley's rise to fame, will be performed on Dec. 8-10. Each performance will begin at 8 p.m. on the Southern High stage. General admission is set at $5. Children 8 and under will be admitted for free.

BUY ONE FOR YOUR SCHOOL

A wide selection of popular retail and restaurant gift cards is available for sale in the main office of Southern High School. The sale is a fundraiser for the school. American Eagle, Disney, Cabela's, iTunes, Old Navy, Michael's, Lowe's, Amazon.com, Sheetz, Bass Pro Shops, Bed Bath & Beyond, Kohl's, Toys-R-Us, HSN, and Bath & Body Works are just some of the retailer gift cards available. Many local chain restaurants are included too. For a complete listing of gift card types and denominations, one may visit the school web site: http://cardinal.ga.k12.md.us/Schools/SH/.

RAM FAN GEAR FOR CHRISTMAS

Southern High School reminds Christmas shoppers that its Ram Gear is available for purchase during the holiday season. Performance tees, denim shirts, baseball hats, hooded sweatshirts, and Ram camouflage gear are being offered. Ram Gear will be available at December home sporting events or at the school store from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily.

SEASON BASKETBALL TICKETS ON SALE

Season basketball tickets are available for both the boys' and girls' teams, as well as in a combination package. Those interested may contact Joy Thrasher at 240-321-4550 for more information or to purchase tickets.

CANNED FOOD DRIVE FOR HOUSE OF HOPE

The National Honor Society is sponsoring a canned food drive to benefit the House of Hope through Dec. 16. The first-period class that collects the most items will win a doughnut breakfast. Last year, Southern High School donated over 1,000 items to the drive. The honor society hopes to beat that number this year. Items may be brought into the school by students, or dropped off at the school in care of Heather Savage, National Honor Society advisor. This is the 13th year the honor society has conducted the food drive for the House of Hope.

BAND AND CHORUS CHRISTMAS CONCERT

The Band and Chorus Christmas Concert has been rescheduled for Dec. 19 at 7 p.m. The band boosters' and food department's beef raffle drawing will take place at that time.

BLIND SKIER PROGRAM NEEDS VOLUNTEERS

The Blind Skier Program is currently seeking volunteers to assist with its program. Interested skiers would be asked to partner with blind individuals and assist them on the slopes. This activity may be used to earn service learning hours. Those who participate would be responsible to help a blind student ski at the Wisp Resort. For more information one may see Mrs. Law in Room 1191 (the child care room) during 3rd or 4th period or after school. All paperwork for the program will be due by Dec. 19.

Climbing a mountain takes skill, physical fitness, and determination. Harsh weather, lack of oxygen, and exhaustion may face the climber who dares to face the silent majesty of extreme heights. Like a mountain climb, a journey in faith has its struggles; God's ways are not always easy to comprehend. Obstacles thrown in our path may make us falter and fail, but He gives us new strength with every new difficulty. Seek His strength and refuge at your house of worship this week.

Don't Let Bad Feelings Fester

Human relations are complicated by the fact that we all have different styles of interacting with each other. Most of us want to be liked and to get along with our fellow humans. Therefore, when problems arise between us, we should do our best to communicate them in a considerate way and try to work them out. How best to do that often requires sensitivity and good judgment, but it is almost always better to address the problems or the hurt feelings than to let them fester. Sometimes we don't address the problem because we want to avoid conflict or we fear that we will appear petty If we tell someone that we are offended by something they said or did, but failing to address the problem rarely makes it go away, and our hurt feelings will only grow. If there is something that needs to be discussed, we should choose a time when both of us can talk, and we should also try to raise the issue in a friendly, sensitive way Often the best way to start these conversations is by telling the person that we value their relationship and therefore we want to address something that has been bothering us, at which point the person should be more receptive to our message.

Therefore each of you must put off falsehood and speak truthfully to your neighbor, for we are all members of one body. In your anger do not sin: Do not let the sun go down while you are still angry.

Ephesians 4:25-26

What's in a name ... of popular 'NCIS' star

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Pauley Perrette

Q: I am curious to know if Pauley Perrette is the actress's real name or if it is a stage name. And if it is a stage name, what is her real name? – Jack Gaspar, Milwaukee

A: That's the real name of the actress now known to millions as Abby on the enduring CBS hit "NCIS."

Q: I missed the Mark Harmon TV movie "John Sandford's Certain Prey." Can you tell me if it will be repeated? – Marti Schultz, Jupiter, Fla.

A: As long as we're talking about "NCIS" stars, Harmon's mystery gets another run extremely early on Thursday, Dec. 22. If your cable system carries USA Network's On Demand channel, you also might want to check that; at this writing, at least, "Certain Prey" was among the attractions being offered there.

Q: Why has the HBO series "Boardwalk Empire" been airing in Spanish instead of English? – Roselie Victore, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: We're going to make two educated guesses here, one of which we're willing to bet is the correct one. The first is that you've been tuning into the Spanish-language version of HBO, which many cable systems carry in addition to the English-speaking one; in the majority of cases, they carry the same programming at the same times. The second is that you might have hit the SAP (second audio program) button on your TV remote or on your television itself, which can trigger a separate audio channel that might be a Spanish one. Check those two situations, and we suspect you'll have your solution.

Q: In the late '90s, there was a short-lived series called "Nothing Sacred." I loved it, but I haven't been able to find it on DVD. Any chance it has been, or might be, released? – Judy Stannes, Juneau, Wis.

A: 20th Century Fox Home Entertainment holds the rights to any home-video distribution there might be of that 1997-98 ABC show, which starred Kevin Anderson as a clergyman having a crisis of faith. As of this writing, no plans had been announced for a video release of it. We never say never, since some series one might never have thought would get DVD treatment have gotten it, but there's nothing to report on this one at this time.

Q: While sorting through an old box of clothing buttons, I found two that were political, a "Housewives for Ike" and an "RFK in '68." Both are 2 1/2 inches high and in excellent condition. I have been offered $50 for both, but I think that might be a little low. -- Bethany, Chesterfield, Mo.

A: I found both of your buttons in an auction catalog, "Hake's Americana Auction No. 197. The Ike button was valued by Ted Hake for $100, and the RFK portrait button, which is considered extremely rare, at $175.

I THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Dec. 18, 1620, the Mayflower docks at what today is Plymouth, Mass., and its passengers disembarked to begin their new settlement, Plymouth Colony. The winter of 1620-1621 was brutal, and by spring, only 52 of the original 102 Mayflower passengers were still alive.

• On Dec. 16, 1773, in Boston Harbor, a group of Massachusetts colonists disguised as Mohawk Indians board three British tea ships and dump 342 chests of tea into the harbor in protest of the British Parliament's Tea Act of 1773. The value of the tea was more than $700,000 in today's currency.

• On Dec. 14, 1909, workers place the last of the 3.2 million 10-pound bricks that pave the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in Indiana. Since then, all but a 1-yard-wide [illegible] the start-finish line has been [illegible] under asphalt. Kissing those [illegible] after a successful race remains a tradition among Indy drivers.

• On Dec. 13, 1916, a powerful avalanche kills hundreds of Austrian soldiers in barracks near Italy's Mount Marmolada. Over a period of several weeks, avalanches killed an estimated 10,000 Austrian and Italian soldiers.

• On Dec. 17, 1961, a fire at a filled-to-capacity circus in Brazil kills more than 300 people and severely burns 500 more. The cause of the fire was never conclusively determined, but it may have been the result of sparks from a train passing nearby.

• On Dec. 15, 1973, Jean Pa[illegible] III, the grandson of A[illegible] billionaire J. Paul Getty, is found alive near Naples, five months after his kidnapping by an Italian gang. Getty had initially refused to pay his 16-year-old grandson's $17 million ransom, but finally agreed after the boy's severed right ear was sent to a newspaper in Rome.

MORE THAN 670 POUNDS OF FOOD was collected by Oakland Nursing and Rehab Center residents and staff during their November food drive. During the event, visitors and the general public were encouraged to drop off items in a collection box located in the center's lobby. "The food was divided up and delivered to the House of Hope and Garrett County Community Action food banks on Dec. 5," said an ONRC spokesperson. "The residents and staff of Oakland Nursing and Rehab Center would like to thank the community for their generous donations." Pictured, left to right, with some of the food items are resident William Dale (seated); Betty Riley, RN; resident Beverly McCartin (seated); and Cheryl Boone, GNA.

The public is invited to attend the free dinner and program. The church is located at 6117 Bittinger Road, Swanton.

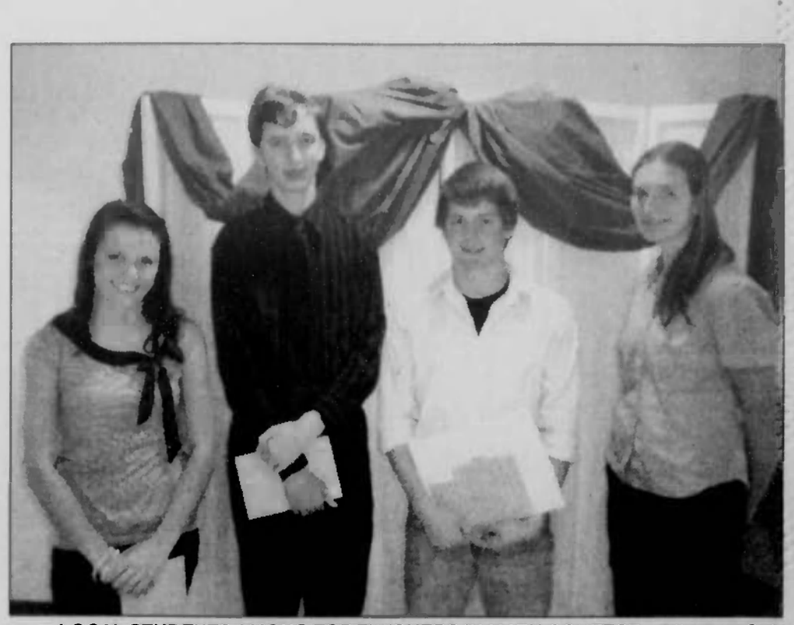
Several Charged With Violations Of Hunting Laws

The Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP) charged John Ray Lee Jr., 37, of Swanton with casting rays of light with a weapon in possession at 6 a.m. on Saturday, Nov 26, the opening day of deer firearms season. Lee was observed shining the headlights of his vehicle onto a field along Spring Lick Road in search of deer. Officers seized a 300 Winchester Magnum rifle as evidence.

Later that same morning, NRP inspected a hunting camp in the area of Wayne Harvey Road in Gorman and located a recently killed wild turkey. The investigation led officers to charge Christopher Will Rhodes, 22, of Columbia with hunting wild turkey during closed season.

NRP officers checked a hunting camp located along Spring Lick Road on Sunday, Nov. 27, and uncovered two illegally killed antlerless deer. They charged Matthew Lanham Fluharty, 22, of Welcome and David Michael Murdza, 24, of Mechanicsville with possession of antlerless deer during antlered-only season and removing the head and hide of a deer without checking it in with the Department of Natural Resources.

Citizens may report suspected poaching, trespassing, or maritime-related incidents to the NRP Communication Center at 800-628-9944. For callers who wish to remain anonymous and also be eligible for cash rewards that lead to convictions, persons may call the Catch-A-Poacher line, 800-635-6124.



LOCAL STUDENTS AMONG TOP FINISHERS IN MATH CONTEST – Allegany College of Maryland's Tri-State Mathematics Scholarship Contest, which encourages and recognizes high school math achievement, honored top individual and team winners at its recent 26th annual awards ceremony. Four Garrett County students were among those recognized. The competition allows high school juniors to test their math knowledge apd earn ACM scholarships provided by the LaVale Lions. This year's event drew contestants from six area high schools in two states. The contest's top-10 individual finishers, based on scores in a written test, were honored at the Cumberland-campus ceremony, which was attended by parents and other family members as well as teachers and school administrators. Fourth place among individual winners went to Andrew Beachy of Northern High School. Alexis Botterbusch of Southern High School won fifth place, and Christine Carpenter of Northern placed seventh. Northern's Seth Mast, one of three honorable mention winners, added his score to Beachy's and Carpenter's to bring NHS the third-place team award. Competition results were based on individual student performance in a one-hour algebra- and geometry-based test developed and scored by faculty members of ACM's Mathematics Division. Left to right are Botterbusch, Beachy, Mast, and Carpenter. They each received a $100 scholarship.

Fraley In First Year As Missouri School Principal

Former local resident Todd Fraley, whose early career included the operation of the Mountaintop Gymnastics Training Center in Loch Lynn, is now in his first year as principal of Horace Mann Elementary School in Sedalia, Mo.

Fraley, who is the son of Penny Kelly and Lynn Fraley, Oakland, served for seven years as assistant principal at Smith-Cotton High School, and prior to that he taught in the Sedalia School District.

A native of Terra Alta, W.Va., Fraley's early plans did not include becoming an educator, as he earned a bachelor of science degree in journalism at West Virginia University.

"I was a full-time gymnastics coach right out of college," he said. "I coached competitive gymnastics for five years."

He moved to Sedalia in 1996 and enrolled in Central Missouri State University, where he earned a master's degree in education, as well as an educational specialist degree, and landed a teaching job at Smith-Cotton High School, where he taught special education.

"I spent several years as a special education teacher and one year as the special education process coordinator," Fraley said. "An opening for assistant principal opened up late in the year. I had a couple colleagues who encouraged me to apply I didn't have any big plans to get into administration."

Fraley said that he is enjoying his new post, but that it is certainly different from his former job at the high school.

"It's a big adjustment for me in terms of age level," he said. "They (the students) are a lot smaller than the kids I am used to, and I got more hugs in a week than I got in seven years at the high school!"

Fraley and his wife Stephanie have one son, Seth, who is an eighth grade student.

When asked what kind of leisure activities he enjoys when not working, Fraley said that he likes hunting, fishing, and travel, but added, "Right now, I don't have a lot of time for anything other than the job."

Fraley's father Lynn was a 33-year career teacher at Southern Middle School, and his mother Penny was employed by the Head Start program at Crellin Elementary School.

Chrisimas Meal, Program Slated At Meadow Mtn.

A Christmas program will be presented at Meadow Mountain Mennonite Church on Sunday, Dec. 18, begining at 6:30 p.m. The evening will include a light meal, an assortment of classical Christmas hymns played by a live band, and congregational singing.

2011 Festival Of Trees Entries Receive Awards

This year's Festival of Trees, held at the fairground exhibit hall, was deemed a success by its organizers with a greater attendance than in past years. According to a spokesperson, this was the first event to sell out every one of the designer-decorated trees and most of the wreaths and centerpieces, as well as two gingerbread houses at the live auction on Friday evening.

"There was a record turnout for the Friday morning pancake breakfast with Santa," said the spokesperson, "with a line starting at 8:30 a.m. that surprised the ticket-takers at the entrance and Mrs. Claus' Kitchen workers.

The following tree awards were given:

•First place – Earthly Elegance, donated by Mountain Laurel Garden Club and designed by Deborah Hutton;

•Second place – Gilded Fruits, donated by Storck Designs, designed by Nina Bounds;

•Most Environmentally Conscious – Christmas Is For the Birds & Bird Watchers, donated and designed by Dove Center executive director Heather Hanline and daughter Madelynn Hanline; and

WINNERS NAMED AT FESTIVAL OF TREES – The 2011 Festival of Trees was held recently at the Fairground's new exhibit hall. Above left are three of the GFWC Civic Club craft team who received the award for creativity by a panel of three judges. All of the ornaments were handmade by the women, with the theme of Ice cream cones. From left are Melissa Rank, Judi Schiff, and Flo Royer, in the process of making the ornaments. Above right are Royer, Suzanne Harle, Jo Gallagher, Betty Ellington, Pat Michener, and Rank with the winning tree. Other Civic Club members (not pictured) were involved in the festival as well, with one member co-chairing the overall event, another chairing the wreath committee, and others assisting at the door and helping set up and take down displays. Below is the tree that won Best of Show: Christmas Uncorked, donated by North Glade Inn and designed by Tammy Fulk and Melanie Pratt.

•The Perfect Gift – For My Mother – Her Pink Delight, designed by Jean Bailey

The following awards were given for swags, centerpieces, and wreaths:

•First place (swag) – Christmas In the South, donated and designed by Jean Bailey;

•First place (centerpiece) – donated by Country Garden Expressions, designed by Tina Galucci;

•Second place (centerpiece) – Cardinal's Delight, donated and designed by Jean Bailey;

•Best of Show (centerpiece) – donated by Schoolhouse Earth, designed by Stephen Rodeheaver;

•Creativity – Country Explorers 4-H Club.

The following awards were given for gingerbread designs:

•Best o f Show – Christine Lewis, Mountain Flour Baking Company; and

•First place – Shawn Smith and Sue Yoder, Swallow Falls Bakery

A total of two trees and more than 10 wreaths were purchased at auction and donated to the families being visited and cared for by Hospice. David and Suzanne Harle George were among the donors.

Odette Lueck, chair, Hazel Hinebaugh, and Barbara Klug were the judges for the event.

GCCAC Announces Third Installment Of Food Workshop

Garrett County Community Action in conjunction with the University of Maryland Extension Service will present a workshop titled "Making Healthy Choices on a Budget: Part 3" on Wednesday, Dec. 14, beginning at 6 p.m. in the Mary Browning Senior Center. This will be the final installment of the workshop.

Abbi Kifer, food supplement nutrition educator from the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, will present ideas for healthful eating and will prepare recipes using inexpensive yet healthful ingredients.

"Garrett County Community Action is aware of the challenges posed by the current economic climate," said a spokesperson for GCCAC. "Unemployment, the cost of fuel, and food prices are still high, while wages remain stagnant. Individuals, couples, and families are struggling to make ends meet and to put healthful food on the table.

"Recent reports have even suggested that only the wealthy can afford to eat healthful food regularly."

GCCAC and the UM Extension Office have expressed their interest in empowering families to change this. The workshop will ask participants to discuss their consumption of fruits and vegetables and will present information about the cost of these foods.

GCCAC invites those interested to enjoy an "evening of learning and fun for the entire family." For further information, or to sign up for the workshop, one may call GCCAC at 301-334-9431, ext. 147.

Brookside Church To Stage Christmas Comedy Next Week

The Brookside Church of the Brethren in Aurora, W.Va., will present Cricket County City Christmas, a staged comedy, on Saturday, Dec. 17, at 6 p.m., and Sunday, Dec. 18, at 2 p.m. The performances will take place at the church, which is located along Rt. 50 in Aurora.

"This play tells the story of the wealthy Tippinheimer family who invites their country cousins from Cricket County to join them for Christmas in the city," a spokesperson said. "This is the countrified cousins' first time outside their rural corner of the world and they are not sure how to act. The city cousins take it upon themselves to teach tneir dear simple family the sophisticated way of life. This comedy presentation will make you laugh, but also remind you of the true meaning of Christmas."

The public is invited to attend.

THANK YOU

We would like to express our sincerest appreciation for the thoughts, prayers, visits, cards, food, phone calls, fundraisers, and monetary donations during David's long hospital stay and after his passing. It has become very evident exactly how many lives he has truly touched.

We would also like to thank GCMH and the 3rd floor nursing staff for their kind service and generosity during such a difficult time. Dr. Savopoulos and Dr. Buckingham provided excellent care with such understanding and compassion. We would also like to especially thank Rev. Don Matthews for his endless support and beautiful service. We all feel very blessed to be surrounded by so many wonderful and thoughtful people.

Happy Holidays and thanks for the overwhelming response to our game.

Maryland Makes Changes To Infants, Toddlers Program

Since February 1, 2010, Maryland has offered families the choice to continue to receive infants and toddlers services through an Individualized Family Services Plan (IFSP) beyond age 3 until their child is eligible to enter kindergarten. This Extended IFSP Option opportunity was made possible for Maryland's families through an awarded federal incentive grant. With the closing of this stimulus grant on November 30, 2011, Maryland is required to revise the age of eligibility for participation.

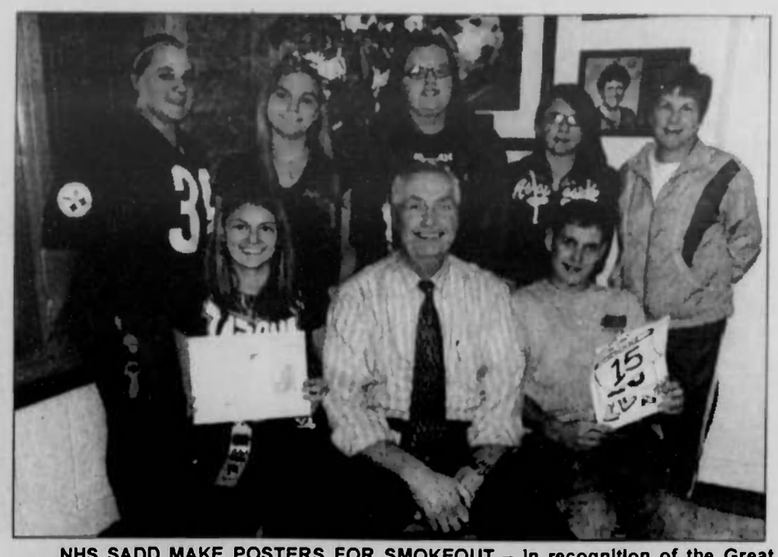
Over the past five months, the Early Childhood Intervention and Education Branch at the Maryland State Department of Education, Division of Special Education/ Early Intervention Services, collected stakeholder input regarding the age of eligibility for future participation in the Extended IFSP Option. Revised policies and procedures were posted on the MSDE web site for public comment this fall, and a public hearing was held for further input. As a result, the decision was made to continue to offer the Extended IFSP Option until a child's 4th birthday.

Starting this month, families will have the choice to continue early intervention services through an IFSP beyond age 3 until their child's 4th birthday. This option is available for a family if a child has a current IFSP and is determined eligible for preschool special education and related services as a child with a disability. By a child's 4th birthday, he/she must transition to services through an Individualized Education Plan (IEP).

According to interim Maryland state superintendent of schools Bernard Sadusky, the Extended IFSP Option will continue to promote school readiness for young children with disabilities by fostering educational proficiency, while at the same time providing families with the training and support they need to promote their children's development.

"School readiness is the ultimate goal as we continue to expand the possibilities for children with disabilities and their families," said Sadusky. "Extending early intervention services provides the opportunity to incorporate the strength of our early childhood education system, along with the existing infants and toddlers family center service model."

For more information about the Extended Individualized Family Service Plan Option for children with disabilities age 3 to age 4, persons are invited to visit the Maryland State Department of Education web site at www.MarylandPublicSchools.org, click on the Division of Special Education/ Early Intervention Services, and under Branches click on the Early Childhood Intervention Education Branch.



NHS SADD MAKE POSTERS FOR SMOKEOUT – In recognition of the Great American Smokeout in November, Northern High School SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) held a poster contest in the 9th grade health class of Terri Stough. Students were asked to create a poster using the theme "Walk away for a day! Quit tobacco!" During the week of the Smokeout, the posters were displayed throughout the school, and morning announcements reminded students of the Smokeout. Winners of the poster contest received gift cards. Pictured seated, from left, are Kaylla Dunithan, second place winner; Gary Reichenbecher, NHS principal; and Wesley Moore, first place winner. Standing in the same order are SADD members Bailey Tiemersma, Veronica Platter, Kristina Beller, and Aerra Wright; and Terri Stough, 9th grade health teacher.

Electrical Group To Hold Dec. Mtg.

The Garrett County Electrical Mechanical Association (GCEMA) will hold its monthly meeting on Thursday, Dec. 15, at 7 p.m. in Room 201 at Garrett College.

The GCEMA is a non-profit member-driven organization for electrical, plumbing, and HVAC contractors and their employees, established to advance professionalism and represent a collective voice to communicate on local, state, and national levels.

Letters will be mailed out for the group's membership drive in the next few weeks, noted a GCEMA spokesperson.

Medical Coding Training Course To Begin In Jan.

Garrett College's Northern Outreach Center will host nine sequential courses in the field of medical coding beginning on Wednesday, Jan. 25, 2012, in Grantsville. They are Medical Terminology, Introduction to Anatomy and Physiology, Medical Coding Specialist I & II, Medical Insurance Billing, Introduction to Pharmacology, Study of Disease Process-Pathophysiology, Medical Coding Advanced, and Medical Recordkeeping.

The series is geared to prepare participants for the medical coding national certification exam and an entry-level position as a medical coding specialist.

Medical Terminology will be held Jan. 25 to Feb. 29, – Mondays, Wednesdays, and one Saturday – from 6 to 9:15 p.m., except for the Feb. 18 class, which is set for 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The class is recommended for those who are new to the field or re-entering it. The course includes an analysis of medical terminology designed to give a clear understanding of medical terms on the basis of roots, prefixes, suffixes, and derivatives.

Introduction to Anatomy and Physiology will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays, March 5 to April 4, from 6 to 9:15 p.m. This class includes an introduction to structure and function of the human body by systems and on the cellular level.

Medical Coding Specialist I will be held on Saturdays, April 14 to June 9, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. The class provides a basic introduction to International Classification of Diseases (ICD) coding.

Topics will include current procedural terminology overview, review of conventions used in ICD, and fundamental coding guidelines.

Medical Coding Specialist II will meet on Saturdays, June 16 to Aug. 4, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. This class will address additional diagnostic and procedural coding, referred to as Current Procedural Terminology. It is designed to broaden coding knowledge and enhance coding skills by covering a variety of medical specialties and coding issues encountered in the health care office.

Five subsequent final courses will be offered during the following semester: Medical Coding Advanced, Medical Insurance Billing, Introduction to Pharmacology, Study of Disease Process-Pathophysiology, and Medical Recordkeeping. Dates and times to these courses will be released in the near future.

For more information on the medical coding courses, persons may contact Terry Beachy, Northern Outreach Center coordinator, at 301-895-4700 or terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

To register for these courses, persons may call 301-387-3069.

Library Will No Longer Provide State Tax Forms

The Ruth Enlow Library has been notified that the Comptroller of Maryland will no longer supply Maryland income tax booklets to libraries because of technological advances that make the forms accessible online and an increase in electronically filed returns.

The forms can be accessed on the web at www.marylandtaxes.com, using any Internet connection or the public computers at the library. Forms can be printed at the library as well, for a fee of 20 cents per page.

Federal income tax forms will be available at all branches of the library around the first of the year, according to Ann Leighton, library manager.

Persons desiring more information may telephone the Ruth Enlow Library at 301-334-3996.

HATS OFF FOR CANCER – Route 40 Elementary School students recently took part in the Hats Off For Cancer campaign. Students were asked to donate either a new cap or $1 for children dealing with cancer. Hats Off For Cancer collects and donates hats of all kinds to children who lose their hair after cancer treatments. As one of the leading and original hat programs, the organization has donated more than 1,000,000 brand new hats to hospitals, camps, and individuals worldwide since 1996. Recently, students took part in Mad Hatter Day, which allowed any child who had made a donation to the campaign to wear a hat for the day. Tina Eans of West Virginia Children's Hospital came to the academic pep assembly at Route 40 to collect the hats doanted by the students. She is pictured with several third grade participants, along with numerous others from the school. In all, the school donated $132 for the Hats Off For Cancer campaign and sent 34 hats with Eans for children at the West Virginia Children's Hospital. Pictured above, front row, from left, are Eliza Wilhelm, Landon Broadwater, and Taylor Dixon. In the second row are Olivia Wilhelm, Garrett Kitts, Ashley Michaels, Carli Haines, and Madilynn Magruder. In the third row are Eans, Kaeli Leptic, Allison Carey, Briley Fazenbaker, Sophie Lewis, Chiara Fiorita, Payton Julio, and Logan Christner.

GC Pre-Nursing Students Accepted In ACM Program

When spring semester 2012 begins, seven transfer students from the Garrett College (GC) Allied Health Services Program will take their seats in classrooms at Allegany College of Maryland (ACM) in Cumberland to continue their studies toward nursing degrees.

The students, who have already been accepted to either day or evening classes in the ACM Nursing program, are: Megan Bauman of McHenry, who graduated from Southern High School in 2008; Erin Beiler, Accident, a 2010 graduate of Northern High School; Mtn. Lake Park resident Lisa Cosner, a 1991 graduate of East Preston High School; Cynthia DeVore, Oakland, who was awarded her high school degree in 1979 at J.J. Pearce High School in Richardson, Tex., 2009 Southern High graduate Tasha DeWitt of Oakland; Christopher English-Ramsay, a 2002 graduate of Southern and resident of Swanton; and Grantsville resident Loretta Wilkens, a 2003 graduate of American School in Chicago.

Garrett College has an articulated nursing transfer program with ACM, which allows students interested in pursuing a nursing degree at Allegany to complete required preparatory non-nursing course work at GC in the Allied Health Services curriculum. Among the required credit classes are those in writing, humanities, algebra, psychology, human growth and development, sociology, biology, microbiology, anatomy, and physiology.

GC professor of biology Carolyn Deniker said she is pleased with the success of these students.

"I am very happy for them and proud of them," she said. "They are all excellent students – very smart and focused."

Deniker also described the students who come into the Allied Health Services Program as goal-oriented and dedicated to their studies. Often they are adult learners beginning a new career

"We get very bright people in these classes, and they excel in our program, which is challenging," she added.

GC has a similar articulation agreement for pre-nursing transfers to Davis and Elkins College, as well as articulation agreements with ACM in other Allied Health Services preparatory curricula, including dental hygiene, medical assistant, medical lab technician, occupational therapy assistant, physical therapy assistant, radiology technology, and respiratory therapy

For more information on GC's Allied Health Services Program, persons may contact the admissions office at 301-387-3044 or go online to www.garrettcollege.edu.

Create-A-Creature Event By SGA Sparks Comaraderie On Campus

by Peggy Santamaria

They might be college men and women, but they lined up around the Lakers' Cafe to get their turn to make a fleecy stuffed animal. The Create-a-Creature event, recently staged by the Garrett College Student Government Association, provided a variety of soft, fake fur animal forms, along with bags of stuffing material. Students were allowed to select a flat, droopy creature and – with surgical precision – insert fistfuls of cotton until the animal took shape and filled out to be a critter worthy of cuddling.

Some of the creature creators said they were making their stuffed animals as gifts.

"I'm making this as a Christmas present for my little sister," one student said, as he diligently pushed stuffing into the little limbs of his creature.

Another student snuggled her plush toy, saying it was very soothing and would help keep her calm during exams.

This spirited event was one of many that the SGA has sponsored during the first semester. While some of the activities are educational and quite serious, such as a blood drive, others were developed to enhance a sense of camaraderie on the campus, bringing commuter and resident students together, and relieving some of the stress of college life, according to Keenen Royalty, SGA president.

"The SGA officers set a goal of learning what kinds of things the GC students want to do and then trying to make it happen," he said. "I like the fact that people are starting to recognize us for our creativity, hard work, and love that we have for the school and the community as well. I think every SGA member brings something to the group that makes us successful every time.

"In addition, we have been receiving a lot of positive feedback from everybody instead of negative comments, which I think is very good for us," he said.

Ryan Shreve, the newest SGA officer, is serving as treasurer for the group. A lifelong resident of Oakland, Ryan is a graduate of Southern High School.

"I joined the SGA because I wanted a chance to express my leadership capabilities, help others with problems that they are having around the school, and just put on some fun activities so that all the students can have fun while they are at Garrett College," he said. "The Create-a-Creature event was one which everybody seemed to absolutely love. There were people there who I would never even have thought would be seen stuffing an animal, but there they were with huge smiles on their faces nonetheless."

SGA vice president Alicia King agrees with her fellow officers on the success of the first semester activities.

"I believe that all of the events hosted by SGA have been a success," she said. "Around campus, students have voiced how fun our activities are and how excited they are to show up. More students than we anticipate show up to all of our events. So far, I have heard students say that the activities this year are a lot better than last year's."

The fall semester Student Government sponsored events included: an ice cream social, a Halloween party, a costume contest, an SGA open meeting, a Red Cross blood drive, a Thanksgiving dinner, a food can drive for the Festival of Trees, and Create-A-Creature.

The SGA officers promise more events for the spring semester

You don't have to be a genius to save money with smart power strips.

It's shocking. Almost all electronic devices continue to draw electricity even after they are turned off, costing U.S. households approximately $100 per year. But by using a smart power strip, you can completely disconnect the power to electronics that are not in use. The smart part is that you can pick one device to control all the others. So you're not wasting energy on things you're not using.

For easy steps to control the size of your electric bill, visit energysaveMD.com or call 1-877-928-8928.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

The essential part of a person is the brain - the central part of our nervous system. It performs many functions. It intercepts the many types of incoming information, and somehow sorts that information or directs another part of the body to do something in response.

For example, your brain gets the information that your stomach is hungry because it is empty, or from many parts sending the information that they are without energy and depleted. Then your brain gathers various information stored in itself and formats a plan of action. It sends instructions to various parts of the body, directing it to get up and go to where your food is located. Once it gets some food inside the body, it directs the digestive system to process the food.

I guess you could say it's kind of like the CEO, the board of directors, and the management of top executives. But they do not function like a human brain. One of the most important factors in how our brains operate is the effects of hormones or other chemicals. Can one part of our brain fire another part? Or easily replace one part – like a failing CEO – with a new one? The human brain is a much more integrated structure. And, of course, our brains feel emotions, and they can change what we are thinking.

The reason our economy is so sick is not because of what the Wall Street Journal said. It called Henry Ford a criminal because he wisely realized that if he paid his employees a decent wage, they could afford to buy a Ford automobile. And they did. But sadly, many of today's CEOs have a brain cancer called Greed. Sixty percent of Americans live below the poverty line, and the next level is just barely scraping by.

Today is International AIDS Day, and there is some reason to celebrate. It took many key bipartisan people to make a significant dent on a dreadful pandemic, including George W. Bush and Hillary Clinton, and now Obama continues the fight against one of the worst diseases.

I do not qualify for food stamps. I really don't need them, because I know very well that there are many people much worse off than I. But some of the very rich take as much as possible for themselves and let the really unfortunate people starve. With some of them, there is no limit to their ultimate greed and selfishness, and that is a fundamental problem in America in 2011.

There are over 6 million unemployed breadwinners because of the relentless pursuit of the highest profit for a corporation. Many people are so desperate for any income that they are willing to work for a couple of dollars per week. Of course, they would never expect benefits like health coverage, or even decent work conditions.

I saw a pretty shocking story on the National Geographic channel about life in the slums of a big city in India. The only way to earn any kind of living is to pick through the garbage from the rest of the city. Even little children spend their whole day crawling around through garbage trying to find something worth salvaging. What will the future be for those children?

It deeply saddens me that baseball as an American pastime is being replaced by football. I read a long, dense article in the New Yorker magazine – that magazine requires serious reading effort, with almost no glossy photographs. There was a brief caption about how football has no real long-term future because of the tidal wave of evidence about how dreadful a toll it takes on brain health. And that goes all the way from pee-wee to high school, college, and the NFL. It included a quote from an NFL player, "It is a fast, brutal, violent sport."

Troy Polamalu of the Pittsburgh Steelers has suffered too many concussions already. Why has he gotten so many hard hits? Because he does anything he can to change the game, and it seems that he is guided by instinct instead of rigid ideas. He is also probably the most charismatic player in the NFL, and one of the most effective players in the league. The Steelers are far less successful when he is sidelined with injury. He is a trendsetter. When he first arrived on the scene, no football players would wear their hair long like him. But now we see someone with long hair on almost every major college team, and increasingly on NFL teams as well.

There are many reasons opposing players want to hurt him. That is similar to Barack Obama's situation. He also has roots in the South Pacific, especially Samoa, and both are a game-changing figures, breaking many stereotypes. Both seem to plan a course of action instead of relying on orders from someone.

Both are also deeply concerned about their spouses. That's why Polamalu got hit with a $10,000 fine for using a cell phone on the sidelines to call his wife to reassure her that the hit he took didn't cause as much harm to his brain as it might have looked.

When I was a faculty member at Garrett Community College, I discovered with shock and sadness that most of my students seemed unclear on the difference between capitalism and democracy. That is the primary identity of America. Capitalism is an economic term, but democracy is a political term. Often, those two categories get mixed up in the real world. That is very true in today's America, because candidates buy and sell just about any kind of product or service.

Many conservatives are unable to even consider that climate change is caused by human actions, specifically burning carbon fuel. So they insist that we don't really know what the cause is. But 99% of scientists agree that the cause is burning carbon-based fuel.

But the worst negative results of climate change are mostly far away in very poor nations, where their existence is threatened by the rising sea level. In America we have not seen that, except as a result of bad hurricanes, which are another effect of global warming.

But the ultimate stubbornness of some on the Right is that they refuse to engage in serious examination of the evidence. Nor are they willing to listen to even the highest qualified expert. They call all evidence "junk science."

In spite of his many injuries, Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger broke the record for the most completed passes this past Sunday, a mark formerly held by Terry Bradshaw.

Holden evening prayer services will be held at Emmanuel on Dec. 14 and St. John's on Dec. 21. Both services will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will be followed by a soup and bread supper.

Emmanuel Women of the ELCA will host a Christmas Tea on Sunday, Dec. 18, from 2 to 4 p.m. in the fellowship hall at Emmanuel. All women of the parish are invited to join the festivities and to bring a finger food to share with the group.

Emmanuel's choir will practice this Sunday, Dec. 11, immediately following the congregational meeting. They will also hold a practice on Sunday, Dec. 18, following the worship service.

Garrett Coll. Slates Underground Mine Training Classes

An 80-hour West Virginia underground mine training class will be offered by Garrett College's Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division at the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad in Friendsville. The class will run on Tuesdays, Fridays, and Saturdays from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. from January 17 to February 25.

Several snow make-up days are included, and if not needed, the class will end after 80 hours of instruction.

The course is designed for those who are interested in employment in the mining industry and will prepare students for the West Virginia Department of Mining state exam. A Maryland mining card will also be issued after successful completion of the class.

Class topics include types of mines, basic electrical concepts, lifting procedures for high and low coal, methane gas and mine ventilation, roof bolting, employment regulations, and training requirements.

Safety topics will include: emergency plans, self-rescuers, riding mantrips, crossing tracks, mine fires and explosions, firefighting, signaling, and first aid.

Manage Your Money Carefully This Holiday Season

As you know, the holiday season can be joyous, hectic, celebratory — and expensive. And while you certainly enjoy hosting family gatherings and giving presents to your loved ones, you'll find these things even more pleasurable if they don't add a lot of weight to your debt load. And that's why you'll want to follow some smart money management techniques over the next few weeks.

To begin with, try to establish realistic budgets for both your entertaining and your gift giving. When you host family and friends, don't go overboard on your expenditures. Your guests will still appreciate your efforts to create a welcoming and fun experience for everyone. As a guiding principal, keep in mind these words attributed to Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, the famous German poet and philosopher: "What you can do without, do without," set a budget and stick with it.

And the same rule applies to your gifting. You don't need to find the most expensive presents, or overwhelm recipients with the sheer volume of your gifts. This is especially true if you, like so many people, have been affected by the tough economy. Gifts don't have to be lavish to be meaningful.

Furthermore, by sticking to a budget, you won't be tempted to dip into your long-term investments to pay for fabulous parties or mountains of gifts. It's never a good idea to tap long-term investments for short-term needs, but can be especially bad when your investment prices are down, as they may well be this year.

So, if you want to stick to a budget but you don't want to raid your investments, how can you pay for your holiday season expenses? If you can spread out your purchases, you may be able to pay for them from your normal cash flow. But if that's not possible, you might want to consider "plastic" — your credit card. Using your credit card does not, by itself, need to amount to a financial setback, especially if you've chosen a card that offers favorable terms and you've already shown the discipline not over-use that card. Just try to minimize your credit card usage over the holidays and pay off your card as soon as you can.

Of course, you can make your holiday season much easier, financially speaking, if you've set up a holiday fund to cover your various expenses. While it's too late to set up such a fund this year, why not get an early start on the 2012 holiday season? All you need to do is put away some money each month into an easily accessible account, separate from your everyday accounts. You don't have to put in a great deal, but you do need to be consistent, which is why you may want to have the money moved automatically, once a month, from your checking or savings account to your holiday fund. When next year's holiday season rolls around, you might be pleasantly surprised by how much you've accumulated.

But for now, following some common-sense money management practices can help you get through the holiday season in good financial shape — and that type of result can help get your new year off to a positive start.

Farm Service Agency Offers Low-Interest Loans for Hay Storage Facilities
by Eric McCartney Director
Preston County FSA Office

When you consider the amount of labor, land, equipment, seed, lime, and fertilizer invested in producing hay, the cost is high. Are you throwing money away because of hay loss from insufficient hay storage?

According to four research projects conducted by WVU Extension, storage losses from large round hay bales stored in a barn averages 5%. This loss can increase significantly for hay stored outside. The average loss for hay covered outside on a pallet is 8%; uncovered outside on pallet is 34%; uncovered outside on gravel is 22%; and uncovered outside on ground is 33%.

The locations of the bales used in the project were stored on well-drained soils. In a wet year, storing on wet soils for even a few months can result in a 10% to 25% loss from the bottom of a round bale. According to an example provided by WVU, storing hay on the ground instead of a barn amounts to about $600 per year in additional haying costs to feed 25 head of cattle averaging 1,100 pounds each. (For more information on round bale storage costs go online to: http://www.caf.wvu.edu/~forage/roundbale.htm.)

If you don't have proper hay storage and would like to better protect your investment, you might want to consider talking to the USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) about a low-interest Farm Storage Facility Loan (FSFL). For applicants showing a hay storage need, FSA will lend 85% of the net cost of building the facility up to $500,000. Loan terms are available for seven, 10, or 12 years, depending on the amount of the loan. The interest rate is fixed for the loan term, based on the rate in effect during the month the loan is initially approved. For December, the interest rate is 1.5% for a seven-year loan; 2.125% for a 10-year loan; and 2.375% for a 12-year loan. Loans are repayable in equal annual installments of principal and interest amortized over the term of the FSFL.

For more information on Farm Storage Facility Loans, producers are invited to visit the Preston County FSA office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or telephone 304-329-1923.

Sines to the beginning, containing 2.04 acres, more or less.

Excepting therefrom 3,814 Square Feet of land, more or less, conveyed unto Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, his wife, by Deed dated March 17, 1992 and recorded in Liber 582, Folio 267, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland.

Parcel Two: All that parcel of land containing 3,814 Square Feet of land, more or less, conveyed unto Holbrook/Ward Partnership by Deed from Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, his wife, by Deed dated April 24, 1992 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland in Liber no. 582, Folio 280 et seq.

Being the Fee Simple Property which, by Deed dated 06/09/2000, and recorded in the Land Records of the County of Garrett, Maryland, in Liber 809, Folio 227, was granted and conveyed by Arthur J. Ward and Terry L. Holbrook, Husband and Wife unto Erik Wemple and Stephanie Mencimer, Husband and Wife.

Property Two:

Parcel One: Beginning at a stake and pipe at the end of the second line of the 19 ½-acre tract of land conveyed by W. Dwight Stover, Trustee, to Peter H. Spiker and Katherine Spiker, said 19½-acre tract being the same tract as conveyed by Henry Sines to Madison Friend, et ux., via Deed dated May 4, 1925, and recorded in Liber 089, Page 457, among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland ; and running thence North 39 Degrees 11' East 349.38 Feet to a stake; thence South 72 Degrees 26' East 289.65 Feet to a concrete post Southeast of a large stone; thence South 16 Degrees 44' West 399.04 Feet to a stake; thence North 63 Degrees 30' East 530.69 Feet to the beginning, containing 4.10 acres, more or less.

Subject to a reservation of all coal underlying the above described parcel of land, together with the right to mine and remove same, as reserved in prior Deeds of Record.

Parcel Two: Beginning at a 1-inch pipe found marking the second corner of the 2.04-acre tract described in a Deed from Richard R. Larook to Holbrook/Ward Partnership recorded in Liber 543, Page 127, among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland; thence South 32 Degrees 27' 00" West 219.90 feet along land of Frank C. Clark to a 3/8 inch Rebar, found; thence North 79 Degrees, 52' 00" West 37.50 Feet along said land of Clark to a point; thence North 40 Degrees 52' 40" East 236.70 Feet through said Land of Holbrook/Ward Partnership to the beginning, containing 3,814 Square Feet, more or less.

Being the Fee Simple Property which, by Deed dated 07/23/02, and recorded in the Land Records of the County of Garrett, Maryland, in Liber 910, Folio 0001, was granted and conveyed by Frank C. Clark and Mary S. Clark, Husband and Wife, unto Erik C. Wemple and Stephanie A. Mencimer, Husband and Wife.

The property address is part of parcel which currently has the improvements address of 115 Cheeks Lane, Oakland, MD 21550.

Said property is in fee simple and is sold in an "as is condition" and subject to all covenants, conditions, liens, restrictions, easement, rights-of-way as may affect same, if any, and with no warranty of any kind.

Terms of Sale: A deposit of $16,000.00 will be required at the time of sale, such deposit to be in cash, cashier's check, certified check, or in other form acceptable to the Substitute Trustees. Balance of the purchase price is to be paid in cash within ten (10) days of the final ratification of sale by the Circuit Court for Garrett County. If payment of the balance does not take place within ten days of ratification, the deposit will be forfeited and property will be resold at the risk and expense of the defaulting purchaser. The defaulting purchaser shall not be entitled to any surplus proceeds or profits resulting from any resale of the property. Interest to be paid on unpaid purchase money at the rate pursuant to the deed of trust note from date of sale to date funds are received in the office of the Substitute Trustees In the event the property is purchased by someone rather than the note holder.

In the event settlement is delayed for any reason, there shall be no abatement of interest. Taxes, ground rent, water rent, condominium fees and/or homeowner association dues, all public charges, assessments payable on an annual basis, including sanitary and/or metropolitan district charges, if applicable, to be adjusted for the current year to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser is responsible for any amount in excess of $250.00 for outstanding water bills, if any, incurred prior to the date of sale. Cost of all documentary stamps, transfer taxes and settlement expenses shall be borne by the purchaser. Purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the property. Purchaser assumes the risk of loss or damage to the property from the date of sale forward. If the Substitute Trustees are unable to convey good and marketable title, the purchaser's sole remedy in law or equity shall be limited to the refund of the deposit. Upon refund of the deposit, this sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees.

NOTE: The information contained herein was obtained from sources deemed to be reliable, but is offered for informational purposes only. Neither the auctioneer, the beneficiary of the Deed of Trust, the Substitute Trustee nor his agents or attorneys make any representations or warranties with respect to the accuracy of information.

PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS ARE URGED TO PERFORM THEIR OWN DUE DILIGENCE WITH RESPECT TO THE PROPERTY PRIOR TO THE FORECLOSURE AUCTION. For additional information, please contact the Substitute Trustees.

LOCAL PATRIOT TO DONATE TO TOYS FOR TOTS – Oakland Patriot Chrysler Dodge Jeep and Chrysler Group LLC's Mid-Atlantic Business Center (MABC) along with its 254 dealers are joining forces with the Marine Toys for Tots foundation this holiday season. "As a Chrysler dealer, we are deeply rooted in our community, and this is a good way for us to give back to the community that supports us," said owners Greg Diehl and Larry Sisler. "Toys for Tots is the perfect charity partner for us, and the dealer distribution network is a great way for us to give back to those less fortunate." As part of the program, the MABC is offering a $750 incentive to customers purchasing a new 2011 or 2012 Dodge Journey, Dodge Grand Caravan, or Chrysler Town & Country minivan. The MABC will donate $100 to the program for each vehicle sold throughout Chrysler's Mid-Atlantic region, which covers Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, Virginia, and West Virginia. Patriot Chrysler Dodge Jeep will serve as a drop off point for toys. "We are pleased to welcome the business center and its dealers as a national corporate sponsor of the 2011 Marine Toys for Tots campaign," said retired Marine Major Bill Grein, vice president of the foundation. "Their community service goals certainly align with those the Marine Corps has promoted for nearly 65 years through the Toys for Tots program. With their generous support, we will be able to fulfill the Christmas holiday dreams of thousands of less fortunate children in the region." Pictured is Patriot employee Charlie Shahan.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Navy Seaman Apprentice Larry Tice, son of Susan Valentine of Harrisburg, Pa., and Larry Tice of Grantsville, was recently promoted to his current rank upon graduation from recruit training at the Navy's Recruit Training Command in Great Lakes, Ill.

Tice received this early promotion for "outstanding performance during all phases of the training cycle." His training involved classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on personal fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is called "battle stations" by those at the training command. According to a spokesperson, this exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet.

Tice is a 2010 graduate from Springs, Pa.

Christopher Welch, gunnery sergeant, whose wife Stephanie is the daughter of Carol and John Hinebaugh of Swanton, recently received the Marine Corps Good Conduct Medal.

This award recognizes the "honest and faithful service" of service members over a three-year period. Welch was required to achieve and maintain a "satisfactory level of performance and an unblemished conduct record" over that time period.

Welch is currently assigned to duty at the Marine Corps Air Station in Okinawa, Japan.

Office Of Home Energy Program Taking Apps.

Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc. Office of Home Energy Program (formerly Maryland Energy Assistance Program) will be at the Grantsville Senior Center to take applications on Monday, Dec. 19, from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. This is open to all persons who have not applied since July 2011.

Those with questions may call 301-334-9431 or 1-888-877-8403. The GCCAC Office of Home Energy Program promotes the agency's goal of increasing the number of families and individuals who are economically self-sufficient and able to live independently in the county.

Oakland Woman Killed In Icy, Early Morning Accident

An Oakland woman was killed in a single-vehicle accident early this past Saturday. Garrett County sheriff's deputies were the first responding officers.

Investigation revealed that Adam Troy Schoch, 29, Oakland, had been traveling west on Jasper Riley Road, when he lost control of his vehicle on a icy patch in the roadway, causing it to spin out of control and strike a tree on the opposite shoulder. Schoch's passenger and wife, Melissa Ann Schoch, 31, succumbed to injuries sustained in the accident. Adam was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated for non-life-threatening injuries.

Oakland Volunteer Fire Department also assisted at the 6:45 a.m. scene.

GCSO Seeking Info On Several Local Burglaries

The Garrett County Sheriff's Office is investigating numerous burglaries that have occurred in the Deep Creek Lake area, where homes are being broken into and flat panel televisions are being stolen.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the GCSO at 301-334-1911 or go online to www.garrettcountycrimesolvers.org. Information leading to the arrest and/or recovery of the television(s) may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000. The reward is being offered by Railey Mountain Lake Vacations. Tipsters may remain anonymous.

MSP Seeking Info On Burglary Attempt At McHenry Office

Maryland State Police are investigating a burglary attempt that occurred at a McHenry business last Tuesday.

Sometime between 11 a.m. and 5:45 p.m., unknown suspect(s) attempted to break into the manager's office of the Village View Apartments, Pysell Road. The suspect(s) also caused damage to one of the coin-operated washing machines in the same building.

Anyone with information regarding the incident or possible suspect(s) should contact Tfc. Huber at the MSP McHenry Barrack, 301-387-1101. Callers may remain anonymous.

Fracking Commission Wants To Make It Easier For Landowners To File Suit

Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – A commission tasked with advising Maryland on possible shale gas production supports a change in the law that would make it easier for landowners to bring claims against drillers regarding water contamination and other damages near hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," sites.

The new law, which commission chair and Towson University professor David Vanko said has "pretty broad support" from the commission, would shift the burden of proof to energy companies by creating a "rebuttable presumption" that drilling activity causes certain kinds of damages occurring close in time and in proximity to natural gas operations.

"I think (asymmetry of resources) always has been an issue in litigation, particularly where an aggrieved party, Joe Homeowner, is suing a Fortune 500 company," said Harry Weiss, a lawyer in the Philadelphia-based law firm Ballard Spahr and a member of the advisory commission. Weiss said Pennsylvania already has a similar presumption statute for damages that occur near natural gas operations.

This and other changes to the state's liability structure, as well as potential revenue sources from gas drilling, will be included in a set of recommendations due Dec. 31 – the first milestone in a three-year study that Gov. Martin O'Malley required by executive order in May

State regulators are working with the advisory commission to form recommendations on all aspects of shale gas drilling before deciding whether Maryland should ultimately allow the controversial practice.

The first recommendations will come just weeks after the Environmental Protection Agency announced for the first time that there may be a link between fracking and groundwater contamination. The draft report, released Dec. 8, describes high levels of benzene, synthetic chemicals, and methane in private drinking water wells near Pavillion, Wyo., where fracking is widespread.

The EPA study is "a watershed moment in the discussion of this issue," said Paul Roberts, a small-business owner in Garrett County and a member of the governor's advisory commission.

"We finally have the federal government confirming what people have been saying for years," Roberts said.

Encana Corporation, which owns the natural gas field in question, issued a news release this week criticizing the EPA study's methodology and findings. "Natural gas developers didn't put the natural gas at the bottom of the EPA's deep monitoring wells, nature did," the statement read in part.

Fracking is an unconventional method of gas extraction that involves drilling horizontally into a shale layer

Advocacy Group Seeks Legislation To Expand Energy-Leasing Protection

A local organization that has advocated for making more information available to land-owners who wish to lease their property for energy development announced this week it would ask western Maryland's Annapolis delegation to sponsor a "Fair Energy-Leasing Act" in the upcoming session of the Maryland General Assembly

CitizenShale acting director Natalie Atherton said the organization would present its suggested legislation this Saturday to Sen. George Edwards and Del. Wendell Beitzel at the delegation's annual pre-legislative public meeting, which is slated to begin at 10 a.m. in Garrett College's Room 205. The legislators traditionally use the opportunity to discuss proposals for new legislation, and the public is always encouraged to attend.

"Leases are both individual landowners' and our county's first line of protection against poor industrial practices that might harm our land, our water, or our economy," said Atherton.

CitizenShale's proposed legislation would require licenses for leasing agents and "land men" who represent the many out-of-state energy corporations that have, since 2006, negotiated leases in Garrett and Allegany counties. The bulk of the leasing activity has been for shale gas extraction, which has not yet occurred in Maryland, but Atherton noted that other forms of industrial energy development, such as wind-power, raise many of the same land-use and consumer protection issues.

All such leases, as well as the outright purchase of mineral rights, are the foundation of energy development in Maryland – including shale gas extraction, should it occur.

Edwards and Beitzel have in the past sponsored bills dealing with gas leasing. The issue has also caught the attention in the last year of Maryland Attorney General Douglas Gansler, whose office has issued two "public information notices" to assist lessors, most recently in October.

The organization's proposal follows a public meeting it sponsored last Thursday

Local Family Takes Trip Of A Lifetime; Teen Visits Place Of Birth

by Mary Sincell McEwen

Some 13 years ago, a tiny, month-old baby was left at the entrance of a factory in Tongling, China. She was without identification, with no note, no instructions, no information at all. A policeman found the bundle and picked her up, and began searching the area for anyone who might know who she was or where her parents might be. He was unsuccessful.

Not far from the factory was the orphanage, and the policeman took the infant there, where she would stay for about 18 months.

During this same time, Judy Travis of Oakland was doing research and applying to adopt a baby from China. Having lost her husband suddenly, she was looking for a way to heal, to regain a family; to offer her home and her heart. Surely both Judy and that little baby had their struggles during those 18 months.

But at last the time came, and Judy made the trip to China, accompanied by her brother, Jim Richter. They found 18-month-old Jian (pronounced "Jen"), whose name means "strong." It was summertime, and the temperature was about 70, but as is tradition in China, the baby was dressed in layers and layers of clothing.

"They told me if I took any of her clothes off, I would get swatted by older Chinese ladies in the street," Judy said. But she was miserably hot. As soon as I got the chance, I took some layers off." She still has the clothing (see photo).

And so Jian became Jian Travis, an American, and a Garrett Countian. When she arrived in the United States, the toddler was unable to walk or even sit up by herself, as she had been just one of many babies in the orphanage, with little individual attention. A story appeared in this newspaper, written by Peggy Santamaria, about Jian's arrival. The feature related how quickly the baby grew and adapted, walking and speaking in a matter of weeks.

She hasn't stopped learning and growing, and is now an accomplished and busy teenager, and an 8th grader at Southern Middle School. She listens to Nicki Minaj, Rihanna, and Lady Gaga, NEVER TOO OLD TO SIT ON SANTA'S LAP! Jo Ashby of Oakland may be 80, but she has a wish list, too. So when Santa Claus, who happened to be visiting Naylor's Hardware in Oakland this week, invited to her to have sit and a chat, she did just that. The "Merry Christmas" song does say "to kids from 1 to 92," and she's a long way off from that! (What about 93-year-olds and up, though?) Here's hoping kids of all ages – all ages – are having fun during this Christmas season, just like Jo.

Superintendent Waggoner Proposes Board Of Ed. Close Several Schools To Balance Budget

A somber tone was struck at Tuesday's monthly Garrett County Board of Education meeting, which centered around the projected budget shortfalls faced by the school system and the possibility that those financial woes may cause some major changes. Most notably, the financial deficit may force the BOE to vote to close a number of Garrett County schools.

Before a pair of presentations were given on the subject, extra chairs were brought into the board room of the Board of Education building to accommodate the larger than usual crowd in attendance.

The first informative talk was given by Larry McKenzie, director of finance, who presented tentative estimates on Maryland's state aid wealth formula and its effects on school budgets. McKenzie explained that according to the formula, Garrett County was on track to become the fifth wealthiest county in Maryland, and therefore receive increasingly less funding from Annapolis.

This trend was attributed to reductions in local student population, as well as to increases in real estate value, presumably properties in the Deep Creek Lake area and those connected with utilities. Estimates for immediate budget losses were thought to be somewhere between $1.5 and $3 million.

Following McKenzie's presentation, Sue Waggoner, interim superintendent of schools, addressed the board with proposals for balancing the budget. These proposals were to be taken under advisement by the board, and will be considered over the coming months.

Through the first year of Waggoner's five-year proposal, the board was asked to first consider eliminating the high school driver's education program. This action would reportedly net a saving of $200,000 per year. Coupled with this measure was a proposal to also consider the elimination of the full-time school-enrichment positions, allowing those duties to fall to the primary teaching staff and perhaps to part-time employees. The removal of these positions would reportedly reduce the budget deficit by around $165,000 per year.

Waggoner also asked the board to consider reconfiguring the current grade structure of schools, moving fifth graders to middle schools. This new configuration would have pre-K through fourth graders attend elementary schools and fifth through eighth graders attend middle schools. High schools would see no change.

Having middle school begin at the fifth grade level, Waggoner explained, was a somewhat common practice in the neighboring states of Virginia and West Virginia and would also allow for a smoother transition into the redistricting of students brought about by school closings.

The first school that the board was asked to consider for closure was Dennett Road Elementary, as its location would allow those currently enrolled there to be relocated to Broad Ford, Yough Glades, and Crellin. Dennett Road was also targeted because of its need for extensive renovations in the near future – renovations which could not be completed given the school system's current financial situation.

This maneuver would also allow for the removal of 16½ teacher, principal, and custodial positions throughout the school system.

Two other facilities – Kitzmiller and Friendsville elementaries – were also presented to the board as candidates for closure. If this were to occur, Kitzmiller students would presumably be

Commissioners Review Bdlg. Permitting, Assistance Prog., Economic Dev. Issues

The Garrett County commissioners reviewed a wide variety of issues during their public session last Tuesday at the courthouse in Oakland. Topics discussed included building permits, the Energy Assistance Program, a building purchase, and a bid award for standing timber.

Permits and inspections chief Jim Torrington reported that building permits were down in the county by more than 24 percent for the first 11 months of this year, compared to the same time period in 2010. Permits issued between January and the end of November 2011 were 368, compared to 486 in 2010, 459 in 2009, 513 in 2008, and 638 in 2007.

Torrington noted there were 16 modular home permits issued in the county last year, compared to only five this year. He attributed the decrease to a new code requiring that modular homes be equipped with fire suppression systems.

"It definitely has had an impact on the modular home industry in the county," Torrington said about the regulation.

That industry, as well as the home construction one, will also be affected by new energy standards recently adopted by the Maryland Codes Administration. One specific regulation requires that new homes undergo a blower-door test. Energy auditors use the test to determine a home's airtightness, which affects energy consumption.

The new requirement for modular homes goes into effect in the state on Jan. 1, 2012. For new home construction, counties have until July 1, 2012, to adopt the code. Torrington noted that since the requirement pertains to an energy code; it cannot be amended by the county. He indicated he wants to hold a meeting with local contractors sometime in the spring to educate them on the new energy code requirements.

Also last Tuesday, Community Action president Duane Yoder updated the commissioners on the Energy Assistance Program. He indicated that numerous local residents are in need of assistance to heat their homes this winter but because of issues at the federal level, funding has been tied up.

The program provides help with heating costs to low- and moderate-income households. It serves about 3,000 households in Garrett County each year.

"The program affects about a quarter of the households in Garrett County," Yoder said. "And, to date, we've not been given permission to release any of the money."

He explained that the federal government has not yet decided on a final budget for the program this year. As a result, Maryland does not

County Residents Reminded To Buy Refuse Site Permit

The Garrett County Department of Solid Waste and Recycling reminds residents that they could be left "holding the bag" on Monday, Jan. 2, unless they have purchased a 2012 Residential Refuse Site Permit. The new permits went on sale on Oct. 1 and will be valid through Dec. 31, 2012.

Residents may purchase their 2012 permit in person at the landfill or the Garrett County tax office.

Permits are also available online to anyone who has previously held a permit or the application can be submitted by mail.

"Purchasing online is the fastest way to renew, and there is no additional charge for using your credit card online," said department manager Dave Baker.

Applications are not mailed out, but are available at all collection sites, online, the Grantsville library, the Garrett County tax office, and at the landfill.

"Residents are encouraged to avoid the New Year rush and renew today," Baker said.

LIVING WELL BOOKS DONATED – The Garrett County Living Well program recently donated three copies of the book Living a Healthy Life with Chronic Conditions to the Ruth Enlow Library. This book is given to program participants and is now available on loan from the Oakland, Accident, and Grantsville libraries. Left to right are Cathy Ashby, Ruth Enlow director, and Suzanne Carley, Living Well program coordinator. Living Well with Chronic Conditions and Living Well with Diabetes workshops are scheduled to begin in January in Oakland, Accident, and Grantsville. These workshops are open to Garrett Countians 21 years of age and older. Those interested in this free program may call Carley at 301-746-8232.

know how much money it is going to get for the program, and, therefore, is not granting Community Action the authority to release any of the money that has already allocated to the agency.

"So, we're sitting on money that has already been deposited in our account," Yoder said about the $1 million that has been earmarked for energy assistance.

In the last few weeks, he noted, residents who are already certified for the program are calling his office, stating they are out of fuel. He said Community Action was working with Social Services and the faith-based community to help with the real dire emergencies.

"Is there anything we can do to help?" Commissioner Jim Raley asked.

Yoder suggested the commissioners contact the governor about the issue, which has become a life-threatening one for some households. He noted that the decision on the funding releases has been moved from Maryland Department of Human Resources to the Governor's Office.

"A minimum benefit release would at least give us the ability to get through this until they decide what they are going to do," Yoder said.

Further complicating the issue, he noted, is that federal officials are proposing cutting the program by 40 percent. Last year, beneficiaries received an average of $540. That could be cut to $224 this year, creating energy assistance needs again for local families in February and March.

Following the meeting, the commissioners, Yoder, and county administrator Monty Pagenhardt conducted a conference call with Governor's Office officials about the funding issue.

"We were informed there would be some follow-up to move the funding along," Pagenhardt said.

In other actions during the commissioners' public session last week, Director Jim Hinebaugh, GC Department of Economic Development, formally proposed that the county purchase the Maryland Economic Development Corporation (MEDCo) shell building at the Southern Business and Technology Park. County officials have been working on a purchase agreement with MEDCo for several months, and funding for the project was outlined in the fiscal year 2012 budget.

Located on about five acres, the 30,000-square-foot facility has an assessed value of $1.374 million.

Hinebaugh said it could be purchased for $1.150 million. He noted that part of the MEDCo building is currently leased to Pioneer Conveyor.

"At the same time we're working with a local, established credible business prospect that is very interested in buying the building," Hinebaugh said.

The commissioners unanimously approved the purchase, which will be paid for with money from the county's unassigned fund balance.

"It kind of shifts our capital plan a little bit, but it isn't taking money out of the budget – it's utilizing the surplus monies," Raley said.

As noted in the commissioners' message in the FY 2012 budget, the original plan was to purchase the building with a potential $244,926 Appalachian Regional Commission grant, $244,926 in county funds, and a 30-year loan at 3 percent interest from the state. The ARC, however, ended up awarding the grant to Garrett College's Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics program.

Based on the numbers, Raley said, the facility is well worth the money. He noted that by purchasing the building outright, the county will have no debt service and will have more control of its own destiny.

"Our having control of a building like this, I consider it to be important to our own economic future," he said.

The commissioner indicated that even if the company interested in the building does not end up buying it, the county will still be able to lease it or sell it to someone else.

Closure on the building's purchase could take place as early as the end of this month, Hinebaugh indicated.

Also last week, the commissioners unanimously approved a $38,046 bid submitted by Eastern Hardwoods Inc., Hopwood, Pa., for the sale of standing timber at the Garrett County landfill site. The other bids for the wood were Furman Forest Services, $13,590; Joe Colmer Logging, $21,555; and Wood Products Inc. $24,100.

The commissioners' next public meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 20, beginning at 4 p.m. in their meeting room at the courthouse.

CHRISTMAS DONATION MADE – The Northern Garrett Republican Women's Club recently held its annual Christmas dinner at the Hilltop Restaurant, Grantsville, with 11 members and guests attending. President Lois Rowe gave the welcome, and the blessing was given by Carol Frazee. Following the dinner, the group made the decision to donate money to the Grantsville Rotary Christmas Project. This was done as the club's Christmas community project in lieu of exchanging gifts. The gift basket, provided by Mildred Husselbaugh, Beverly Wiland, and Carol Frazee, was won by Twila Mae Fike. Membership dues were collected for the coming year. There are no meetings scheduled until March 2012, which will be a planning meeting for the club's programs and events. 4-H Club News

AURORA PIONEERS

Prior to the regular Dec. 4 meeting, the Aurora Pioneers 4-H Club held the lighting of the Aurora Area Christmas Tree. Thanks are extended to James and Deloris Slawter, Aurora, who decorated both the tree and the Aurora Community Building. Club members and their guests sang "Silent Night," "Jingle Bells," and "Rudolph," as well as read a few poems. The tree was lighted, and refreshments were served.

The meeting was called to order by president Wyatt Snyder. Secretary Emily Snyder led the 4-H pledge, and treasurer Lena Mersing led the Pledge of Allegiance. They each gave their reports following the pledges.

Officers training, which Emily Snyder attended, was discussed. A gift exchange between members was held, and items were donated for the Aurora Elementary School's Hat and Glove Tree project.

Reports were given on the Heifer Project Inc., which will be receiving money to purchase a bee hive and a flock of chickens. Members discussed future activities before the meeting was closed by a motion of Emily Snyder.

The club wishes all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

GC Program Saving Lives...

The list of the many positive effects of Garrett College on our county and on the students it serves is a lengthy one, considering all of the institution's fine academic programs, the golden opportunity that the college provides for so many more local students to obtain a college education, the athletic and recreational opportunities, and the overall positive economic impact of the college on the economy of the county, including providing many jobs.

However, one of the more obscure, yet exciting, services of the college is featured on the Garrett College News Beat page in this issue of The Republican (page C-2). The focus of the story is the Garrett-Backbone College Program, which affords the opportunity for wayward youth incarcerated at the Backbone Youth Center to obtain college credit and, more importantly, an avenue for a productive life outside the correctional system.

The young people housed at the Backbone Youth Center are there because they have selected a path of juvenile delinquency. They are typically from dysfunctional – often downright destructive – home environments, from which there is often little hope of ever escaping. The prospect of becoming law-abiding, productive adults is generally slim. In fact, as the story notes, the recidivism rate of juveniles who get into trouble is from 70 to 80%.

However, since the Garrett-Backbone College Program has been in existence (since 2006), the recidivism rate of youth who have been in the program is 38%. Not only have nearly two-thirds of the participants converted to a law-abiding way of life, but a number of them have become highly successful. Several have continued in college – both at Garrett and elsewhere – obtained good jobs, and/or enlisted in the military, where they have also excelled. One alumnus of the school is now a student in the University of Maryland School of Law!

Since its beginning, some 180 young people have earned a total of over 1,000 college credit hours.

This program proves that so many of the nation's youth who get into trouble for a variety of reasons can indeed overcome huge odds and get their lives back on a positive track if they are provided the kind of opportunity generated by programs such as these, and come into contact with adults who truly care about them.

As noted by GC professor Elizabeth Grant, this program also provides an excellent learning environment for other Garrett students who are enrolled in justice studies or various education-related classes, as the program provides some real-life practical situations and experiences.

Kudos to all involved with this outstanding program that is truly "making a difference," and probably literally saving the lives of some of our young people who just need a second chance.

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

Wow, I had to smile and stop reading The Republican to immediately write this letter and record my thoughts after I saw "Sheldon the Dragon" and the article on "Rethink Recycling" (Dec. 1).

The artistry, the creativity, and especially the ingenuity that went into these projects! Whimsical and fun – the "Jukebox Clock," "Fairyland Tragedy," "Magnificent Turtle," "Dragon Fly," and the "Weaver's Well" all cast a spell over me as I closely examined the pictures to figure out how these were constructed – bubble wrap here, pop tops there that make a bird's neck (and thus won't be a part of Ron Wiltison's pop-top collection for the Ronald McDonald House.)

Every year I love the article and pictures on "Rethink Recycling," but the creations this year were really outstanding. Kudos to everyone involved, including the Garrett County Arts Council and the Department of Solid Waste and Recycling.

Peace,

To the Editor:

As local residents, we would like to thank Paul Browning and the numerous volunteers and churches who made the 13th annual Joy of Christ Celebration possible.

The goals of the organization to offer completely free, high-quality seasonal entertainment, refreshments, and merchandise, with a focus on the spirit, joy, and historical events of the Christmas celebration, were clearly achieved.

Thanks again for all of the joy you shared and yet another wonderful time for all who attended.

Friends,
Norm Simpkins, Sarah Myers, Matt Friend, and Dan Rose

To the Editor:

On behalf of the realtor members of the Garrett County Board of Realtors, we would like to publicly thank all the people who made it possible for us to deliver 117 packaged sets of hats and gloves to be included in the Oakland Rotary Club's annual delivery of toys to Garrett County children. This list includes GCBR members, Arrowhead Market, Bear Creek Traders, Swanton Cub Scout Pack #57, Dollar Tree, High Mountain Sports, Naylor's Ace Hardware, Rudy's Clothing, Rudy's at Wisp, Southern Middle School, Walgreens, and all the residents and visitors who bought and donated hats and gloves so our children could be warm this winter.

The GCBR Task Force: John Pucciano, chair, Amy Buser, Jay Ferguson, and Sandi Flockhart.

Thank you,
John Pucciano

To the Editor:

Members of the Military Family Support Group (MFSG), along with students and friends from the community, met at the Southern Garrett Rescue Hall Nov. 30 to prepare, pack, and ship care packages to military personnel serving overseas who will be away from home this Christmas. With the help of over 40 people, 98 boxes were readied and mailed.

The contents of these boxes were donated throughout the fall months. The generosity of our local citizens is overwhelming and an indication of the support our local military has from our community. We have so many to thank that I am sure I will forget some, so I will apologize up front.

The MFSG thanks our drop-off points: Accident Garage, Dottie's Grill at Englander's, Nu-Finish Collision Center, and Team One Auto Mall.

Groups and individuals who donated include the following: Rob Heilig and the Marine Corps League members, Angie Meyer and Southern Middle School students and teachers, CareFirst Blue Cross Blue Shield in Cumberland, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Church, Broad Ford Elementary School 3rd graders, Northern High School JROTC, Barbara Stork, members of the Maryland National Guard Family Assistance Center from Hagerstown, Accident Elementary School students and teachers, Paul Mullan, and countless others who left items at our drop-off boxes.

I also send big "kudos" to Karen and all the staff of the Oakland and Mountain Lake Park post offices who made the mailing process so easy. Additional thanks to the families of the support group and Get-N-Go for the donation of food and holiday snacks that were enjoyed by all.

The Military Family Support Group is a voluntary organization helping families meet the challenges of military life. We welcome any family with a loved one in any branch of the military, whether stationed in the states or overseas. Our next meeting will be held February 15 at 6:30 p.m. at the Southern Garrett Rescue Hall. For more information, please telephone Larry Schlossnagle at 301-746-5723 or me, Cathy Menker, at 301-334-5906.

Again, I thank everyone who helped in any way. As we get closer to Christmas, I ask that you say a special prayer for our military and especially all who will be away from family for the holidays. They are our heroes!

For the Military Family Support Group,
Cathy Menker

To the Editor:

As I'm sure some are aware, the Postal Service is proposing to close almost half of its mail processing facilities nationwide and approximately 3,700 smaller offices across the country as early as March 2012. Many of these offices have already closed. The Cumberland mail processing plant is one of those slated to close in the spring. The Postal Service has proposed to move the processing operation to Johnstown, Pa.

The closure of the Cumberland facility would mean the elimination of 30 jobs in Cumberland, causing people to retire, quit, or be forced to accept a job possibly hundreds of miles away. It would also mean the uprooting of many of those employees and their families. This would affect everyone who is served by the Cumberland plant, which includes residents of Garrett, Allegany, Mineral and Hampshire counties.

If you mail a letter or card to your next-door neighbor, he/she will not receive it for two to three days. Medication delivered by mail to the elderly will arrive late. Bills won't be paid on time. Bulk mailers would see delivery of their mail slowed to as many as nine days. People who get this newspaper delivered to them by mail will be reading it two to three days later than they do now. People who own a business will certainly be hurt by delayed mail.

They suggest e-mail, paying bills online, etc., is the cause of the decline in first-class mail. There has been a decline in first-class mail in recent years. The biggest reason the Postal Service is in trouble is that it is required by Congress to prefund retiree health-care benefits, in the amount of five billion dollars per year, the only organization required to do so. Another fact about the USPS is it is not supported by taxpayer money.

There will be a meeting next Monday, Dec. 19, at 6 p.m. at Fort Hill High School, 500 Greenway Ave., Cumberland. This is the only chance there is of possibly stopping the closure of the Cumberland mail processing plant. Our union officials in Cumberland are trying to involve as many business owners, mayors, senators, and U.S. representatives as possible. I believe it is imperative that anyone who lives in Garrett, Allegany, Mineral, or Hampshire counties and is concerned about the future of mail delivery attend this meeting and strongly voice your concerns.

To the Editor:

Methinks our retired carpenter friend writes as though his rational thinking capacity has become compromised by the ingestion and/or inhalation of certain – shall we say – exotic substances.

The numerous incidents which were cited in his letter last week are so far removed from reality and so deeply entrenched in fantasy as to not even merit an individual rebuttal. I understand that some was probably meant to to be sarcasm, but the sad thing is that the large percentage of people in this country who are uninformed politically and spiritually are gullible enough to believe this kind of two-faced, hypocritical, nonsensical malarkey. All they really care about is to entertain their shallow little minds and hearts with as much of this world's filth and stupidity as they possibly can. Other than that they will mindlessly follow any two-bit occupant of the oval office right over the precipice. As long as they can continue to mooch off the government at least.

What I don't understand is why our people on the right are so silent. It seems we're content to just sit back and allow the slow, progressive march of the Left Wing, anti-Christian, anti-anything good and right and decent agenda to completely overtake our society.

Looking back over the past 50 years and seeing how far our country has fallen into a society where the lines between good and evil have become increasingly blurred by atrocities like Roe v. Wade and other travesties is truly frightening. Imagine another 50 years of moral decline at the current pace!

I know, I know, we are told this is progress in the name of open acceptance of any lifestyle one chooses to live. But it is not progress. Mankind is regressing into an evermore barbaric and beastly state, because as the Bible tells us, their hearts are continually seeking after evil. It has nothing to do with how bright and clean and fresh we appear to others around us. It's all about how our hearts appear before God. He is at some point going to say enough already. The real reason this battle occurs between good and evil is that ungodly people become uncomfortable when exposed to the light of scriptural teachings, thus they fight back.

In the end, the victory will belong to God and the people of His kingdom.

To the Editor:

I was humbled and embarrassed by an e-mail I received early this week. A small group of people took umbrage to my letter last week commenting on the current Republican contenders. My comparison of these two groups was unprovoked and, subsequently, I have done some soul searching and humbly request their forgiveness.

The E-mail read:

Dear Mr. Krewson,

It was an insult to our membership for you to so cavalierly besmirch our reputations by comparing our noble profession with the truth-twisting, fact-distorting politicians.

We expect a full retraction and a public apology for your unprovoked and unwarranted, malicious attack on our fine craft. We still hold our reputations in high regard!

However, if at the next debate you could convince the Republican candidates to arrive packed in one very small car and get out with red noses and big shoes, all will be forgiven!

Signed,
Bozo the Clown

redistricted to Yough Glades, while Friendsville students would be sent to Accident and Grantsville. Waggoner estimated a savings of around $279,000 per year if Kitzmiller were closed, while closing Friendsville would reportedly save around $674,000.

Beyond the closing of schools, reductions in spending on transportation, maintenance, and staff were proposed in order to balance the budget. Waggoner felt that the transportation budget could be reduced by around $128,000.

This would be accomplished by a comprehensive review of current bus routes, the elimination of the activity bus and the route to Allegany County's Mountain Ridge High School, as well as the limitation of new bus purchases. These actions would be coupled with a $100,000 reduction in the maintenance budget and the termination of six instructional assistant positions – saving another $150,000.

Furthermore, the board was asked to consider reducing the academic intervention program by $50,000, as well as ending three high school teaching positions, which would reduce the budget by $165,000.

One proposal which was acted on in Tuesday's meeting was the creation of a retirement incentive for all eligible school system employees. This action was taken in hopes of reducing the extent of cuts to the upcoming budget. Waggoner stressed that she would like those interested to submit their applications by mid-January.

As for years two and three of Waggoner's five-year plan, she proposed further reductions to the budget along with other methods for decreasing costs. Some of these were utilizing technologies to increase classroom efficiency, increasing class sizes, reducing and sharing staff, seeking educational partnerships with local organizations, eliminating one behavioral support teacher position, reducing staff through attrition, and enacting "pay-to-play" initiatives for extracurricular activities.

In the fourth and fifth years of the proposal, the board would theoretically be asked to consider more budget cuts and the possibility of closing Crellin Elementary School for a possible savings of approximately $415,000, as well as a reconfiguration to Route 40 Elementary School.

"This plan is heart wrenching and one I certainly wouldn't like to see enacted," stated Waggoner. "We've been frugal through the years, and have invested in our staff and facilities in order to provide a quality education to all of our students. However, to maintain the integrity of our system we must make some very, very tough choices in the near future.

"As we embark on this journey, let us remember that this system is vulnerable and that the work of our extraordinary staff is the hope of our future.

"At this time, with this financial crisis before us, we need to balance the budget to maintain the integrity and structure of our system."

Currently the board is working to develop advisory committees for the schools under consideration for closure. Public hearings on the matter are planned for January. The hearings would be followed by recommendations in February, with action possibly taken in March.

"I'd like to stress that at this time these are just proposals," Thomas Carr, BOE president, stated at the conclusion of Waggoner's presentation.

"The board begs for feedback on the matter – we are hoping for a better way to meet these challenges."

at which a Garrett County Board of Realtors initiative for a state gas lease registry was introduced. Roughly 60 people attended the event at Garrett College, where a PowerPoint presentation prepared by the board was shown.

In November, the realtor board petitioned a governor-appointed commission studying shale gas development for a lease registry that would require all holders of leases to register them with the state. The lease registry would provide a way for buyers and sellers of real estate to easily learn details on mineral leases held on land adjacent to or near properties offered for sale.

Atherton said that CitizenShale's proposal is based partly on rules and regulations that govern real estate and other forms of commercial development, such as the building industry, in which permits are required and contracts are regulated to protect consumers and builders. Yet, the leasing of land for gas and mineral exploration and extraction is minimally regulated in Maryland.

"Over the last seven years, land-men from all over the United States have been silently walking down our driveways in hopes of finding riches under and over our homes," said Eric Robison, a local builder who is a founding board member of both CitizenShale and another local advocacy organization, Save Western Maryland. "As we all know, these land-men made promises that in many cases did not end up in the leases."

Robison said CitizenShale's proposed law incorporates some aspects of the local realtor board's lease registry concept, but would also require entities involved in leasing to register with the state of Maryland, meet certain basic professional requirements, and remain in "good standing" within their industry, in much the same way that other professionals are required to maintain a "clean" license in order to operate.

Specifically, CitizenShale's proposed law would require leasing agents and all other industry representatives engaged in leasing activities to:

•Use uniform, "plain" language in leases, to improve transparency and ease of understanding;

SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION HONOR SHIRCLIFFE – The Little Meadows Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution recently recognized the achievements of Ansel Shircliffe. Shircliffe received the SAR Silver Good Citizenship Medal and Certificate, which is reserved for "individuals of prominence in the areas of government, religion, education, business, and professions and other appropriate fields of endeavor." According to a spokesperon, Shircliffe was chosen to receive the award for his years of service to western Maryland in the areas of business, tourism, and promotional activities. Pictured far right is Shircliffe receiving the award from J. Patrick Warner, Maryland State SAR Chapter second vice president (center), and Luther Parrack, Little Meadows Chapter president (far left).

VETS OF LEGION POST 71 RECOGNIZED – The American Legion Department of Maryland recently presented local Post 71 of Oakland with a certificate of appreciation. The item reads "In recognition and appreciation of valued services and contributions in recognizing all Korean War veterans in the immediate region on the 60th anniversary of the Korean War, over 1,200 man hours were provided by the Legionaries to accomplish the project." and injecting a pressurized mixture of water, sand, and chemicals to crack open the rock, releasing trapped gas.

Fracking sites are numerous in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, which allow energy companies to drill in the Marcellus shale, a natural gas-rich rock formation that underlies much of northern Appalachia.

But Maryland, where the same formation cuts across Garrett County and part of Allegany County, has not approved or denied permits for Marcellus shale drilling.

Vanko emphasized there may be differences between the fracking involved in the EPA study in Wyoming and the kind of fracking that might occur in Maryland.

"It should influence us if the situation in that case, in Wyoming, is similar to that of the Marcellus shale, and I just don't know yet how similar that is," Vanko said.

In a news release accompanying the report, the EPA said the findings are "specific to Pavillion, where the fracturing is taking place in and below the drinking water aquifer and in close proximity to drinking water wells – production conditions different from those in many other areas of the country."

The second phase of the Maryland study, due August 2012, will address "best practices" to limit the environmental and public health risks of shale gas production. The commission will look closely at the EPA's findings in this phase, Vanko said.

Roberts said Maryland should consider a recent incident in Bradford County, Pa., where the state's Department of Environmental Protection in May fined Chesapeake Energy almost $1 million for improperly casing wells, allowing methane to migrate and contaminate the private water supplies of 16 families.

"In our own region, right here in the Marcellus shale, in less than four years, the state of Pennsylvania is confirming that water contamination has occurred at drilling sites in multiple instances when, again, the drilling industry insisted that's not possible," Roberts said.

"I don't think it's alarmist to point out that this is occurring and that this could be our future in Maryland if we allow drilling," he said.

Not all of the advisory commission members agree that a presumption statute, which would make it easier for landowners to sue gas companies over water contamination or other damages, is desirable.

"My fear is, are we trying to find a way to do this and do it safely, or are we trying to find a way to make it so the drillers aren't interested?" said Bill Valentine, Allegany County commissioner and advisory commission member.

The commission also supports a recommendation to enact a "Surface Owners Protection Act," Vanko said.

This law would mainly help landowners who do not own their mineral rights and cannot negotiate for contractual protections from drilling activity on their land, he said. Surface owners who also own their mineral rights are able to negotiate for protections or compensation for possible damages when entering lease agreements.

On the revenue side, Vanko said the commission is "strongly in favor" of a state-level severance tax on any gas that might be produced, "if it's an appropriate level."

But the commission is divided over a recommendation for a per-leased-acre fee on the industry to fund the state's study of Marcellus shale drilling.

Trip Of Lifetime

and likes to go to Arby's. She works out at Brenda's Body Shop, plays soccer, and takes piano lessons. Jian is a Girl Scout, having already earned both her Bronze and Silver awards.

Jian and her mom are active members of St. Paul's Methodist Church, and they live in Oakland with their dog, Peaches. The teen is friendly and outgoing, and she and her mother have long since settled into a secure and happy homelife.

However, earlier this year Judy was presented with an opportunity that she was compelled to accept, even though it meant some upheaval, a great deal of planning, and exhausting traveling. Lotus Travel Inc. offers what it calls "heritage tours," specifically designed for families like the Travises. Adopted children and their families return to the homelands of the youth, visiting towns, the people, and even the orphanages where the babies first lived.

"I adopted her from China," Judy said, "And I felt it was important to take her back, just to see it, and experience life there for a little while; to learn about the place where she was born."

And so the trip was planned. Jim Richter, who had accompanied his sister to China 13 years ago, went with them again, as well as Katie Richter, Jian's cousin (daughter of Judy's brother, Don Richter). The four joined up with about 30 other adopted children and their families for the heritage journey. In addition to visiting the areas of the youths' births, the group also toured many of the major historic sites of China, such as the Great Wall, the Forbidden City, and the Terra Cotta Warriors, to name just three. The Travis entourage left on April 15 and came home on May 2, celebrating Jian's 13th birthday along the way.

The trip was one of a lifetime, with two major components: the incredible sightseeing, as well as close contact with Chinese families and a visit to Jian's orphanage in Tongling. The tour offered the family both the opportunity to see ancient structures and famous landmarks, but also brought them into the homes of "regular folk," exactly the kinds of families of which most of these children were born.

Pawn Run Hosts Fundraiser For Dove Center

Honey's Pawn Run, an establishment located along Boy Scout Road near Deep Creek Lake, recently hosted a fundraiser for the Dove Center, which is Garrett County's shelter and resource center for persons affected by domestic violence.

Local supporters, friends, and patrons were served a homemade spaghetti dinner, provided by Pat Foster, owner.

"We are proud to see this outpouring of support for the Dove Center," Foster said. "We had many first-time visitors in for dinner for this worthy cause."

The event raised $1,000 for the Dove Center, and additional funds for an area family in need.

Church Event To Resume In Spring

Oak Park Church of the Brethren's free food and fellowship meal that is usually held the last Wednesday of each month from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. has been canceled for December, January, and February.

"We look forward to seeing you again in the spring," said a spokesperson.

KNIGHTS PRESENT WARM WINTER COATS – Knights of Columbus officials delivered several boxes of warm outerwear to Broad Ford Elementary School this week as part of their annual Coats for Kids project. Coats will be delivered to all local elementary schools and distributed to specific children. State and local councils plan to give nearly 18,000 coats to children throughout North America this year. Large distributions of 300–500 coats were scheduled for Scranton, Pa.; New Bedford, Mass; Alamosa, Colo.; Vancouver, British Columbia; and Garrett County. Left to right are Dale Trott, state warden; Ron Sunny, western region membership director; Dawna Ashby, Broad Ford Elementary School principal; Peter Davio, state deputy; and Thomas Greul, state youth director.

Musical Planned At Cornerstone Assembly Of God

The Christmas musical Searching for the King will be presented at Cornerstone Assembly of God, Boynton, Pa., this Saturday, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec 18, at 10:30 a.m.

The dramatic musical parallels the biblical story of one of the Magi as he follows the Star of Bethlehem and a soldier stationed in the Middle East 2,000 years later who is looking up at the same stars.

"Both are searching for the truth, and both find it at the foot of the manger," a spokesperson said.

U.S. Navy Seaman Apprentice James B. Dicks, a 2011 graduate of Southern Garrett High School, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Dicks completed a variety of training, which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations," an exercise designed to give recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork, and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage, and commitment.

HIS MISTRESS BY CHRISTMAS
by Victoria Alexander
C. 2011, Kensington, $19.95; 352 Pages
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

You don't make a lot of demands. This year is the exception.

Specifically, if there isn't a certain little box beneath the tree, there could be trouble. You're fully expecting it to be there, so it'd better be. It should be wrapped in shiny paper with a gold – no, a silver – bow. And what's inside had better be just as glimmery as the outside, and it better be very, very expensive.

You're a woman of few desires, and one of them is sparkly. For Veronica – Lady Smithson – her deepest Christmas wish is for a man – but not a husband. In the new book His Mistress by Christmas by Victoria Alexander, Veronica may get more than she wanted.

Scandalous.

That's what Portia – Lady Redwell – thought about her friend Veronica, Lady Smithson. True, it had been three years since Veronica's husband died and that's a long time to be in mourning, but the lustful look on Veronica's face when she saw Portia's cousin Sir Sebastian Hadley-Attwater, well, there was just one word for it: scandalous.

It was doubly shocking, then, when Veronica whispered that she didn't want to be married again. She merely wanted to be Sebastian's mistress.

Sir Sebastian had been around the world, visited foreign countries, and had met heads of state and village chieftains. Daring and adventurous, ladies were quite drawn to him, though he was a firmly avowed bachelor – which is why Sebastian surprised himself by falling head over-heels in love – instantly – with lovely Lady Smithson.

He also decided instantly that he would marry her. But when he proposed, just days after their first meeting, Lady Smithson turned him down flat.

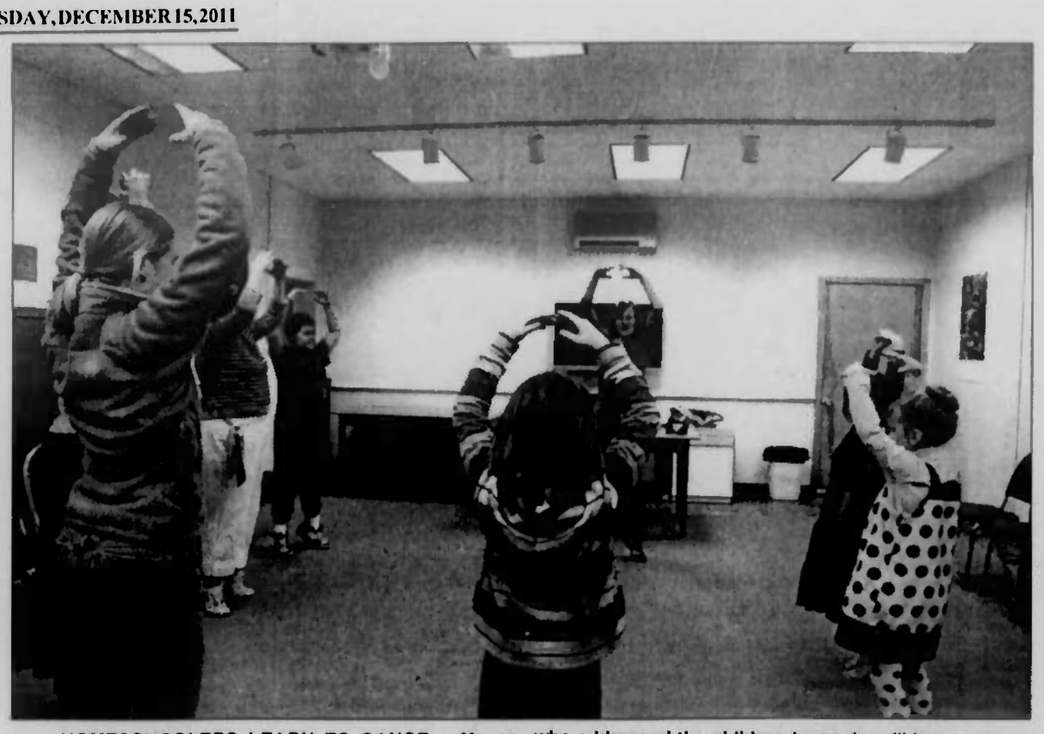
She wanted Sir Sebastian very much, but not as a husband. For most of her life, Veronica had been headstrong, decisive, and independent. She was used to her freedom and had no intention of being some man's "chattel." She could love Sebastian, but she could never marry him.

She did, however, agree to spend Christmas at his new country home outside London and he agreed to her terms. A holiday in the country – just the two of them – would be the perfect way to embark on their quiet affair... until love and two well-meaning families stepped in and messed up a perfectly good Yuletide plan.

When it comes to bodice-ripping, historical love stories, His Mistress by Christmas is pretty typical. You've got your handsome rogue, your headstrong redhead, furtive kisses, an argument, misunderstanding, reconnection, and happily ever after

The difference is that this book adds a twist that might draw readers who don't normally go for romances, as author Alexander blends a bit of Taming of the Shrew into this novel. There's also a touch of romp, a feel of modernity (even though the story is set in Victorian times) and a surprisingly blistering bedroom scene, so beware before wrapping this as a gift.

If you're the romance lover, though, His Mistress by Christmas promises to put the jingle back in your bell. For you, this is a book to demand.



HOMESCHOOLERS LEARN TO DANCE – Moves were busted and rugs cut recently at the Oakland branch of the Ruth Enlow Library, during a program which instructed home-schooled children in the arts of dance and music. The class was taught by Kelli Sisler, who addressed the children by saying: "I have a degree in chemical engineering and a master's in business, but my passion is teaching dance." Sisler went on to discuss various forms of dance, such as tapping and clogging, before showing the children a few ballet moves. "Dance can help you with your posture and can help you meet friends," she explained. The group listened to examples of ballet and tap music, and ended with hip hop. The next HomeSchooler event at the Oakland Library is scheduled for Friday, Dec 16, from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., when Sisler will return to talk with children about chemical engineering. For more information one may contact Keela at 301-334-3996, ext. 115, or e-mail keela@relib.net. A listing of events and services offered by the Ruth Enlow Library is available on the web site www.relib.net.

Huskies Cage Falcons, Top Raiders Before Being Whipped By Spartans

The Northern boys' varsity defeated host Frankfort last Friday, 56-46, in an Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference contest and stopped Meyersdale on Monday, 64-50, on the Red Raiders' court, but were then hammered by Bishop Walsh, 65-22, in another AMAC clash on the Spartans' court on Tuesday.

The results left the Huskies with a 2-2 record overall and a 1-2 mark in conference games.

Jordan Evans and Pat Sines paced the Huskies offensively in their win over Frankfort, netting 14 and 13 points, respectively.

The Huskies jumped out to an 18-4 lead by the end of the first quarter, a lead which the Falcons pared to 25-18 by halftime. Northern took a reasonably comfortable 37-24 advantage into the final stanza.

Leading winless Frankfort (0-2) in scoring was Jordan Wilson with 13 points.

Sines emerged as the top scorer for the Huskies in their win over Meyersdale on Monday, as he finished with 14 points. Also reaching double figures were teammates Jeremy Bender and Nick Ruff, who each scored 11.

The Huskies held a 15-12 edge at the end of the first quarter, stretched their lead to 31-22 by halftime, and took a 43-37 advantage into the final period.

Sines also dished out eight assists and grabbed six rebounds. Tyler Yutzy recorded seven steals and seven points.

Leading Meyersdale was Justin Doanldson with a game-high 24 points. Matt Moser also reached double figures with 10.

The Northern junior varsity coasted to a 40-14 win in the preliminary game, with Jonah Snyder netting a game-high 14 for the Huskies.

The Husky varsity offense never really managed to get going in Tuesday's game against Bishop Walsh, as the Huskies were held to a total of eight field goals for the entire game. Meanwhile, the Spartans hit 29 buckets to get the easy win.

BW was led by Quincy Redmon, who recorded 16 points, 14 rebounds, six blocks, and four steals. Pat Jones and Greg Hendershot also reached double figures in scoring, netting 13 and 11, respectively.

Pacing Northern was Tyler Yutzy, who scored eight points.

The win evened the Spartans' record at 2-2.

The Northern junior varsity was successful in the first game, winning 41-27 behind a 16-point performance by Brett Oats. Brandon Reed led the Spartan jayvees with 13 points.

The Huskies will not play again until they host Moorefield next Thursday.

Ram Grapplers Place Second In Horz Tourney, Then Crush Alco

The wrestling team of Southern High School opened its 2011-12 campaign this past week in impressive fashion, as the Rams placed second as a team in the 10-team, highly competitive Max Horz Invitational Tournament, hosted this past weekend by Berkeley Springs High School.

The Rams missed the team title by a single point, as they were edged by Hedgesville by a single point, 154-153.

The Rams, who won the 1A/2A state championships in 2008 and 2009 and placed fourth in the state last spring, then flattened visiting Allegany on Monday, 72-9.

Rams who captured first places in the Horz tourney were Scott Cooper at 170 pounds and Kevin Miller in the heavyweight division.

Cooper pinned Musselman's David Stas in the championship round, while Miller recorded a pin over B.J. Askew of Sherando.

Runners-up for the Rams were Austin Shaffer at 106 pounds and Gavin Murphy in the 132-pound division.

Earning third places were Dakota Pritt at 138 pounds and Mikey Skipper, 152 pounds.

Also gaining team points for the Rams were Garrett Beachy, 113 pounds, with a fourth place finish, Tanner Massey with a fifth place at 145 pounds, and Dillon Bennett placing sixth in the 195-pound division.

Finishing in third place as a team was Sherando with 147 points, followed by Musselman, 143; Independence, 134; James Wood, 126.5; Loudoun Valley, 109, Loudoun County, 108.5, Berkeley Springs, 92.5; and Strasburg, 0.

The Rams recorded seven pins against Allegany on Monday and were awarded forfeits in five other matches.

Gaining pinfalls were Logan Hinebaugh in the 132-pound bout, Gavin Murphy at 138, Dakota Pritt at 145, Coty Rasel at 170, Scott Cooper at 182, Will Foulke at 195, and Kevin Miller at 285.

Rams awarded forfeits were Austin Shaffer (106), Garrett Beachy (113), Josh King (120), Cooper McCauley (126), and Dillon Bennett (220).

Winners for the Campers were Ryan Murphy (160) with a pin, and Kirk Robinette (152) with a decision.

The Rams, who are coached by Dave Taylor, will be back in action this Saturday in a tri-match vs. host Winters Mill and Harford Tech.

RAMS WIN SEVEN BY PIN – Seven pinfall victories were recorded by the Southern Rams against visiting Allegany on Monday en route to an easy 72-9 victory. These photos by John McEwen capture four of those seven pins just seconds before they were declared by the referee. Above left, Cody Rasel defeats Allegany's Gabe Kiddy in the 170-pound division. Above right, Ram Dakota Pritt takes care of business against Garrett Hughes to record a win in the 145-pound bout. Southern's Scott Cooper is show below left as he disposes of Alco's Garrett Bittinger to win the 182-pound clash, and below right, SHS heavyweight Kevin Miller completes a pin of Garrett Maiers. HHS	10	18	30	47
SHS	20	39	61	80

The Rams also started fast and never looked back against Keyser last night, as they shot out to a 21-7 lead by the end of the first quarter, led 42-17 at halftime, and took a commanding 63-26 advantage into the fourth period.

Gangler led three Rams in double figures, hitting 18 points. Ritchie finished with 16 points and McBee netted 11. Gangler and McBee each hit three long-range buckets.

The only Golden Tornado who reached double figures was J.R. Flint, who finished with 10 points.

The Ram jayvees were also victorious in the preliminary game, 41-29.

Southern will travel to Preston this Friday and play at Allegany next Thursday.

Rams Top Tornado And Trojans, Set For University High Tonight

The Southern girls' varsity basketball team played outstanding defense in its at-home win over Keyser, 48-29, Thursday night, before carrying that momentum on the road and claiming a second victory at Hampshire, 51-36, on Tuesday.

Keyser was held to seven first-quarter points and just seven more in the second. Southern went into the break leading by 12.

The Rams pulled away in the third, taking a 19-point advantage into the fourth, and went on to win by seven.

Hannah Horne led Southern with 12 points, Raeslee Weimer added 10, and Alicia Horner recorded eight points and eight rebounds.

Samantha Hoban scored nine points and Markisha Coleman had eight for Keyser.

The Golden Tornado won the junior varsity game 38-31. Erica White led Keyser with 11 points, and Alicia Roth scored 16 for Southern.

At Hampshire, freshman Kambrie Bosley scored 16 points, while teamate Lindsay Brady added 11 for the Rams.

Bosley and Brady accounted for all five of the 3-point baskets scored by Southern. Three belonged to Bosley, who also racked up 7 of 11 free throws.

Rams Horner, Weimer, and Horne all had six points a piece.

The Trojans received 14 points of production from Hannah Carl, who led her team with two 3-pointers, while going 4 of 6 from the line. Hampshire's Sierra Blomquist finished with six points.

Southern took the lead early and did not relinquish it, going up 11-6 after the first and 29-13 before the half. The third quarter ended at 36-22, Rams.

Butler Leads Lakers Again In Victory Over Prince George's

Antonio Butler once again led the Garrett College men's basketball team in scoring, as the Lakers recorded a 73-65 Maryland JUCO victory over host Prince George's CC last Friday.

The win improved the Lakers' overall record to 7-5 and evened their conference mark at 3-3.

Butler hit nine field goals and six of 11 free throws for his total, while teammate Armond Perez also provided a strong performance with 14 points, 13 rebounds, and two steals.

The Lakers trailed by a point, 37-36, at intermission, and actually won the contest at the foul line, from which they connected on 18 of 27 attempts. The Owls finished with a 27-24 advantage in field goals, but made good on just six of 13 free throws.

Theo Dubuche hit three long-range buckets for the Lakers and finished with nine points, and Matt Gibson was close behind with eight points, plus dished out five assists.

"This was a good win for us against a tough team," said GC head coach Dennis Gibson. "We are really undermanned right now with so many injuries."

The loss dropped the Owls to 7-4 overall and evened their JUCO mark at 2-2.

David Goliday matched Butler's offensive output for PG, as he also finished with 24 points. NieRonn Miles also reached double figures with 13 points.

The Lakers are scheduled to play at Penn Highlands CC this Saturday to wrap up their first-semester schedule.

Lakers Drop Two Straight, Play At Frederick Today

Prince George's dealt the Garrett College women's basketball team a loss, 80-63, Friday in Largo. Garrett was first hampered by its own mistakes, fouling in the first half, before losing the battle on the boards.

Prior to that game, the Lakers lost to Montgomery-Rockville, 98-57, last Wednesday (Dec. 7) in McHenry. In that contest, JaQuita Cherry and Rachel Waibogha both scored 11 points for Garrett, while teammate Terra McKenzie had 10.

Against Prince George's, the Lakers contributed to their own woes, committing 17 team fouls in the first half. Prince George's fed off those mistakes, racking up easy points on its way to a 41-30 halftime advantage.

Garrett made an adjustment in the second half, cleaning up its foul problems, but was out rebounded by Prince George's, allowing the Owls to pull away with second-chance points.

Brianna Diggs led Garrett with 19 points, McKenzie had 17, and Cherry chipped in 10.

For the Owls, Marissa Akins scored 24 points and Conelsha Smith had 20. Danielle Durant ended the game with 16 points scored.

Garrett will hit the road today (Dec. 15) and face Frederick Community College. Game time is set for 7 p.m.

Late Muzzleloader Deer Season Will Open December 17

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will open Maryland's late muzzleloader season for deer on Saturday, Dec. 17, and it will continue through Dec. 31. The early winter season is popular with deer hunters and is an important part of deer management in Maryland, according to Brian Eyler, DNR deer project leader.

"Muzzleloader hunters contribute positively to deer management in Maryland because of their willingness to take female deer," Eyler. "Harvesting females is essential for effective deer management, and it is always challenging to remove enough to meet our population goals."

The muzzleloader season is also open for sika deer in Caroline, Dorchester, Somerset, Talbot, Wicomico, and Worcester counties.

New this year, a chronic wasting disease (CWD) management area (land code 233) has been established in a portion of Allegany County, with regulations designed to prevent the unintentional spread of CWD to other locations. For more information regarding CWD and the regulations pertaining to the disease management area, hunters are invited to go online to dnr.maryland.gov/wildlife/Hunt_Trap/deer/disease/cwdinformation.

Northern Youth Mat Club Vies At Conemaugh

The Northern Mat Club opened its 2011-12 wrestling season this past Sunday by participating in the Conemaugh Youth Open Tournament in Conemaugh, Pa.

Capturing a first place for the Northern club was Nate Durst in the age 11-12, 100-pound division.

Luke Lowery finished second in the 11-12, 130-pound division, while fourth places were earned by Jeremy Ashby, 11-12, 110 pounds; Shane Fink, 7-8, 55 pounds; and Chellcee Beitzel, 6 and under, 50 pounds.

Other Northern club participants were: Josh Thomas, 9-10, 65 pounds; Noah Phillips, 9-10, 65 pounds; Mitchell Wilburn, 7-8, 50 pounds; and Nathan Brenneman, 6 and under, 50 pounds.

Lions Club Will Host Dodgeball Event Mar. 3-10

The Oakland-Mountain Lake Park Lions Club will host a charity dodgeball tournament titled the Dodgeball Donnybrook and scheduled for March 3 and 10, noon to 8 p.m. both days, at the Oakland Community Center (former National Guard armory).

Competition on March 3 will be for teams consisting of players age 21 and over, while the March 10 matches will be for those under 21.

There is a $120 entry fee for each team of six players, and it is suggested by organizers that teams attempt to get a sponsor. Teams must consist of six players with at least one male and one female player.

Each team will receive six shirts with the team sponsor/logo. Medals will be awarded to each of the players on the top teams. Concessions will be provided by the Lions Club.

asp or consult the 2011-2012 Maryland Guide to Hunting and Trapping.

Hunters are urged by Eyler to carefully inspect all tree stands before using them. A full-body safety harness should be used while climbing into or out of a tree stand and while in the stand. DNR strongly recommends using a sliding knot, commonly known as a prussic knot, attached to a line that is secured above the stand that allows the hunter to be safely tethered to the tree as soon as one leaves the ground.

Complete bag limits, season dates, deer registration procedures, and other deer hunting information can be found online at dnr.maryland.gov/huntersguide. The 2011-2012 Maryland Guide to Hunting & Trapping issued with each hunting license also contains detailed information on all of Maryland's hunting seasons.

Special Olympics Offering Winter Sports Training

The Special Olympics of Garrett County will offer sports and training events for fall and winter registration.

Ski and snowshoe training will be held at the Wisp from January through February.

Basketball training will take place at the Oakland Community Center (former armory) from January through March.

For more information, persons may contact Donna Holt, area director, at 301-746-7476, or write to Special Olympics Garrett County, P.O. Box 228, Oakland MD 21550.

•Make notification to the lessor of reassignment or sale of leases or rights of way, with contact information for the superseding lessor clearly provided;

•Include in all mineral leases or mineral sales a disclaimer regarding risks associated with extraction or production of minerals, gas, oil, coal, or wind power, similar to disclaimers that investors are entitled by law to see before buying stock in a public corporation engaged in such activities; and

•Provide for disclosure by the lessee of any previous criminal convictions associated with leasing activities within the United States, as well as disclosure related to any civil litigation involving the lessee.

Similar to the proposal for a gas lease registry put forward by Garrett realtors, the administrative costs of the Fair Leasing Act would be funded by fees collected from individuals who have leases and from entities engaged in energy leasing activity.

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

There are several positive developments in the economy. There is a bit lower unemployment rate, and a positive number of new jobs have been created. But in the last 11 months, over a million new private-sector jobs have been added. And there are very good retail numbers for the big shopping weekend after Thanksgiving. Those all show that we are moving in the right direction, in spite of the fact that Europe is still shaky. But that is not much under the American president's control.

What do you think the effective income tax rate is for billionaires? Twenty-five percent, or maybe 50 percent? The correct answer is, shamefully, 1 percent! Do you have a high tax rate? Surely you must. You are probably among the Americans who believe that they are worse off now than they were four years ago. That is, unless you are a millionaire or a billionaire.

I heard some people say that all the big corporations will move their central offices out of New York City because New York state's governor put a different income structure into effect that raised the taxes of CEO types. But really, how likely is it? New York City is still the most dynamic city in America with the greatest pool of talents. Where else can you find people who are so attracted to talent and ambition as in the Big Apple? I saw that in my own working experience in Manhattan. And it is still the center of many essential things from media, culture, higher education, retail, and entertainment.

There is no other urban place that has as high a quality of life as New York, New York. It has well run public service departments like police and fire fighters, an excellent public transportation system, and it is easy to reach from the vast suburban areas surrounding it. They range from the most expensive, elite areas to regular rural middle class suburban areas.

It is Wednesday, Dec. 7, and here comes the snow! Although it is not a terribly heavy snowfall, it is more than a light snowfall. The size of the snowflakes huge. Maybe it is starting to look like Christmas a little bit. But the unusually warm November kept the ground relatively warm.

After two hours of snowfall, now all the branches of the trees are nicely lined by a perfect strip of white snow. It has started to cling to our evergreen tree boughs, so it really is starting to look like Christmas. There is so much snow clinging to my big maple trees in the front yard. The smaller branches look like pieces of funnel cake with a heavy coating of powdered sugar. I have never seen my front yard look like this in the almost six decades that I have lived in this house.

I suspect that the road conditions might be really treacherous for the first time this winter. Thank goodness there is very little wind. But the snow is completely blocking all of the signals for my TV dish receivers. There is a very odd image on my television.

I underestimated how bad the roads are now. I just talked to Lesa Whittemore on her cell phone. She was trying to make it home on Accident-Bittinger Road, and she encountered a large hardwood tree that fell across the road. She went over it at its very top and emerged damage free, but in very bad driving conditions. The roads were very slick and there was and somewhat limited vision. It was hard for her to know where she was.

It is disorienting traveling through a landscape covered with snow. All the surfaces are covered, and the sky blends with the white-covered land. It is a few hours before nightfall. I wonder if the school children might go home early.

I can't imagine driving a school bus loaded with children in these conditions. Not for any amount of money, especially in mountainous areas like between here and Accident. There are several pretty steep and long mountains along that route.

We just had two fairly brief power outages within the last 15 minutes or so. Whether that is a sign of some bad things to come or not is unclear. But it is not a wonderful prospect for anyone around here. I don't know how widespread the problems are in our electrical service. My water supply, heat, and phone are all dependent on electricity.

Thank God that our first northeaster storm only lasted one day in Garrett County. But it was bad enough even in that short period. When Lesa got close to home that afternoon, she stopped by briefly, and she looked as shaken as I have ever seen her. It was not fit for man or beast out there, especially when our winds started to blow.

We are still several weeks away from reaching the "darkest night of the year," to quote the well-known poem by Robert Frost, "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening." But even so, it is completely dark at 6 p.m. I always "run out of gas" as soon as it gets dark. So now I am waiting for the Steelers game to start at 8 p.m., and I feel like I often feel when I try to stay up to see midnight on New Year's Eve.

I imagine this evening that the Cleveland Browns regret that they passed by Big Ben Roethlisberger when they had the first round pick. He stayed around until the 11th pick, when Pittsburgh snapped him up.

This Sunday is a pretty exciting day. Commencement ceremonies will be held, and Steve and Eileen Schlossnagle's son Leo will pick up his PhD in psychology. That is an excellent accomplishment, and shows that the Garrett County public education system does a good job. It is not very easy to get a PhD, or doctorate degree. Dr. Leo Schlossnagle sounds good.

I remember one hay-making when we had the highest educated hay crew possible in American history, or at the very least in Garrett County. We had a couple of PhDs plus quite a few with master's degrees. And the rest of the crew all had their bachelor's degrees. Besides my family, it involved quite a few of my personal friends from the faculty at the college. They had advanced degrees, but that did not stop them from rolling up their sleeves and pitching in.

Really, hay-making is an almost essential experience – not in terms of your job resume, but simply participating in a traditional and historic activity. It is even pretty fun if you don't object to a bit of hard physical work. And of course you get the scent of fresh hay in the barn, and you see very clearly the result of your work – tons of lovely fresh hay in huge mows.

I was not a bit surprised to hear on the KDKA morning news that today is the coldest day of this winter season so far. I often turn down my heat before I go to bed. So when I wake up, I rapidly exit my bed to get some heat going. But they predicted warmer weather by the end of the week, like maybe in the 60s. I will believe that when I feel it.

Since I was a child, going caroling was an important Christmas tradition. I often went with the rest of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church youth group, driving around the Bittinger area to sing Christmas carols to elderly folks and shut-ins. I love the sound of a group singing in unison all their familiar beloved songs outdoors, even if it is cold like this evening. It is a special sound, and it is so heart-warming. I had a visit from a group of members of the somewhat new Pillar of Life Mennonite Church on Beachy Road.

My first Christmas card that arrived in the mail was from Michelle and Barack Obama and their family, including their dog named Bo. There was also a letter from Michelle. She talks about how Barack knows what it means to have a family, and to want children to grow up with no limit to their dreams. She said she can hear it in his voice when he comes home after a long day traveling around the country. He tells her about the people he has met, and long after the girls have gone to bed, he still pours over the letters people (like me) send him.

"He might not always remember your name, but he will never forget your story," she said. "It becomes imprinted on his heart, and he carries it with him every day."

It is amazing to think that our president is very close in age to what my youngest brotner Scott would be if he had not met an untimely death in West Africa. He would have been 52 years old this Dec. 13. I still remember how joyful I was to meet him as a newborn baby.

Each younger sibling's birth was one of the most special moments of my childhood. They were so adorable, like baby Carol, who used to make little cooing sounds. Her birthday is Dec. 18. Since it was one week before Christmas, it is not surprising that my parents chose Carol for her name – our little Christmas Carol.

Could any scent in the world be as sweet and special as how a new baby smells? I am so happy that my little brother got a chance to hold and play with his two nephews and nieces, Robby and Claire, before he left for Africa. I remember he commented about how wonderful tiny Claire smelled.

A Christmas Eve service will be held at Emmanuel at 6 p.m. on December 24. Christmas Eve services will also be held at St. John's, Meadow Mountain, at 8 p.m., and at Zion, Jennings, at 10 p.m. On Sunday morning, December 25, breakfast will be served at Emmanuel and be followed by an informal worship service with communion.

Cindy Richardson and Marvin Beckman attended a board of directors meeting of Community Lutheran Partners in Clarksburg, WVa., last Saturday. Marvin recently traveled with a group from Garrett County and spent a week in Charlotte, N.C., working at the processing center for Operation Christmas Child. While in Charlotte, they also toured the Billy Graham Library.

BACK AT HOME, WITH STORIES TO TELL – Jian and Judy Travis are pictured back at home in this photo taken recently. They have many prized souvenirs from their trip, including this bamboo artwork and in Judy's hand a tiny terra cotta warrior made by Jian. In addition to the many items and photos, the two have a deeper understanding of Jian's tenuous beginnings in life as well, which they learned for the first time when they visited the orphanage where Jian spent her first 18 months.

GOING OVER THE PAPERS – The adoption papers were still on file at the Tongling orphanage, so Judy and Jian looked at them together. This was the second time they did that, as shown above, although baby Jian was probably not nearly as interested. Photos by Jim Richter.

WHERE SHE WAS FOUND – Garrett Countian Jian Travis stands on the spot where a policeman found her 13 years ago. At that time it was the entryway of a factory, and the month-old infant was left there, probably with the hope that she would be found quickly by workers and other passers-by. Thankfully, she was.

rickshaws through very narrow streets to get to one neighborhood where the families greeted them warmly and fed them heartily. In that one particular area, eight families shared one bathroom.

"We went to a tiny home where the kitchen was the size of a large closet," Judy said, "and the woman there made us the best meal of our trip."

Jian concurred.

"Her homemade rice noodles were so good," Jian said. "I have never tasted noodles like that in my whole life."

The sites were most impressive, with the local family probably most awed by the Terra Cotta Warriors, a famous archeological dig in Xian where in the 1970s farmers came upon shards of terra cotta sculptures which led to the discovery of thousands of the warriors, built centuries ago to accompany a tomb of a long-ago emperor.

"It's hard to describe how it feels to walk into that place where there are just thousands of these warriors," Judy said. "It's just overwhelming."

There Jian made her own miniature warrior, which she prizes among her many souvenirs.

The group moved on to the Forbidden City, where the crowds were also overwhelming, according to the Travis crew. The Great Wall was another destination, and they walked along the ancient structure, taking picture upon picture. At the mention of any of these sites, Jian has tales to tell, and does so with animation and enthusiasm. She seems to have soaked up every sight and sound.

The tour group visited a Chinese school, where the children were shy and giggling with the visitors. They sang songs to them and showed them around, and some ventured into speaking English with the Americans.

The visitors also went to an opera complete with classic Kabuki make-up and costumes, visited a panda reserve, and went on a Yangtze River cruise. They packed a great deal into two and a half weeks.

Probably the most poignant portion of the trip came when the Travises went back to Jian's orphanage in Tongling. There they learned details of her beginnings that they had not known before. Judy had not been given much information when she came to get her daughter years ago, but this time, she was read the police report through a translator that told of Jian's tenuous first few months.

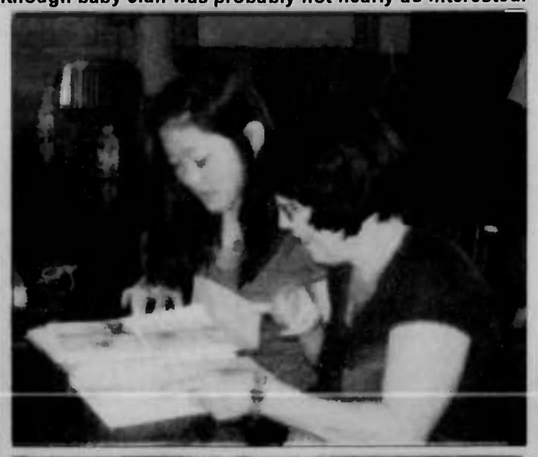
The report gave them the location of where baby Jian was left, near the opening of a factory, which is now gone and replaced by an apartment building. Jian stood in the same spot she was found back then. She and her mother also visited the outdoor park where Judy first held her little girl, and they sat on the same benches. They reviewed the adoption papers together.

A boy who is Jian's age remains at the orphanage. He was there when they were babies, and he was never adopted. However, they have given him his own room, and he will receive an education provided by the government. If he were a girl, his destiny would be quite different. At 16, girls are no longer eligible for care at a Chinese orphanage. They are turned out at that time, and must fend for themselves.

The little one named Jian was fortunate, to say the least, that a loving mother sought her, found her, and brought her home – to Garrett County, where she is content, is a blessing to her mom and family, and is contributing to her community already in many ways, even at 13. So many of the youngsters on the tour are the same, having been at the right place at the right time to be taken into loving families, and to have been then even more fortunate for those families to wish for them to reeconnect with their heritage through this experience.

The adventure was most certainly a positive one for the local family, who are all safely back and of course, as always, once again engaged and busy at home. There are pictures and stories, and Jian has created a PowerPoint presentation of her experiences that she gave at school. Surely none of them will forget their journey, and perhaps will go back again someday. But Jian said for now, she is very happy to be home.

ONE OF HER ALL-TIME FAVORITE MOMENTS – Jian had a hard time narrowing down her many best memories of her China tour, but she had to say that having the opportunity to hold a panda was definitely near the top. She only got to hang on to him for a moment, just long enough for the picture to be taken, but it was great fun all the same.



THE SAME BENCH – Judy and Jian are pictured at left at a time when they were just getting acquainted, shortly after Judy signed the papers to bring her new daughter home. Jian is pictured above this spring sitting in the same park, possibly even on the same bench.

PROBABLY THE MOST AWE-INSPIRING PLACE the Travis/Richter crew saw was the amazing Terra Cotta Warriors archeological site in Xian. The famous location is in a state of ongoing excavation, with more ancient warriors found all the time. There are 8,000 of them so far, and the family said the sheer expanse of the site is simply incredible. Jian is pictured at one of the overlook areas.

LAYERS AND LAYERS OF CLOTHING were piled on little 18-month-old Jian when her mother first held her. The temperature was about 70, and the baby too hot, and was fussy. However, Judy was warned to keep the child dressed as such, because elderly Chinese women would greatly disapprove otherwise, and might even swat Judy over the head with rolled-up newspapers for taking any layers off. So while in the public eye, the baby remained overdressed and cranky. As soon as she could, Judy made her more comfortable. Judy kept all the clothing and the little shoes, pictured.

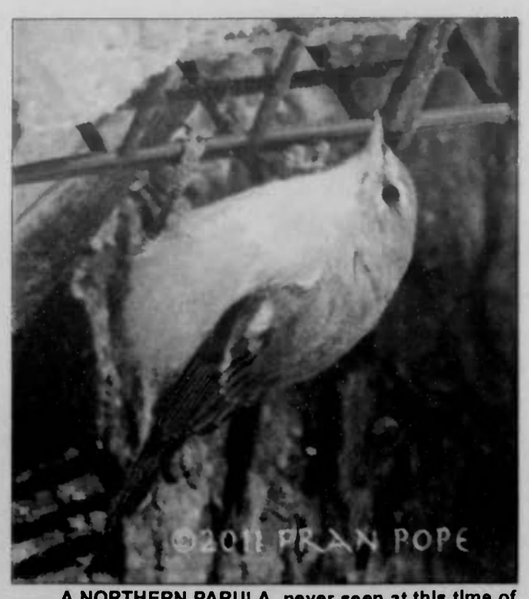
Local Birders To Participate In Christmas Count

Birders and nature enthusiasts in Garrett County have joined birders across the western hemisphere to participate in the Audubon National Society's longest-running wintertime tradition, the annual Christmas Bird Count (CBC). Over 2,200 individual counts are scheduled to take place throughout the Americas and beyond from December 14 to January 5, with Garrett County's count slated for this Saturday, Dec. 17.

"Each CBC volunteer observer is an important contributor, helping to shape the overall direction of bird conservation," said Geoff LeBaron, Audubon's Christmas Bird Count director. "Audubon and our partners at Bird Studies Canada and the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center rely on data from the CBC database to inform a myriad of analyses regarding both bird conservation and climate change. Last season's CBC report of American birds included a baseline study of CBC data around the Gulf Coast, which will enable researchers to track the recovery of that hard-hit region in the aftermath of the Deepwater Horizon oil disaster."



A NORTHERN PARULA, never seen at this time of year in Garrett County, was captured on camera in the Pleasant Valley area by local birder Fran Pope while feeding on a homemade mix of fresh lard and peanut butter. The northern parula is a neotropical migrant warbler that breeds in Garrett County in the spring. Warblers are normally insectivorous, Pope said, but will visit such feeders in cold weather when their normal food isn't available in order to survive. The species usually spends the winter in the southern states, the Caribbean, or Mexico/Central America, but according to the Maryland Ornithological Society database, this "straggler" is the first December record of a northern parula in Garrett County. According to Pope, it has been visiting the feeder for over a week and appears to be in good condition, despite some very cold nights. The tiny bird, likely a young one and weighing slightly more than a quarter, has a yellow throat and breast, blue-gray color on the head and upper parts, and a yellow-green patch on the back. Two wing bars and a spilt eye-ring complete its appearance. Birders participating in the Christmas Bird Count will be keeping their eyes open for all birds, but especially such rare ones – including snowy owls – during the count, which is scheduled for this Saturday, Dec. 17, in Garrett County. See story.

During last year's count, about 61 million birds were tallied in 2,215 locations by over 62,000 volunteers, the number of both locations and observers a record level of participation. Thanks in part to Bird Studies Canada, the Canadian partner for the CBC, the number of counts across the Americas, Caribbean, and in the Pacific Islands has risen steadily in recent years.

The CBC began over a century ago when 27 conservationists in 25 localities, led by scientist and writer Frank Chapman, changed the course of ornithological history. On Christmas Day in 1900, the small group posed an alternative to the "side hunt," a Christmas day activity in which teams competed to see who could shoot the most birds and small mammals. Instead, Chapman proposed that they identify, count, and record all the birds they saw, founding what is now considered to be the world's most significant citizen-based conservation effort – and a more than century-old institution.

Since Chapman's retirement in 1934, new generations of observers have performed the modern-day count. Today, over 60,000 volunteers from all 50 states, every Canadian province, parts of Central and South America, Bermuda, the West Indies, and Pacific Islands count and record every individual bird and bird species seen in a specified area.

The 112th CBC is expected to be larger than ever, expanding its geographical coverage and accumulating information about the winter distributions of various birds.

"The CBC is vital in monitoring the status of resident and migratory birds across the Western Hemisphere, and the data, which are 100% volunteer generated, have become a crucial part of the U.S. government's natural history monitoring database," said a CBC spokesperson.

Local persons who wish to participate in Garrett County's count are asked to contact local count coordinator Connie Skipper via e-mail at cskipper10@gmail.com or by telephone at 301-387-5227.

JROTC DRILL TEAM HONORS VETERANS AND COMPETES AT SHS COMPETITION – Northern High School's Husky Battalion recently hosted a Veterans Day Flag Retirement Ceremony, at which cadets ceremoniously cut out each of the 13 individual red and white stripes and the flag's union to be burned as Cadet SSG Lowery supervised the operation. Speeches were presented by Cadet MSG Kendra Paugh and Cadet 1LT De'von Merkel. Local veterans and school administrators attended the ceremony. "The ceremony was a fitting tribute to all past and present veterans," said SGM (ret.) Mel Hoffman. "The Husky Battalion looks forward to conducting a similar ceremony next year." From left are Cadet 1LT Merkel, Cadet SSG Courtney Lowery, Cadet PFC Dustin Fike, and Cadet PFC Shelby Hankins. Below is the entire drill team while at the Southern High School Rams Drill competition the following day. The NHS drill team and colorguard both placed third in their respective competition, and third in overall competition. Cadet PFC Green won fourth place in individual knockout. From left are Cadet FFC Daniel Baechtel, Cadet 1LT Thomas Harvey, Cadet PFC Curtis Friend, Cadet PFC Trevor Green, Cadet SSG Brady Benton, Cadet SSG Lowery, Cadet PFC Hankins, and Cadet MSG Paugh.

Beekeepers Assn. Plans Hive Kit Give-Away For One Youth

The Appalachian Beekeepers Association held its annual Christmas dinner Dec. 10 at the Loch Lynn Restaurant. The group used the occasion to elect its 2012 officers, as well as to plan a contest to give one Garrett County youth between the ages of 12 and 16 a complete bee hive with accoutrements.

The bee hive kit will consist of a hive body, super, inner cover, bottom board, telescoping cover, jacket, gloves, a hive tool, and a smoker.

Applications for the giveaway will be available via most youth organizations in the county, and at the University of Maryland Extension Office.

The association also plans to raffle off a hive complete with bees. Tickets are priced at $10 and are currently available from any Appalachian Beekeeper member. That drawing is scheduled for March 16 of next year.

Anyone who wishes to purchase bees or queens should contact either John Slawter at 304-735-6051, or Jerome Cassidy at 240-321-5186 by the end of January

Bloodmobile To Visit Grantsville

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will hold its regular planned visit at the Grantsville fire hall on Monday, Dec. 26, from noon to 5 p.m. Donors are encouraged to attend.

Mt. Beulah Group Holds Raffle To Restore Church

The Mt. Beulah Restoration Association met earlier this month for a general meeting. During the event, the group held the drawing for its Walmart raffle.

The following winners were drawn by the association's newest member, Mary Silber – first place: Rick Rounds, Dixon, Mo.; second place, Shirley Hughes, Mt. Savage; and third place, Kristl Marley, Hagerstown.

"We would like to thank all who supported our raffle," said a spokesperson. "We are hoping in the spring to get the church foundation repaired, thanks to your support."

The group is dedicated to the restoration of the historic Mt. Beulah Church, located along Twin Churches Road in the New Germany area. Previous fundraising efforts have enabled the members to repair the 130-year-old church's roof and bell tower.

CDL Trainings Offered At GC Grantsville Site

Garrett College is currently accepting applications for the next series of courses geared toward training individuals to obtain a Class A commercial driver's license (CDL). No prior education or experience with trucks is required.

The weekday training will begin on Monday, Jan. 9, 2012, and the weekend session will start on Saturday, Jan. 21, at the Mountaintop Truck Driving Institute (MTDI), Grantsville.

The weekday option will be offered in a 7.5 week timeframe, Monday through Thursday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. The weekend option has a duration of 15 weekends, thus, Saturdays and Sundays, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This program offers a professional truck driving curriculum for the purpose of qualifying students for entry level positions as drivers in over-the-road or local driving vehicles.

"The short-term training is an intense, fast-paced program," noted MTDI director Terry Beachy.

While attending this 30-day, 210 hours of training, students will receive instruction in the following pre-trip inspection, various skills in the yard, and over-the-road instruction, along with a basic overview of map reading and log books.

At the completion of training, students will be taken to demonstrate at their local motor vehicle administration to obtain a Class A license.

For more information or to register for this training, persons are asked to contact Beachy at 301-895-4700 or COLLECTS 120 HATS AND PAIRS OF GLOVES – The Garrett County Board of Realtors Task Force recently held its second annual "Heating the Heads and Hands of Children In Garrett County" drive, which resulted in 120 packaged hats and gloves to be donated to area children in cooperation with the Oakland Rotary Club Christmas drive. Donations were made by GCBR members, area residents, Cub Scouts, and local businesses. GCBR extends thanks to the local businesses that participated in the event by allowing collection boxes to be placed at their establishments. From left are GCBR Task Force members John Pucciano, Sandi Flockhart, Amy Buser, and Jay Ferguson.

Zion Lutheran Women Convene

Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA), Zion Lutheran Church, Jennings, held their monthly meeting at the church last Thursday.

The study, titled "Beyond the Boundaries," was led by Leota Baker. The study focused on the reputation of Jesus as a teacher and healer, and how his compassion toward others provides a model for how all should live their lives.

Judy Stanton presided over the business meeting. Letters of thanks were received from Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Box Elder, Mont., for the package of baby quilts for the church's layette ministry to the Rocky Boy Indians, as well as the box of assorted items for Christmas gifts for the children that were sent.

A monetary gift was sent to a person in need as a Christmas gift from the Zion Women of the ELCA.

It was decided to discontinue the monthly meetings during the winter months.

U.S. Air National Guard Airman 1st Class Vincent A. Harman recently graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Airmen who complete basic training earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Harman, who is the son of Joseph and Bobbi Harman, Swanton, is a 2008 graduate of Southern Garrett High School.

Humane Society Officer Completes Animal Control Training Academy

Garrett County Humane Society (GCHS) animal control officer Deb Clatterbuck recently attended the 8th annual East Coast Animal Control Officer Academy – a comprehensive noncredit program designed specifically for animal care and control professions – at the Maryland Police and Correctional Training Commissions' Public Safety Education and Training Center in Sykesville.

A completion ceremony was held at Carroll Community College in Westminster for the participants, who received a graduation pin.

Eleven students from Maryland and Washington, D.C., completed the 11-day training program, including three students from Garrett County – Barbara Shaffer of the GC Animal Shelter, James Lynch of HART for Animals and GCHS, and Clatterbuck.

Also in attendance were three students from the Anne Arundel County Police Department; participants from Kent County, Washington County, and Carroll County humane societies (county animal shelters); one from the Allegany County Department of Emergency Services; and one student from the Laurel Police Department.

Clatterbuck, who is a Garrett County Humane Society member/volunteer, was the only training program graduate who works as an animal control officer without a salary, noted GCHS president Lisa Baker.

This training is endorsed by the Humane Society of the United States, the Maryland Police and Correctional Training Commissions, and the Professional Animal Workers of Maryland Inc. Some of the classes cover the objectives of animal cruelty investigations, including educating the owners, mitigating the problem, rescuing mistreated animals, prosecuting offenders, and continuing to follow-up on owners to ensure they do not continue the abusive behavior.

"A grant from The Pittsburgh Foundation provided the funds for Ms. Clatterbuck to attend this invaluable training," said Baker. "An anonymous donor provided the grant to the foundation to be given to the Garrett County Humane Society."

Donors who establish funds through the foundation can support any charitable interest locally or anywhere in the United States.

"The Pittsburgh Foundation has been connecting gererous donors with the needs of communities since 1945," Baker noted. "Grants are awarded to a vast array of non-profit organizations, student scholarships, and medical researchers, based on donor interests."

The GCHS is a non-profit, volunteer organization that has been helping abused/neglected and homeless animals of all kinds for over 25 years.

"Our year-round spay-neuter voucher program has also helped thousands of pet owners to have their pets "altered" to prevent more unwanted litters from flooding our local county animal shelter and communities," Baker added. "The GCHS is the only organization that has responded and investigated over 350 animal neglect calls in 2010, and we expect the total number to be close to that again in 2011."

For more information or to make a donation to the GCHS, persons may call Baker at 301-616-4425.

Angels Unaware

We never know when we might be God's angel to a stranger...or they to us, for all angels do not appear with wings. In Hebrews 13:2, we read, "Let brotherly love continue. Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unaware." Let the blessings of the season fill your heart as you worship and serve our Heavenly Father. Share those blessings with a stranger today!

Don't Boast

Nobody likes a braggart. As the old adage goes, "Self-praise stinks." But many of us fail to realize that there are many subtle ways in which we brag about ourselves. Displaying your knowledge on diverse subjects, especially when our ideas or opinions have not been solicited, is one way in which we can be braggarts. Our education should be like our watch, for use and not for show. That is, keep it in our pocket until we need it. There are times when we are asked for our opinion or asked about our accomplishments and then it may be appropriate to toot our own horn. But, even in that context, for example in the course of a job interview where someone is explicitly asking us to sing our own praises, we should do so in a modest way. Let our honors and accomplishments speak for themselves, and then against the backdrop of our modesty and humility, they will shine all that much brighter.

"Let not the wise boast of their wisdom or the strong boast of their strength or the rich boast of their riches, but let the one who boasts boast about this: that they have the understanding to know me, that I am the LORD, who exercises kindness, justice and righteousness on earth, for in these I delight," declares the LORD.

See you later, 'CSI': Helgenberger exits soon

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Marg Helgenberger

Q: When is Marg Helgenberger supposed to leave "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation"? – Craig Johnson, Denver

A: There wasn't a definite date set for her final episode at this writing, but it isn't too far off, and we can say that with certainty because her replacement has been set. Slated to make her debut on the CBS series Feb. 15, Elisabeth Shue – who was Oscar-nominated for "Leaving Las Vegas" – ironically will return to Las Vegas, at least in story terms, as a forensic sleuth who has a past with D.B. Russell (Ted Danson).

That marks an interesting reinvention of the show in a relatively short time span, since both main series leads will have been recast within one television season. It also means that another Elisabeth who recently joined the crime drama, Harnois, will have someone who really will understand her displeasure if her name is misspelled.

Q: When will a new co-host be named for Kelly Ripa? – Erin Collins, Stuart, Fla.

A: According to Michael Gelman, executive producer of the syndicated weekday show that currently is titled "Live! With Kelly," the search will take as long as it takes ... but it also won't last indefinitely. Smartly, the talk show brought in known (and busy-with-other-projects) commodities such as Jerry Seinfeld and Neil Patrick Harris in the early weeks after Regis Philbin left, to get viewers acclimated to his not being there.

Not long into the new year, the search should start to get serious through an on-air process Gelman likes to call "dating." The more some prospective choices click with Ripa, the more they'll appear, and Gelman says it'll become pretty evident who's seriously in contention for the job.

Q: I've heard about a new series called "The Firm." Is this the same "The Firm" that the Tom Cruise movie was based on? – Jeff March, Fayetteville, N.C.

A: It is, but the show that premieres Jan. 8 on NBC begins 10 years after the John Grisham novel left off. Josh Lucas ("Sweet Home Alabama," "J. Edgar") assumes the lead role as lawyer Mitch McDeere, who relocates to Washington, D.C., with wife Abby (Molly Parker, in Jeanne Tripplehorn's former part) and their young daughter. There, he teams with his ex-convict brother Ray (Callum Keith Rennie, succeeding David Strathairn) and assistant Tammy (Juliette Lewis, in a role for which Holly Hunter was Oscar-nominated) on various cases
